SUMMARY.

Italy's ultimatum produced consternation in official circles in Constantinople.

The Porte, it is reported, has rejected the ultimatum, and is appealing to the Powers.

The ultimatum demands the evacuation of the principal towns on the coast of Tripoli.

The majority of the Italians have quitted Tripoli. Only a few officials remain in the Consulate.

There is now an ample supply of arms and ammunition for both the Turkish regulars and the native auxiliaries.

Large quantities of arms and ammunition have been landed in Albania from Italy.

There is much apprehension as to another Albanian rising.

Germany is still endeavouring to prevent hostilities between Italy and Turkey.

The "Neue Freie Presse" learns authoritatively that Turkey will answer the ultimatum by a declaration of war.

Germany's reply to France with respect to Morocco includes fresh demands requiring serious consideration.

The new proposals, however, do not relate to the economic situation, which has already been settled.

Lord Kitchener was welcomed in Cairo with tumultuous enthusiasm by the natives.

The New Zealand Shipping Company's steamer Hurnui has been launched at Glasgow.

Lord Northcote was taken seriously ill at Eastwell Park while entertaining Princess Christian.

The directors of the Irish railways refuse to dispossess the men taken on during the strike.

The railwaymen's executive has decided to continue the strike.

The general manager of the North-eastern Railway Company gave evidence before the Railways Disputes Commission.

He suggested that the trade union funds should be liable for damages if a strike took place contrary to awards.

It is stated that individual miners' unions intend to urge a general strike for a minimum wage.

Johnson, Wells, and the three promoters have given an undertaking not to box in the British Isles.

After finishing his present contracts in England, Johnson will permanently retire as the heavyweight champion.

The censure motion in the House of Representatives was defeated by 28 to 18.

An influential deputation waited on the Premier on the subject of bridge communication between Sydney and North Sydney.

The Premier said the Government was in earnest and intended to submit fresh expert evidence to the Works Committee.

Mr. Griffith remarked that no tunnel could deal effectually with the vehicle traffic.

The conference yesterday, in which Mr. Carmichael took part, failed to arrive at a solution of the Lithgow difficulty.

No common ground could be found in the discussion on which a settlement of the strike could be brought about.

The Lithgow coal trade has been seriously inconvenienced during the past few days by the scarcity of trucks.

The Railway Department explains that the scarcity of trucks is due to the wool season.

Industrial matters at Newnes are rather strained. The men have decided to take no drastic action for the present.

The South Coast collieries are working at high pressure. These conditions are said to be likely to continue.

The Prime Minister says the Government has finally decided on the 4ft 8½in gauge for the Transcontinental Railway.

The question of making the State railway systems uniform is still open.

Twenty Federal Labour members left Melbourne for Sydney last night to attend the Eight-hour demonstration.

The collection of the new electoral rolls by the police has been completed.

The possibility of a system for introducing English boys and girls into Victoria was discussed.

Sir John Kirk said he was inclined to think Australia was the best country in the world for immigrants.

About an acre of limestone-bearing ground has been opened up at the State lime quarry, Taree.

An official report states that the site contains an immense quantity of the highest-grade limestone.

Mr. H. Skinner has been elected to the vacancy for the Melbourne South Province in the Victorian Legislative Council.

A verdict of suicide was returned at the inquest on the body of John J. Roache, who shot a young woman near Orange.

The Government is to be again approached with the view of having portion of the quarantine area thrown open to the public.

Mr. T. Waddell, M.L.A., who is on a visit to Brisbane, supports the railway scheme for opening up Western Queensland.

He condemns the proposal for a line from Oodnadatta to Pine Creek as a "white elephant."

A protest was made to the Public Works Committee against the erection of the Government Printing Office on the Rocks area.

It was pointed out on behalf of the coal-lumpers and wharf-labourers that they must reside close to their work.

Mr. Trefle informed a deputation that whatever demonstration farms were established they must be self-supporting.

The picture show proprietors have formed an association to protect their interests. It is intended to contest the award.

The Perth Chamber of Commerce objects to any more money being spent on the Federal Capital.

The Ormuz, which arrived from London yesterday, was a day behind time. This is her last visit to Australia.

The electors of Wentworth last night welcomed back Mr. W. H. Kelly, M.P., on his return from the Coronation.

In the import markets a heavy distributing business was reported in all lines.

Forecast: Still unsettled, with more rain and thunderstorms over the eastern districts, and at scattered places in the south-west. Otherwise fine generally.

"Is she not more than painting can express
Or youthful poets fancy, when they love?"
—Rowe.

Exactly so. Doubtless every reader has at some time or other felt how inadequate is language to describe one's thoughts on BEHOLDING BEAUTY.

The stupendous sweep of Niagara, the matchless magnificence of the Canadian Rockies, the stately sublimity of the Sierra Nevadas, the kaleidoscopic colourings of the Grand Canyon of Colorado, or the grotesque grandeur of the Jenolan Caves—WHO CAN ADEQUATELY PAINT THESE?

And so with the HANDSOME and SUPERB RACE and OPERA SCARVES we are showing. The pen may be mightier than the sword, but on this occasion it pauses and halts. Therefore we ASK YOU TO CALL AND INSPECT OUR DISPLAYS. Newest styles, most beautiful colourings and designs.

GLOVES FOR RACE WEAR,

AND WHAT IS FASHIONABLE.

The Long Glove—that smart Mousquetaire shape fastening with two or three buttons at the wrist—is very much in vogue this season. While the fashion for short or three-quarter length sleeves makes long gloves necessary, there is a charming conceit to wear them with long sleeves, wrinkled on the arm with dainty carelessness. As to colours, there is a new Champagne shade which harmonises with nearly all colours very fashionable; while Grey is also among the leading colours.

All these you can procure from our House, where hundreds of women have learnt by experience that they can get a glove that fits and wears to perfection, and where they are protected by our guarantee.

"The Roslyn," a smart 8-button length Glove, suitable to wear with three-quarter length sleeves. Made of fine Kid by a reliable French Manufacturer. They are a smart Mousquetaire shape, with three pearl buttons at wrist, and have smartly stitched backs. To be had in those fashionable shades—Cream, Champagne, and Pearl Grey 5/11 pr.

"The Avondale" is a 10-button length Glove, also suitable to wear with three-quarter length sleeves. Made of fine Kid, in Pale shades of Cream, Champagne, and Grey, with stitched backs, and fasten with pearl buttons. In all sizes .... 6/11 pr.

The special new shades of French and Silver Greys, in fine Kid 10-button length Gloves. These have stitched backs, and fasten with pearl buttons. All sizes .. 7/11 pr.

"The Ventnor," another long Glove of special quality washable Kid, treated by a special process by Vallier, of Grenoble. It is 10-button length, with stitched backs. In Pearl Grey, Champagne, and Cream. All sizes .... 10/6 pr.

THE "REGENT" KID GLOVE

TO-DAY, 5/11.—USUAL PRICE, 6/11.

If you are looking for a short Glove to wear at the races, there is every reason why it should be the "Regent," with two large pearl buttons. It is such a smart Glove—made of fine White Kid, with coloured silk stitchings and pointings, giving just a touch to harmonise with your gown, in Brown, Dark Green, Amethyst, and Navy. But the smartest of all are those with Black stitchings and pointings, which give such a chic finish to a Lingerie Gown. Besides the pointings and stitchings being of a contrasting colour, the welt is bound with Kid to match. Now about the cut, the fit, and the quality of the Kid, which are, after all, of most importance. These you can depend upon being right. The cut being correct, the fit is therefore faultless. The Kid is selected with special care, and is a very fine quality—it is Cheverette, a Kid renowned for its firmness and good wearing quality. The reduced price is for to-day only.
Distant Residents who send orders immediately on receipt of this announcement will have them executed at the reduced price, and sent carriage paid.

WE PAY CARRIAGE

A GUARANTEE,

WITH SOMETHING SOLID AND RELIABLE BEHIND IT.

Ask the man who offers to give you a guarantee, WHO GUARANTEES HIM? Ask YOURSELF the question whether YOU, if you were an agent, could talk very confidently about your principals, whom perhaps you had never seen, or their works, which you had never seen either. And what are you to think when the principals will either give you no guarantee or only a very short one?

But, anyhow, why take anybody on TRUST? You don't HAVE TO. Because, if you buy an "INVINCIBLE" OIL ENGINE, you get a FIVE YEARS' GUARANTEE, and the WORKS are here, at Woolwich Dock, Sydney, to back that guarantee.

Moreover, the "INVINCIBLE" Engine doesn't have to reach you through one or more agents. It is a case of DIRECT SERVICE STRAIGHT FROM THE FACTORY TO THE BUYER.

WHY NOT CUT OUT THE MIDDLEMAN? Especially when that gentleman is employed in trying to send work and money out of the country to employ the foreigner.

Let us PROVE to you that the "INVINCIBLE" is absolutely the best—best in DESIGN, most UP TO DATE, RELIABLE, and MOST ECONOMICAL.

NO MARINE ENGINE

has attained such world-wide popularity as the FERRO.

The reason for this is that there has never been an Engine placed upon the market that can compare with the Ferro for SIMPLICITY, POWER, RELIABILITY, AND PRICE.

The number now in use in Australia is upwards of 3000, and the sales are rapidly increasing.

They are made by the firms who are recognised as being the leading makers, and whose output is BY FAR the LARGEST IN THE WORLD.

There are many exclusive points embodied in the FERRO which place it in a CLASS BY ITSELF.

When you consider that the FERRO will cost you CONSIDERABLY LESS than other engines, you have no need to hesitate in your choice.

We keep upwards of 100 Engines in stock in Sydney, also a full range of duplicate parts.

TAKE A KODAK WITH YOU TO THE RACES.

Come in this morning and make your choice of a Kodak from our great stock of cameras—the largest and most complete in Australia.

Don't hesitate because you have not as yet used a Kodak. Its charm lies in its simplicity. Within an hour you can easily learn every detail of the operating of these superb Cameras. Every feature of the Kodak construction is included only after severe tests as to its effectiveness and reliability, and it is because of this care and thoroughness that the Kodak to-day encircles the globe. It is the most popular, and has the largest sale of any camera in the world.

The dark-room is unnecessary. The Kodak Daylight Tank overcomes all developing difficulties, and does away with the discomfort, uncertainty, and unhealthiness associated with close confinement in a dark-room.

Kodaks, from 26s; Brownie-Kodaks, from 5s. Write for a copy of the Kodak Catalogue if you cannot call.

WHAT ABOUT A PAIR OF BINOCULARS?

Your trip to the course will afford you twice the pleasure if you possess a pair of Ross Binoculars—the best glasses ever produced. Call in and test a pair, or write for further particulars.

THE PALMER CORD TYRES.

When you purchased your new Car, you naturally took the Tyres that came with the car. But NOW you can judge Tyres for yourself. Because Palmer Cords haven't a thread of canvas in them, because only airless, rubber impregnated cords are used in the construction of their foundations you will recognise that they must be BETTER Tyres than all others.

Ask the attendant for Palmer Cord Literature. Make a note of the Palmer Cord Performances—mark well their many points of superiority, and you will purchase them—next time—certain!

TYRE ECONOMY.

To use a tyre that is durable and not resilient is not economy, for the simple reason that if a Tyre is not sufficiently resilient to absorb the shocks due to the inequalities of the road-surface, the vibration is transmitted to the machinery and chassis with disastrous results.

BARNET GLASS MOTOR TYRES

are durable, and possess that degree of resiliency found only in the real muscle of rubber capable of absorbing every shock and jar.

BARNET GLASS TYRES

have proved themselves supreme for every class of car, because they possess every tyre essential in the highest degree.

BARNET GLASS RUBBER CO., LTD.,

THE DESIRE TO POSSESS

a Motor Car is often overshadowed by the fear that it will be an expensive possession, both costly to run regarding fuel consumption and wear and tear. So much depends on the Car that you select as to whether you can afford it or not. Select a Car that is constructed on a knowledge obtained of the requisites of a high-class Car at a reasonable cost. It is most economical on fuel—its parts are constructed of the best materials procurable—it runs with velvety smoothness and ease, and travels with soothing quietness, is especially springy, and possesses a fine reserve of power.

We will be pleased to show you a 16-h.p. Car, seating four persons. A complete outfit, including wind shield and hood, is provided.

For Town or Country use this Car cannot be equalled.

Call in and have a trial run; or, if you wish, we will mail Catalogue Post Free.

THE EVENT OF THE CYCLING YEAR.

OUR LEASE-RELINQUISHMENT SALE.

WONDERFUL REDUCTIONS.

Every day is a very busy day with us lately, and every day is a pleasant day for hundreds of far-seeing buyers. Our Lease Relinquishment Sale is recognised by Wheelmen as being the biggest event of the Cycling year.

We are going into our New Showrooms in Castlereagh-street shortly, and as we don't want the risk and trouble of moving our Pitt-street stock, we decided to clear as much of it as possible. Therefore, every line has been subjected to rigorous reduction; every price is a "must clear" price, and the goods are moving off very quickly. There are as well as remarkable reductions on Motor Cycle and Bicycle Tyres, Sundries, etc.

All goods are in perfect condition, and they're going at exceptional prices. So decided are we upon as near a complete clearance as is possible that we are not refusing any reasonable offer. Do you recognise that this is your special opportunity to effect on your Cycling and Motoring Sundries?

It is a duty you owe to your pocket to pay us an early visit. There are goods you want particularly—goods which it would be a positive impossibility to obtain again at the prices now ruling—goods which may be sold to-morrow; therefore, to-day's your best purchase day. Come right along as soon as you can, and make it a great red-letter day of profitable buying.

Make a note of every little requirement for the present, and any you are likely to want in the future. This is the opportunity of a lifetime, and opportunity as a rule knocks but once. Our Lease RELINQUISHMENT SALE is perfectly organised, we have a thoroughly competent staff willing to further your interests and assist you in your choice, and all prices are clearly marked.

Come while the selection is largest. If you cannot call during the day, remember we are open until 9 p.m. every Friday night.

We await your visit. It's your move now!

CLEMENT-BAYARD MOTOR CARS, £225 UPWARDS.

All since 1911 Models, ready for the road, and we are advised of 50 of the last European sensation in the form of the new 4-cylinder 9-h.p. being shipped, to arrive shortly.

WHY

are so many Clement-Bayards sold? Well, for many reasons, some of which we mention here—but the vital reason—the absorbing reason—the life and death reason, is "The stuff that is in them." The wear-resisting materials, the specially prepared metals, the critically tested parts, the guaranteed components.

A Clement-Bayard Car—small or large—has only the BEST of its kind in it; then every part is drastically tested before the assembling, and so, when a man buys a Bayard, he feels he has a machine that will stand up against hard wear—daily wear—and he knows he can trust his life to the reliability of every part.

He knows that his car will not recline at ease in the repairer's hands half its time, and he knows it will last half-a-dozen of the cheap machines being offered.

There are cheap cars being sold that are merely castings, and got up to sell—cars that it is positively dangerous to trust life and limbs to.

Another reason for the popularity of Clement-Bayards is they are without doubt the simplest of all cars to drive and to maintain, and so the ordinary man (without a chauffeur) can safely run one.

Then, owing to their lightness (and yet great strength) they are very economical in upkeep, light on tyres and naphtha.

Finally, they are 20 per cent. cheaper than any car on the market that is comparable with them for quality, finish, and reliability.

Mr. John Lee, proprietor of Lee's line of motor cars between Coonabarabran and Dunedoo, writes us:—

"The 12/18 Clement-Bayard car I purchased from you last October has given me entire satisfaction. I have no hesitation in saying that it is a marvel to stand the wear and tear over rough roads. Up to the present it has covered 40,000 miles, and to-day is better than when purchased. We have frequently had as many as eleven passengers over 70 miles of rough and hilly country. No car has ever had so much bad usage and less care. Everything is so simple, and my son (only 16 years of age) is prepared to take a full load over any road in Australia, sand and wet thrown in."

"Ah, why did my mother seek to renew the acquaintance with you? Why did Horace have you kidnapped into the desert? There can be no such a thing as the United Romance and Adventure Company. It is a cloak for something more sinister.

"Pshaw! What's the use of worrying, little woman? Whatever schemes they had must be out of joint by now. Sometimes I think I must be dreaming, little girl."

"I am not little. I'm almost as tall as you are."

"You are vastly taller in many ways."

"Don't be too cure. I am human; I have my moods. I am sometimes crotchety; sometimes unjust and quick of temper."

"All right; I want you, temper and all, just the same."

"But will they like me? Won't they think I'm an adventuress, or something like that."

"Bless your heart, not in a thousand years! I'm a pretty wise man in some ways, and they know it."

And so it proved to be. Both Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer greeted them at the pier in Hoboken. One glance at the face of the girl was sufficient. Mrs. Mortimer held out her arms. It was a very fine thing to do.

"I was in doubt at first," she said frankly. "George is so guileless. But to look at you, my child, would scatter the doubts of a Thomas. Will you let me be your mother, if only for a little while?" with a wise and tender smile.

Shyly Fortune accepted the embrace. Never had she been so happy. Never had she felt arms like these about her.

"What did he cable you?" she asked in a whisper.

"That he loved you and wanted me to mother you against that time when he might have the right to take you as his own. Has he that right?"

"Yes. And oh! he is the bravest and tenderest man I know; and below it all he is only a boy."

Mrs. Mortimer patted her hand. A little while later all four went over to the city and drove uptown to the Mortimer home. On the way Fortune told her story, simply, without avoiding any essential detail. And all her new mother did was to put an arm about her and draw her closer.

The Mortimer home was only three blocks away from George's. So, when dinner was over, George declared that he would run over and take a look at his own house. He wanted to wander about the rooms a bit, to fancy how it would look when Fortune walked at his side. He promised to return within an hour. He had forgotten many things, ordinarily important; such as wiring his agent, his butler and cook, who were still drawing their wages. He passed along the street above which was his own. He paused for a moment to contemplate the great banking concern. And the president of this bank was the elder brother of Ryanne! Lots of queer kinks in the world; lots of crooked turnings. He passed on, turned the corner, and strode toward his home, ecstasy thrilling his heart. Lightly he ran up the steps. Three doors below he noticed two automobiles. He gave them only a cursory glance. He took out his ring of keys, found the night-latch and thrust it into the keyhole. He never had believed in this putting up of iron-gates and iron-shutters. A night-latch and a caretaker who came round once a day were enough for any sensible person. He turned the key. Eh? It didn't seem to go round. He tried several times, but without success. Puzzled, he struck a match and stooped before the keyhole.

It was a new one.

CHAPTER XXI.

A BOTTLE OF WINE.

George stood irresolutely upon the steps. A new keyhole! What the deuce did the agent mean by putting a new keyhole in the door without notifying him? As the caretaker never entered that door, it was all the agent's fault. There was no area-way in front, but between George's house and the next there was a court eight feet in width, running to the dividing wall between the bank property and his own. A grille-gate protected this court. George had a key. The gate opened readily enough. His intention was to enter by the basement-door. But he suddenly paused. To his amazement he saw just below the library curtain a thin measure of light. Light! Someone in the house! He did the most sensible thing possible; he stood still till the shock left him. Some one in the house, someone who had no earthly or heavenly business there! Near the window stood a tubbed bay-tree. Cautiously he mounted this, holding the ledge of the window with his fingers. That he did not instantly topple over with a great noise was due to the fact that he was temporarily paralysed.

Here was the end of the puzzle. The riddle of the United Romance and Adventure Company was solved. At last he understood why Mrs. Chedsoye had sought him, why Ryanne had kidnapped him. But for his continuing his journey upon the German-Lloyd boat, he would have come home a week too late; he would have missed being a spectator (already an innocent contributor) to one of the most daring and ingenious bank-robberies known in the pages of metropolitan crime. There was Mrs. Chedsoye, intrusively handsome as ever; there was her rascally cardsharper brother, that ingrate who called himself Ryanne, and three unknown men. The impudence of it; the damnable insolence of it! And there they were toasting their success in a brace of his own vintage-champagne! But the wine was, after all, inconsequential. It was what he saw upon the floor that caught him by the throat. His knees weakened, but he held on grimly to his perch.

White bags of gold, soiled bags of gold, and neat packets of green and yellow notes; riches! Twenty bags and as many packets of currency; a million, not a penny under of that! George was seized with a horrible desire to yell with laughter. He felt the cachinnations bubble in his throat. He swallowed violently and gnawed his lips. They had got into his house under false pretences and had tunneled back into the Merchant-Mechanic Bank, of which Horace's brother was president and in which he, George P. A. Jones, always carried a large private balance! It was the joke of the century.

As quietly as he possibly could, he stepped down from his uncertain perch. In the fine fury that followed his amazement, his one thought was to summon the police at once, to confront the wretches in their villiany; but once outside in the street, he cooled. Instantly he saw the trial in court. Fortune as witness against her own mother. That was horrible, and not to be thought of. But what should he do? He was shaken to his soul. The stupendous audacity of such a plan! To have worked out every detail, down to the altering of the keyhole to prevent surprise! He saw the automobiles. They were leaving that night. If he acted at all, it must be within an hour; in less than that time they would be loading the cars. His mind began to rid itself of its confusion. Without the aid of the police; and presently he saw the way to do it.

He was off at a dog-trot, upon the balls of his feet, silently. Within five minutes he was mounting the steps to the Mortimer home, and in another minute was inside. The others saw directly that something serious had happened.

"What's the trouble, George? House vanished?" asked Mortimer.

"Have you got a brace of revolvers?" said George quietly.

"Two automatics. But . . . ."

"Give them to me," less evenly in tone. "Will you call up Arthur Wadsworth, president of the Merchant-Mechanic Bank?"

"The bank?"

"Yes, the bank. You know, it is just in the rear of my house."

Here Fortune came forward. All the bright colour was gone from her cheeks; the old mask of despair had re-formed. She needed no further enlightenment.

"Are you going back there?" she asked.

"Yes, dear; I must. Mr. Mortimer will go with me."

"And I?"

"No, heart o' mine; you've got to stay here."

"If you do not take me with you, you will not find me here when you return."

"My child," began Mortimer soothingly, "you must not talk like that. There will be danger."

"Then notify the police, and let the danger rest upon their shoulders," she said, her jaws set squarely.

"I can't call in the police," replied George miserably.

"Shall I tell you why?"

"Dearest, can't you understand that it is you I am thinking of?"

"I am determined. If I do not go with you, you shall never see me again. My mother is there!"

Tragedy. Mrs. Mortimer stretched out a hand, but the girl did not see it. Her mother; her own flesh and blood! Oh, the poor child!

"Come, then," said George, in despair. "But you are hurting me, Fortune."

"Forgive me, but I must go with you. I must!"

"Get me the revolvers, Mr. Mortimer. We'll wait for Wadsworth. Will you please telephone him? I'm afraid I couldn't talk steadily enough. Explain nothing save that it concerns his bank."

George sat down. Not during those early days of the journey across the desert had he felt so pitiably weak and inefficient.

Fortune paced the room, her arms folded tightly across her breast. Strange, there was neither fear nor pain in her heart, only a wild wrath.

When Mortimer returned from the telephone, saying that Wadsworth would be right over, he asked George to explain fully what was going on. It was rather a long story. George managed to get through it with a coherency understandable, but no more. Mrs. Mortimer put her motherly arms about the girl, but she found no pliancy. There was no resistance, but there was that stiffness peculiar to felines when picked up under protest. And there was a little more than the cat in Fortune then; the tigress. She was not her mother's daughter for nothing. To confront her, to overwhelm her with reproach, to show her not the least mercy, stonily to see her led away to prison!

George inspected the revolvers carefully to see if they were loaded.

The bell rang, and Arthur Wadsworth came in. Mortimer knew him, George did not. He drew his interest as it fell due and deposited it in another bank. That was the extent of his relations with Arthur Wadsworth, president of the Merchant-Mechanic Bank of New York.

Arthur was small, thin, blond like his brother, but the hair was so light upon the top of his head that he gave one the impression that he was bald. His eyes looked out from behind half-shut lids; his cheeks were cadaverous; his pale lips met in a straight, unpleasant line. There was not the slightest resemblance between the two brothers, either in their bodies or in their souls. George recognised this fact immediately. He disliked the man instinctively, just as he could not help admiring his rogue of a brother.

"I want you to go with me to my house at once," began George.

"Please explain."

George disliked the voice even more than the man himself. "Everything will be explained there," he replied.

"This is very unusual," the banker complained.

"You will find it so. Come." George moved toward the hall, the revolvers in his coat-pocket.

"But I insist . . . ."

"Mr. Wadsworth, everything will be fully explained to you the moment you enter my house. More I shall not tell you. You are at liberty to return home."

"It concerns the bank?" The voice had something human in it now; a note of affection.

OUR NEW STORY.

Our New Story will be begun on Wednesday, October 4. It is called "The Notorious Miss Lisle," and is a very charming example of the art of Mrs. Baillie Reynolds, whose stories are especially popular with lady readers. Peter Garstin is spending a holiday at Porz Gwenn, an old-world retreat in Brittany. He makes the acquaintance of the Lisles there, and finds the heroine an inscrutable and contradictory personage. None the less he is quite captivated enough to propose in an early chapter, and time and tide at first help him to his goal. The marriage is decided on in a hurry; but it is immediately discovered that Gaenor Lisle has a past. Complications arise in the most approved fashion, but to tell how it all works out would spoil a good thing for our readers.

NEWS AND NOTES.

Play in the tournament for the championship of the Sydney Central Draughts Club this week, resulted in the surprising defeat of Mr. John Lee (champion of N.S.W.), by Mr. B. Rickard, a young player, who by close application and assiduous practice, has made remarkably rapid progress since he joined the club a few months ago. But in the next round he fell a victim to the wily Mr. S. Brown, who played with extreme caution, in view of Mr. Lee's fate. Mr. Griffin won one game, against Mr. J. G. Miller, and three were drawn. Between Messrs. J. Lee and F. Matheson the score was even, one win each and two draws, and Mr. L. Shaw proved quite out of form against Mr. S. Brown, who secured three wins, one draw.

In consequence of the numerous rumours and remarks in British draughts columns, with reference to the intentions of Mr. Alfred Jordan, the English champion, as to the championship of the world, Mr. M. D. Teetzel, the well-known editor of the Canadian Checker Player interviewed Mr. Jordan, who states that he does not intend to issue a general challenge, but will not be averse to play a match with Mr. Richard Jordan, if one can be arranged. He modestly adds that in his opinion, the great Richard has a slight advantage over him. His main purpose on his return to England by the New Year is to enter the Scottish tournament, and he will probably have an opportunity of testing his power against the redoubtable James Ferrie, who is the present champion of Scotland.

The Edinburgh correspondent of the Yorkshire "Weekly Post" writes that the Yorkshiremen have left a good impression behind them. They were the "lions of the hour," and their victory over the cracks of the Scottish capital was apparently unexpected. Those who remained to visit Glasgow were welcomed by Mr. Alex. Boyson, the proprietor of the "Draughts World," accompanied by Messrs. A. Hattersby, J. Ferrie, J. Searight, and Hugh Macksan.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

LADY GIFFARD.

That fashions have changed is rather a trite observation, but it applies to nothing more than to history. There was a time, and that not so very long ago, when the public preferred its impressions second hand. The author was supposed to sift and refine his material, and to give us only the results, so as to provide us with conclusions ready made. Nowadays that is changed. We like to see everything in the making. We wish to go behind the scenes among the folk who never appear upon the stage, but who are responsible for the whole spectacle. We feel that history is after all not only a matter of the great deeds of great men, and that for its completer understanding we should be in touch with contemporary life at its fullest. In fact, we want to create an historical atmosphere for ourselves, and hence the enormous interest displayed at the present time in contemporary letters, whether they simply reflect the life of the day, or whether, as in "The Life and Letters of Martha Lady Giffard," edited by J. G. Longe, they have the additional advantage of connection with important historical characters.

Lady Giffard was not one of those who attained fame in any particular direction; but, as sister of Sir William Temple, statesman and litterateur, she was associated all her life with the famous. She lived through three great crises of England's history—the Commonwealth, or "Ye Great Rebellion," as she called it, the Restoration, and the "Surprising Revolution" of 1688. She took no prominent part in the history of her own times, but her lot was cast among those who were in the forefront of the battle. Martha Temple's life, indeed, was remarkably uneventful. Born in 1638, she was married in 1661 to Sir Thomas Giffard, an Irish nobleman, but a month later she was back again a widow in her brother's house, her husband having died of one of those mysterious ailments which so puzzled the physicians of the day. In spite of all solicitations she refused to alter her condition, and remained with Sir William and his wife, sharing their home at the Hague, Sheen, Moor Park, and elsewhere till her death in 1722.

The letters cover the whole period she was with her brother. They include not only those written by or to her, but others to different members of the family, which had come into her possession. Mrs. Longe adopts the plan of arranging the letters in chronological groups, and interspersing them with chapters of comment and explanation. Some of the correspondents are very famous—Lady Chesterfield, Lady Sunderland ("Sacharissa"), the Countess of Portland, Godolphin, and Sir William Temple himself—but the interest does not depend upon the prominence of the writers. The subject matter is infinite. It ranges from diplomacy at the Hague, and the military preparations of Louis Quatorze to the bad behaviour of Sir William's nephew and the qualities desirable in an ideal husband. Of the latter Dorothy Osborne writes to Temple: —"He must not be so much of a country gentleman as to understand nothing but hawks and dogs, and be fonder of either than his wife: nor of the next sorte of them, whose aim reaches no further than to be justice of peace, and once in his life high sheriff; who reads no books but statutes, and studies nothing but how to make a speech interlaced with Latin that may amaze his poor neighbours. . . . He must not be a town gallant, neither, that cannot imagine how an hour should be spent without company unless it be in sleeping, and making court to all the women he sees." It is satisfactory to think that Mistress Osborne realised her ideals in the recipient of the letter.

The affection between brother and sister was great and lasting. Indeed, Macaulay thinks it grew to the exclusion of Lady Temple, and after telling how on Louis' dangerous incursions in the Netherlands, Sir William, then Ambassador at the Hague, thought it advisable to send his wife and child to England, he adds, "Lady Giffard remained, for she seems to have been a more important personage in his family than his wife." Mrs. Longe, however, will have none of this, and certainly some of Lady Temple's letters to her husband imply that he made her his confidante in the highest affairs of State, no less than in ordinary domestic concerns. Whatever be the truth of the matter the menage a trois was happy and harmonious, both in the brilliant world of the Hague, and later when Sir William had retired to the cultured seclusion of Moor Park.

The letters teem with references to contemporary politics, intrigue, and court life. Some indeed would be unintelligible without Mrs. Longe's excellent commentary, which gives the clue to incident and person. Others are of a less restricted interest. The family has to visit London during the plague, and Lady Giffard gives this vivid picture of the city. They "found a dismal scene there, soe many houses shut up with crosses upon the doors, the people in them crying and wringing their hands at the windows, the bells all day tolling, the streets almost empty of everything but funerals, that were perpetually passing by, the difficulty of finding a lodging house, the fright everyone was in of receiving the infection with them, few going thither on any occasion, but flying from it at home; people coming in like Job's messengers all day with one sad story before another was ended. . . . It may not be thought wholly impertinent to set downe the methods which, under God, I thought they owed their preservation to; which I thinke a great part was a cordiall of Sir Walter Raleigh found in most Recipe Books, a soveraigne remedy against the plague, which they made and gave a spoonful or two of it round the house every morning, burnt Burgamot spirit, and made as many servants as they could take tobacco for a great part of ye day."

Perhaps the greatest claim to immortality of the Temple household rests upon its connection with a greater person. Macaulay tells how "an eccentric, uncouth, disagreeable young Irishman, who had narrowly escaped plucking at Dublin, attended Sir William as amanuensis for board and £20 a year, wrote bad verses in praise of his employer, and made love to a pretty dark-haired girl who waited on Lady Giffard." The man was Jonathan Swift, and the girl the unhappy "Stella." Naturally Mrs. Longe has much to say upon this association. Lady Giffard cordially disliked Swift; and Swift, not to put too fine a point upon it, literally hated Lady Giffard, among whose qualities was not a very keen sense of humour. Swift suffered many mortifications at Moor Park, and in his writings speaks with affection for none but his patron. But his most ardent champion could not infer from that anything discreditable to the other members of the family.

These are only a few of the names that appear in the pages of a book which gives an excellent picture of life in the latter half of the seventeenth century, and will be welcomed by all students of that period. It is illustrated by numerous reproductions of portraits by Lely, Netscher, Wissing, Kneller, and others. (Published by Allen and Sons.)

OFF THE MAIN TRACK.

Although the proverbial rolling-stone is said to gather little else, it manages to collect experiences for the benefit of its less enterprising but more moss-grown fellows. Perhaps it is hardly fair to call Mr. Stanley Portal Hyatt, a rolling-stone, because, as he is careful to point out, he has settled down and become a respectable ratepaying member of society. However, in his time he has been a wanderer over the face of the earth, and in his sojournings in various out-of-the-way portions of the globe has met with more adventures than usually fall to the lot of the most intrepid traveller. Some of these he has already given us in his "Diary of a Soldier of Fortune," and in a new volume, "Off the Main Track," he continues his reminiscences.

The bulk of them relate to South Africa, where the author spent many years, and pursued a variety of occupations, including those of transport rider, cattle and grain dealer, trader, and goldminer. The greater part of his time was spent in Rhodesia, then in the making. He arrived there soon after the Chartered Company had begun to develop its concessions, when that huge province was a practically unexplored wilderness, and white colonisation was represented by here and there a tiny outpost mostly with the word "Fort" prefixed. Consequently Mr. Hyatt is in a position to speak with authority on the early days, and his account of the life in these pioneering times is interesting, as all such accounts must be.

Unfortunately, Mr. Hyatt is often rather an irritating writer. He adopts that attitude of detachment and superiority which occasionally makes the Englishman so unpopular abroad. In Mr. Hyatt's eyes, to have been at a public school is an essential to courage, capacity, enterprise, good-fellowship, and all the qualities that make a successful pioneer. Observations like the following are frequent and unnecessary:—"As a class the officials were wholly inefficient—the majority had never even been in England, much less had it had a public school training." It is true that such a training covers a multitude of sins; but in some of the instances the author gives, it had a multitude of sins to cover. Mr. Hyatt has a hearty dislike for "colonials" and Boers, and is outspoken in his opinions of both. If he had had his way South Africa would never have been given a constitution; Kitchener would have had a free hand to administer martial law for 10 years, and after that time the continent from Zambesi to the Cape would have been governed as a Crown colony from Downing-street. Naturally the book will meet with a mixed reception in South Africa; but if it is any satisfaction to the "colonial," all classes and institutions equally come under the lash of Mr. Hyatt's pen. Little Englanders to him are only less offensive than Imperialists. The native, especially the "mission native," he regards with a baleful and pessimistic eye. All foreigners are anathema; but even the British public are either sharks, greedy for dividends earned with the blood of pioneers, or else the foolish gulls of swindling company-promoters. But it is for the companies, and especially for the British South African Chartered Company, of which Cecil Rhodes was one of the directors, that he reserves his bitterest denunciation. Much of what he says is perfectly true, for the sum of many of his charges is that the company endeavoured to put an end to private competition within its own concessions, and that was undoubtedly the case. However, an answer to the allegations of incapacity and maladministration is the development of the country during the past 20 years.

His prejudices apart, and they are pretty comprehensive, Mr. Hyatt has a number of interesting things to say about the country. With many observers he considers that the native question is about the hardest problem South Africa has to solve. The Kaffir, as long as you regard him as a savage pure and simple, has many good points, but civic virtues are not among them, and any attempt to civilise him is not only futile, but dangerous. "The writers of South African novels have done an enormous amount of harm so far as the settlement of the native question is concerned. . . . I do not believe it is possible to make a civilised man out of the South African native as he is to-day. You may veneer him with civilisation—that is a comparatively easy task—but the savage always remains underneath the covering. That is not a matter of prejudice or politics, but of natural laws. The savage is countless generations behind us in the scale of evolution, and no amount of teaching, or preaching, or legislation can make up for what he lacks."

A good part of the book deals with hunting. Mr. Hyatt disclaims all title of sportsman. He shot only for the pot, and to destroy "schelm," that is beasts of prey, from elephants to wild cats. However, his experiences among these make interesting reading.

The author was also a prospector from time to time, and he has much to say on mining, both ancient and modern. Rhodesia was once inhabited by a race whose ruins to this day attest their civilisation. They were also expert engineers, and by some it is believed that Solomon drew from here his stores of gold. At any rate they knew their work thoroughly. "Very few properties worth developing have been missed; the vast majority of these worked to-day had been worked by the ancients thousands of years ago. The ancient workings stop, as a rule, where the rich surface pocket of gold ends. These ancients picked the very eyes out of the reef, being apparently far better gold-miners than their 20th century successors." Mr. Hyatt does not think the prospects of Rhodesia, as far as mining go, are very bright. The small man with a light portable plant may make a living, but the day of the successful company is over. Indeed, he views with a very jaundiced eye the future of Rhodesia in any direction whatever. Pastorally he says it will never prosper, because of the epidemics which attack cattle, and in any case because the country does not produce suitable food.

There are other chapters on various subjects, such as trading, transport riding; there are descriptions of travel by land and sea in different parts of the globe; there are vignettes of life in outposts of civilisation and in sleepy, decaying towns of Southern India and the Philippines. The author has a vivid and a vigorous style, and though at times he allows his pen to run away with him, and indulges his prejudices unnecessarily, he has given an interesting picture of little known places and things. The book is well illustrated by photographs.

THE GLORY OF CLEMENTINA WING.

Mr. W. J. Locke has constituted himself par excellence the interpreter of the middle-aged man, or rather of one type of middle-aged man, the simple, kindly, somewhat ineffective recluse, who holds himself aloof from the world until some incident dislocates the even tenor of his life, forces him out of his seclusion, and causes him at last to "find himself." This is the type so well described in "The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne" and "Septimus," and the author returns to it again in his last book, "The Glory of Clementina Wing." Dr. Quixtus is an elderly widower, devoted to anthropology and good works, when suddenly calamity attacks him with Job-like persistence. His trusted partner absconds, his uncle plays a heartless and cruel trick upon him; he finds apparently clear proof that his wife and his greatest friend betrayed him; three of his pensioners return his charity with the rankest ingratitude; and finally, by way of anti-climax, that is true to life, his cook takes advantage of his absence at a funeral to get drunk. All these disasters throw Dr. Quixtus off his balance, and he decides to embark on a career of evil. In "Simon the Jester" Mr. Locke described the opposite case of a man who decided to devote the remaining years of his life to doing good, but found it by no means so simple a matter as our copy books would have us believe. In the same way Dr. Quixtus' career as Mephistopheles is a failure. He engages the three broken down adventurers to initiate him into evil, but discovers that sin demands a certain enterprise of soul and callousness of temperament which he does not possess. The lesser crimes jar on his refinement; the greater ones find him unequal to them. Finally the child of the dead friend whom he wrongly supposed to have betrayed him leads him back to sanity and belief in humanity.

It is the same child who is the turning point in the life of the lady who gives the book its name. Clementina Wing is a portrait painter who has devoted herself to her work, and to some extent unsexed herself in the process. She is above any feminine weakness, careless of her appearance, brusque in her manner; her relations with even the most favoured of her male friends are only those of a good comrade. She does not realise that her starved womanhood is at the root of the matter, and that it seeks a thwarted expression in these topsy-turvy directions. She sternly suppresses a growing tenderness towards a young artist, and engages him to another lady. But the arrival of the child arouses in her feelings that she did not know to exist; further, she hears that Dr. Quixtus is in danger of falling a victim to the wiles of an adventurer. Then Clementina's womanhood will not be denied. She arrays herself to do battle for the doctor, and we learn that she has all this time been a peacock arrayed in jackdaw's plumes. The issue is not for a moment in doubt; one repentant adventurer consoles herself with another, and Clementina comes to her glory.

It is superfluous to praise Mr. Locke because nowadays he is acknowledged to be one of the first of living English novelists. This book should add fresh laurels to his crown, as it deals with a bigger subject, and possesses more cohesion than some of its predecessors, while besides there are all these gifts of sympathy, and whimsical humour that we are accustomed to look for in his work.

MINOR FICTION.

If all ladies' maids had as exciting a time as the heroine of Mr. W. Le Queux's latest book, "The Indiscretions of a Lady's Maid" (Bell and Sons), the domestic problem would be less insistent. The book consists of various stories of blackmail, intrigue, and love, connected by the fact that in each of them the heroine tells the story, in which, by virtue of her position, she has played an important part, sometimes assisting virtue, sometimes defeating wickedness. There is nothing particularly novel in any of the incidents, and Mr. Le Queux would hardly profess to be a stylist, but he manages to keep up the suspense, if we consent to be mystified, and he tells his tale in a capable fashion.

In "A Parisian Princess," by Frank Somerville, an unsophisticated young French couple come from the provinces to Paris, where, after some difficulty, they find employment, the husband with a sort of journalist photographer, the wife as companion to a famous actress. There are some pictures of the Bohemian life of the Parisian studios, and finally, when the wife's affections have strayed towards an old admirer, the husband is conveniently shot by rioters in a vineyard strike. (Long and Co. Our copy from George Robertson and Co.)

From Nat Gould's ever-flowing pen come two more novels, "The King's Favourite," a racing story, whose scene is laid in England and this country, and "The Buckjumper," a tale of horse and adventure in the Palmer diggings 30 years ago. Nat Gould's ability to tell an exciting story in a straightforward fashion has sold over seven millions of his works, so that even if he is not a great novelist he is entitled to call himself a very successful purveyor of fiction. These books maintain the level of their predecessors, and admirers of the author will not be disappointed. (Published by Long and Co. Our copies from George Robertson.)

NURSE TELLS OF SKIN CURES.

"I have seen the Cuticura Remedies used with best results during the past 20 years. In my work as a nurse many skin disease cases came under my observation, and in every instance I always recommended the Cuticura Remedies, as they always gave entire satisfaction. One case in particular was that of a lady friend of mine, who, when a child, was afflicted with eczema, which covered her face and hands entirely, breaking out at intervals with severe torture. She could not go to school, as the disfigurement looked terrible. I told her to get at once a set of Cuticura Remedies. After the use of only one set she was perfectly well.

"A grown lady friend was afflicted with salt rheum in one of her thumbs, and she was cured by the Cuticura Remedies. Still another lady had dry salt rheum in both palms of her hands every fall of the year. They used to be so painful she could scarcely wet her hands until she began to use the Cuticura Remedies, which cured her. I have also seen them cure children of ringworm. The children's faces would be all circles and rings around the cheeks and the neck, and after treatment with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment they were completely cured. My husband had rheumatism on his arm, and I used the Cuticura Ointment. It made his arm limber and nice, whereas it was quite stiff before I began to apply the Ointment.

"Last May I had an ingrowing toe-nail, which was very painful, as the side of the nail was edging right down in the side of my toe. I cut the nail out of the cavity it made, and, of course, applied the Cuticura Ointment to the part affected. It soothed it, and in less than 10 nights it was all healed through constant use of the Ointment. Ten days ago I had my left hand and wrist burned with boiling lard, and Cuticura Ointment has completely cured them. I have just recommended the Cuticura Remedies to another friend, and she is pleased with the results, and is recovering nicely." (Signed) Mrs. Margaret Hederson, 77 Highland-avenue, Maldon, Mass., U.S.A., October 1, 1910. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold throughout the world. Send to R. Towns and Co., Sydney, N.S.W., for liberal sample of Cuticura Ointment and 32-page book on skin troubles.—Advt.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

To the Angel of the Divine Art celebrated by the poet must be attributed the gracious impulse, not unmixed with humour, which has moved the Melba-Williamson direction to reserve "Lohengrin" for this evening! Wagner and Derby Day! It sounds rather weird, but in the result we may reasonably hope to see the Sporting Lion lie down with the Lamb of German music-drama! Nowadays Wagner is "milk for babes," at any rate in his earlier development, and it must not be forgotten that six years ago "The Valkyrie" was hailed here with rapture. To-night's revival is certain to prove memorable, as the cast will bring together Mmes. Korolewicz-Wayda and De Cisneros, MM. Zeni, Scandiani, and Edmund Burke. The soprano and mezzo have sung together in the same characters before, namely, three years ago at Covent Garden, when Signor Vignas was the Lohengrin, Ancona was the baritone, and Signor Arimondi the basso, whilst Campanini conducted. To-night's performance must cause students to look upon the ups-and-downs of opera in Australia with wonder, gratitude, and pride. This form of enterprise has been identified with only four great managements during the past 40 years—W. S. Lyster, the Simonsens, George Musgrove, and J. C. Williamson. The annus mirabilis of all that period was 1879, when Lyster produced both "Carmen" and "Lohengrin" for the first time in Australia. These two works were first staged in English by the Carl Rosa Company (London) in 1879 and 1880 respectively. Signora Link, a dramatic soprano from the Berlin Opera House, who still retained her noble voice upon her return here 20 years later, was the original Elsa. Signora Fabris (who settled in this country) was the Ortrud, and Mr. Templeton and Signor Palladini were in the cast. "Lohengrin" was not seen again until George Musgrove's magnificently complete revival in December, 1900. Herr Gustave Slapoffski conducted both this (in English) and the German production under the same management in 1907. The artists were Mme. Slapoffski (Elsa), a soprano from the Carl Rosa Company, replaced in the return season by Mme. Ella Russell; Louis Arens (a robust tenor from the Baltic provinces, who sang Lohengrin with approval at Covent Garden a year or two later), Miss Enriquetta Crichton (a dramatic soprano from Valparaiso), Max Eugene (Telramund), Charles Tilbury (King), and Lawrence Mooney (Herald). The last four artists were from the Carl Rosa Company. The opera was delightfully sung and beautifully staged. In the German season we must gratefully recall the dramatic art of Mmes. Sara Anderson and Johanna Heinze, and of MM. Runger, Rupp, and Hans Mohwinkel (King); but the tenor, Herr Studemund, destroyed the mystery and romance of the character by his "too, too solid flesh" as the Knight of the Swan. Amongst the men the best-known artist was Mohwinkel, whose Flying Dutchman and Wotan were recognised throughout Germany and at Covent Garden.

Last Saturday, when Miss Esta d'Argo and Mr. Ben Davies opened their Australian tour under J. and N. Tait, at the Sydney Town Hall, the same management introduced Mme. Clara Butt and Mr. Kennerley Rumford to South African concert-goers at Capetown. These artists have with them Mr. Charles Barre, the violinist they brought to Australia about three years ago, who is a brother of Wm. Squire, song-composer, and their party also includes Mr. William Murdoch, solo pianist. The last-named is a Victorian, who went to the Royal College of Music, London, as a Clarke scholar. He has toured both with Mlle. Donalda, the Canadian prima-donna, and with Mme. Kirkby Lunn, and will probably come back to Australia with Mme. Butt. According to a cablegram to Mr. Frank Tait during the week, the receipts at this opening concert exceeded £1000. Mr. Nevin Tait is taking Mme. Clara Butt to the Cape as part of a world's tour, and the opening there, being a first visit to a colony so close to England that concert-goers are in touch with musical affairs at home, was chosen as certain to afford an auspicious send-off. Mme. Clara Butt and party will reach England again in January, will then tour there until June, and will pay their first visit to New York so as to open there in September. Mr. Nevin Tait has mapped out the tour of America and Canada to last until May, 1913, and the artists will then come on straight to Sydney.

Miss Elly Malyon, who is now making her first appearances in Sydney as Rose Carlisle in "Lady Frederick" at the Criterion, forms a link with the past history of the Australian stage through her mother, professionally known as Miss Agnes Thomas. This artist made her debut at the Sydney Theatre Royal in September, 1885, in "The Shaughraun," and it is interesting to note that, just as her daughter is now appearing in a brilliant combination with Miss Ethel Irving, so also in those days her mother played here with as strong a company as could be seen in such a play in any part of the world. The author, Dion Boucicault, appeared as Conn, his son Dion G. ("Dot") Boucicault as Harvey Duff, his daughter Nina as Moya, and Agnes Thomas as Claire Ffolliot. The cast also included Messrs. G. S. Titheradge, H. H. Vincent, and Herbert Flemming, names of weight with all who have studied English stage records. During that season Mr. Boucicault wrote and produced a new comedy, "The Jilt," in which Miss Thomas played the name part, but it failed. The artist, who at that time closely resembled Miss Mabel Trevor, recently here as the wife in "A Woman in the Case," made a great hit two years later at the Sydney Opera House as Mrs. Ralston in Sir Charles Young's "Jim the Penman," and this is the character by which she is still remembered here by all old playgoers. Here, again, as has happened right back to the period of G. V. Brooke and the Keans, the cast was excellent, out of all proportion to the size and importance of the small cities of those days. The name part fell to Harry St. Maur, a light comedy actor of repute from America, and Alfred Maltby, who created so many farcical characters at the London Criterion, H. H. Vincent, afterwards for many years at the St. James's Theatre, and Pattie Browne, subsequently one of the smartest soubrettes on the London stage, all assisted in the long run of the piece. Miss Malyon, who was then a child at school, left with her mother for New York, and in later life made her stage debut in England in a small part in "Cheer, Boys, Cheer," in which her mother played the chief comedy role on tour. Later the young actress toured with Edward Terry, and played at the Court Theatre, London, in a round of pieces, and was for two years with the H. B. Irving Company. In this way she has appeared as the mother of that actor-manager (Queen in "Hamlet"), the son (Dauphin in "Louis XI."), the daughter ("Lyons Mail"), and the wife ("The Bells"). Last year this artist was at the Haymarket in "Priscilla Runs Away," and just before leaving England she was in "The Sins of Society" at Drury Lane Theatre in a character comedy-part. Her mother, it may be added, is still enjoying a busy career, and has appeared a great deal in London in the Bernard Shaw comedies during the past two years.

Mr. F. C. Whitney, who has been tremendously "boomed" by the London press in connection with his project for producing "Der Rosenkavalier" at Covent Garden this month, is now accorded another half-column in the leading papers of exculpatory explanation. It seems that Richard Strauss from the first insisted upon an orchestra of 92, and a total strength, with chorus, supers, stage-hands, and the like, of nearly 2000 people. Then, again, the American entrepreneur could not secure the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. As showing the kind of talk which gets cheerfully into print nowadays, the manager withdraws "because a certain loss of from £20,000 to £30,000 stared me in the face." Yet a little lower down in his interview he names £50,000 as his "absolute loss" by withdrawing! These expenses are all set out, scenery so much, £5500 advance royalties to Strauss, artists under contract so much, and so on. Accepting these figures, Mr. Whitney would have saved at least £20,000 by going on! All this high talk subsides in the statement that "The Chocolate Soldier" will remain at the Lyric Theatre indefinitely, as it is on the road to a record run, but that he will at once produce the new German operetta "The Spring Maid" at the Whitney Theatre (London).

The University of Cambridge

NEW ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA

The University of Cambridge has achieved the greatest publishing feat on record by issuing the new Encyclopaedia Britannica (11th edition) as a whole, in 28 volumes and index, on terms which bring it within the reach of all who need the world's foremost work of reference. In pursuance of this great educational enterprise, the complete work is now offered—for a brief time only—to Australian purchasers at the minimum price—shortly to be increased—so that the prompt applicant obtains a discount of 47 per cent. from the price at which the work will afterwards be sold. Full details will be sent (gratis and post free) to anyone who forwards the coupon in the right-hand bottom corner of this page to the Australian offices of the Cambridge University Press.

For a full century the Encyclopaedia Britannica, in successive editions, has been universally recognised as easily first among works of reference. The entirely new 11th edition, in the opinion alike of reviewers and of nearly 35,000 early purchasers, is, by reason of improvements in its plan and execution, the most comprehensive, authoritative, and convenient encyclopaedia ever published in any language. The preparation of this new edition—which is in no sense a reprint of its predecessors—was undertaken by "The Times" after that great journal had demonstrated the existence of an unexpectedly wide demand for the Encyclopaedia Britannica, by the rapid sale in 1898 of a verbatim reprint of the 9th edition, to which 11 supplementary volumes were added in 1902 to form the 10th edition. But it soon became apparent that the new edition, in preparing which the editor appointed by "The Times" received ungrudging assistance from the highest authorities in all departments of knowledge, was too important an undertaking for any newspaper to carry to satisfactory completion. Steps were therefore taken to transfer the copyright of the Encyclopaedia Britannica and control of the new edition to a great educational institution—obviously the ideal body for such a purpose—and both are now vested in the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of the University of Cambridge.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica (11th Edition) is a New Work.

In the opinion of the University of Cambridge, the new (11th) edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is the most useful encyclopaedia for rapid reference and general use, as well as the most comprehensive and authoritative repository of general knowledge, that has ever yet been published. It should be noted, in the first place, that this 11th edition is an entirely new work—not in any sense a mere reprint of previous editions. The task committed to the editors was to make a wholly original work of reference, which should be to the 20th century what earlier editions were to the 19th. The high reputation already won by the Encyclopaedia Britannica ensured them the enthusiastic co-operation of the greatest living authorities on all subjects. Some of these had already contributed in their youth to the 9th edition, and found it necessary only to revise and expand articles which had long been regarded as classical contributions to learning. Occasionally the work of a famous dead writer, like Macaulay, Stevenson, or Swinburne, was retained because it was too good to jettison. Thus the continuity of the work was preserved. But these exceptions amount to less than one-fifth—about 17 per cent.—of the whole, and as regards more than 80 per cent. the 11th edition is an absolutely new work, written by the men and women who have taken a leading part in the discoveries, researches, and enterprises which they describe, and frequently embodying the results of recent research or secret information hitherto inaccessible.

The Complete Work is of One Date Throughout—1910.

Not only is the material of the 11th edition mainly new: its method is entirely original, in respect that the whole work has been under construction at one time, and the information throughout is consequently of even date. The simultaneous preparation of the 28 volumes of text—as against the piecemeal issue of the 10th edition during 27 years—has for the first time permitted proper editorial supervision to be given to the work as a whole. The current index, in which the main topics of each article were entered as soon as it was received, enabled the editors to detect repetitions and discrepancies, such as must inevitably creep into a work which has more than 1500 authors, and the decision to publish nothing until every article was ready made it possible not only to correct these discrepancies, but to eliminate all repetitions by the substitution of cross-references—thus, as the editors calculate, causing the 28 volumes of text in the new (11th) edition to contain twice as much substantial information as the 33 text volumes of the 10th edition, with the addition of only 2 million words, and the reduction of bulk—by the use of India or Bible paper—to one-third, without any diminution in the size of the type. No further edition will be published before 1925 at soonest, and the 11th edition will, therefore, remain the standard encyclopaedia for at least 14 years.

The 29 volumes
of the new Encyclopaedia Britannica, 11th Edition, (shewn in the front of this photograph) contain over 2 million words more than did the 35 volumes of the 10th edition (shewn in the background)

The Great Economy of Space Effected by the Use of India Paper.

A feature of the new (11th) edition is the issue of an impression printed on India (or Bible) paper. The economy of space thus effected is shown in the illustration reproduced above (from a photograph). To those who are acquainted with the previous (10th) edition, it will seem scarcely credible that the 29 slender volumes here shown in the foreground are indeed the equivalent of the 35 old volumes which stand behind them. As a matter of fact they contain over two million words more, and the reduction in bulk has been achieved without any diminution in the size of the type. The old volumes (which contained, on an average, 850 pages each) measured 2½ inches in thickness, and weighed close upon 7lb. The new volumes contain at least 960 pages each, but in the India paper impression are one inch in thickness and weigh but 3lb. The old volumes made a row of over 7ft wide, and weighed 240lb. The new volumes occupy a width of 30 inches, and weigh only 84lb.

The Syndics of the Cambridge University Press attach great value to this reduction in bulk, for it removes the one serious objection to which the Encyclopaedia Britannica formerly laid itself open. It occupied too much room, while the bulk and weight of its volumes rendered reference laborious and reading uncomfortable. It is easier to take an India paper volume of the new edition from its shelf with thumb and forefinger than it was to lift one of the old volumes in two hands; while for comfort in reading, the new India paper volume may be doubled back, cover to cover, and held in one hand, while the reader sits back at his ease.

The specimen pages for which the reader is invited to ask (see inquiry form at the bottom right-hand corner of this page) are printed upon India paper, in order that he may see for himself that its employment means no sacrifice of legibility. Indeed, it is believed that the reader will find these India paper pages actually pleasanter to read than those of any ordinary book in his library.

A cardinal feature of the association of the University of Cambridge with the Encyclopaedia Britannica was the decision that the work should be sold, in the first instance, at the lowest possible price. When the 28 volumes of text were passing through the press, at the end of 1910, subscriptions were therefore invited in advance of publication on minimum terms, in the hope that the response would be so rapid as to reduce the manufacturing cost to a minimum. Those who ordered the work before it was published received an advantage of 47 per cent. from the price at which the 9th edition was originally published, and at which the 11th edition will eventually be sold. The response to this offer amply justified the action of the publishers, for nearly 35,000 sets—over a million volumes—were sold in advance of publication, after which the special offer was withdrawn, and the price was permanently raised in Great Britain. It has been decided that the complete work shall now for a brief time be offered in all parts of the Commonwealth on precisely the same terms as were originally offered to subscribers in advance of publication. But this offer is only temporary, and must soon be withdrawn, when the price will be permanently raised in the Commonwealth to correspond with that now in force in Great Britain. Immediate application is therefore imperative on all who wish to secure the best bargain ever to be offered.

There is a subsidiary reason for prompt action. The sale of more than a million volumes has taxed the resources of the bookbinders so heavily that it has been possible to ship only a thousand sets of the new Encyclopaedia Britannica to Australian ports, where they are now ready for immediate delivery. This first consignment will probably be absorbed in a few days from the date of this preliminary announcement, and those who delay to send their orders will be too late to secure one of the sets now available. The publishers will do their utmost to supply the further demand with all despatch, but there must necessarily be some delay in procuring additional sets. Immediate decision is therefore imperative, if delay in delivery of the work is to be avoided.

The Price is Momentarily Low—the Terms of Payment are Easy.

The University of Cambridge, in issuing the new (11th) edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, has followed the example set by "The Times" in making the acquisition of the complete work easy for all classes of the community, however modest be their means. The greatest discount is naturally reserved for those who pay cash—it is a discount of 47 per cent. from the price which will eventually be asked for the work. But an arrangement has been made by which, at an increase of only a few shillings in the total cost, the cash price may be divided into 4, 8, or 12 monthly payments, to suit the convenience of the individual purchaser. Further, the entire work in 28 volumes and index will be delivered on payment of a single guinea, and the payment may be completed by monthly instalments of £1 1s each, beginning after the work has been delivered. This concession applies to the (generally preferred) impression on India or Bible paper, as well as to that on ordinary book paper, and to the durable and handsome leather bindings, as well as to the cheapest cloth bindings. The usual method of selling an extensive publication in parts has one—and only one—merit in the eyes of the prospective purchaser; he need not pay for his whole purchase at one time, but may do so at intervals, as volume after volume appears. This advantage, however, without its accompanying drawback of incomplete possession, is offered in the present instance to all applicants who desire it, for, although the applicant receives the whole of his purchase at once, he can pay for it in small sums suited to his convenience.

SCIENCE NOTES.

W. G. P.

ORIGIN OF THE SOLAR SYSTEM.

Continuing his researches into the evolution of stellar systems, Dr. J. J. See argues that the asteroids are connected with the periodic comets, and have been gathered within the orbit of Jupiter by the action of that great planet. It has already been pointed out that, owing to resistance to rotation in a discontinuous medium of cosmical dust, small bodies tend rapidly to approach the sun. The orbits of the asteroids are spread out from Jupiter to Mars, with a little to spare at either end. Dr. See supposes that such a spreading out is an illustration of the effects of resistance and collision, the small bodies falling in toward the sun much more quickly than the huge mass of Jupiter, which originally captured them. Dr. See would account for the origin of satellites by capture; as the small masses approach the centre of the system they tend to be caught by the inner planets. Thus, the moon may have had a greater mean distance than the earth, but by degrees it may have been brought within our sphere of effective gravitation. Dr. See, of course, believes that the planets could never have been thrown off from the central mass of the solar system, but that they were formed at great distances, and have gradually closed in around the sun. Much less therefore could the satellites have been detached from their respective planets.

TEMPERATURE AND FLUORESCENCE.

According to a now generally accepted view luminescence is a phenomenon of dissociation, in the course of which electrons are separated from their molecules, and produce the vibrations which appear as light by their collision. The formation of the electrons is very slow—a zinc sulphide screen exposed to sunlight has been known to glow for months after. The term fluorescence is usually used for the glow under an exciting stimulus, and phosphorescence for the after-glow when the stimulus has been removed. The effect of temperature upon both phenomena is peculiar. It produces great changes in the rate of decay, and fluorescence of one colour is often followed by phosphorescence of another. Change of temperature, moreover, frequently shifts the bands of a fluorescence spectrum.

MERCURY AND STEEL.

At ordinary atmospheric pressure mercury and steel have no mutual action, but under higher pressures the mercury molecule is very mobile. It has been shown that a pressure of 3000 atmospheres will force mercury in a fine spray through eight centimetres of cast steel in which no flaw could be detected by the microscope. Inasmuch as mercury and steel are used together in various pieces of apparatus this becomes highly important. For instance, cylinders of chrome nickel steel will support much less internal pressures with mercury than with water. Soft steels do not show this effect, inasmuch as their yield point is reached before the pressure is sufficient to produce it. Amalgamation proceeds rapidly between the mercury and the steel at high pressures. Where rupture occurs the strain is of a character to distend the pores of the steel and the mercury is thus assisted in making its way through.

THE OPINIONS OF EDISON.

Mr. Thomas Alva Edison recently paid a visit to London, and was naturally besieged by interviewers. He told some of them that the secret of success is keeping awake. There is too much sleep in the world nowadays. Eight hours is ridiculous: Nobody wants it, and nobody should take it, except when utterly exhausted by a long spell of work. He himself, as is well known, can still work continuously for several days at a stretch. Asked what he thought of modern views as to atomic transformations, he expressed a firm belief that the transmutation of metals was only a matter of time. As to flying machines, he has some novel ideas, and thinks that the inventor should follow the build of flying insects rather that that of birds. The days of steam power, he is reported to have said, are about at a finish. Electricity will be the motive power everywhere. Storage batteries will drive the plough, and agricultural labourers will have a working knowledge of chemistry and botany.

THE MAKING OF A COAL BASIN.

Mr. J. J. Stevenson gives an interesting account of the origin of a coal basin in connection with a detailed study of Decaseville, a noted coal area, about 400 miles south of Paris. The basin forms a rough triangle about twelve miles long, including about 30 square miles. The coal beds are of immense thickness, and the formation has been regarded as a classic bit of evidence for the idea that coal measures have been formed from transported vegetable matter; a basin being filled up by various contributing streams, which in this case can be clearly determined. The prevailing rock is mica schist. The region has suffered greatly from erosion. There were apparently at least four depositing streams, resulting in the so-called "delta" formation. The streams were short and rapid, as is shown by the character of the coal material. The essential feature of the delta doctrine is that the basin of the coal measure was formerly occupied by a deep lake fed by streams with detritus of all kinds. That the associated mineral detritus is due to transport there is no doubt, but the origin of the organic matter is not quite so clear. The author thinks it must come mainly as humus or half-decayed vegetable matter if the transport theory is accepted, but he himself is inclined to the rival doctrine of origin in situ. He thus has to imagine a long period of slow subsidence, during which the "lake" was never very deep, but took on more the character of a swamp in which vegetable debris accumulated.

THE MEANING OF EVOLUTION.

The optimist who is also an evolutionist is apt to see in evolution a progress to some far-off divine event to which the whole creation moves. Unluckily, there is nothing in the fact of evolution to justify such a philosophy. Life as a process is essentially adjustment to an environment, and that may as easily imply regression as progress; and progress itself, in the evolutionist's sense, may often mean deterioration. Completeness of adjustment often means the return to automatism and consciousness only springs from the conflict between the imperfect and the impossible. There are two fundamental facts in evolution. One is that structure is always in transition. The other is that every fresh adaptation implies regression of parts. All being is not becoming, but all being is an asymptote of annihilation. Specific permanence is merely the expression of a static environment. Plasticity is the primal quality of protoplasm. Morphology is more akin to music than to sculpture. The fundamental vital fact is the small hold the organism has on itself. The state of man suffers daily the nature of an insurrection. There is no pre-established harmony; but there is a ceaseless battle of the parts and the final adjustment implies extinction just as often as it implies growth. There is never a conquest without a defeat. Life among the body cells is full of forlorn and shipwrecked brothers, who will never take heart again. To see life clearly and to see it whole we must watch the derelict. Too often the spectator's eye is fixed on the forward leaping current, but the tragedy of life plays itself out in the backwash. Until we realise that evolution implies an equivalent of regression for every advance we are never likely to reach a sane doctrine of development. In a scientific sense only micro-organisms have an immortal soul. What's come to perfection perishes. As soon as an animal begins to eat of the tree of knowledge it begins to die.

FIVE BOYS ESCAPE CROUP.

"During the winter months my five boys were constantly attacked with colds and croup," says Mrs. H. Beanland, Dutton Lee, Howitt-street, Ballarat, Vic. "I tried all sorts of medicines for them, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was the only one that would ward off these attacks. It cured each of my five children. I have used dozens of bottles of this remedy, and within a quarter of an hour after starting to give it I have always been able to break up an attack of croup."—Advt.

GOLDEN WOOL.

THE NATURAL CONVERGING POINT.

FALLACY OF DECENTRALISATION.

II.

The vast bulk of the wool consigned to the Sydney market for realisation and for shipment to London comes forward by rail, and as the trains laden with consignments from the various districts in the north, west, and south converge at Clyde for the Darling Harbour railway station they lose the atmosphere of the country and make their first entry into the commercial world. It is usually in the dead of night that this takes place, when the suburban passenger traffic is at rest and the mail trains are traversing the tablelands, slopes, and plains.

THE TWO STATIONS.

Very few people see the wool trains arrive at the Sydney goods station, and only a very small proportion of the people have any idea where the station is situated. It is not a show place for visitors, and there are no architectural embellishments about the building that stands duty for the station. The two stations, the passenger and the goods, are not like the two Dromios. They approximate more to the Princess and Cinderella, with Cinderella busy all the time; for when the Sydney passenger station is taking its repose the wool trains creep down the incline at Redfern into Darling Harbour railway station, there to be shunted into the wool unloading shed, ready for the trollymen, with their teams, early in the morning.

The wool season may be an early or a late one; it may be continuous or broken—according to the weather, industrial conditions, transport facilities, and so forth. Allowing for variations, it generally commences in the spring and tails off in the summer. Some wool consignments are always coming to Sydney by rail, but the season when Darling Harbour railway station finds its wool receipts bulking hugely in the manifests is from August to January. During these six months some 690,000 bales may be received out of a total for the 12 months of 730,000 bales.

Generally speaking, there is but one clip off one flock but once a year; and as the consignments flow in, first from the early north-western and western districts, to be followed without intermission from the slopes and tablelands, the wool receipts are scanned with the keenest interest by all sides of the wool trade. The receipts, in a measure, indicate the supplies, and by November or December afford a very fair index of the wool production of New South Wales for the current statistical wool year.

RECEIVING WOOL CONSIGNMENTS.

There is no busier scene early in the morning in Sydney, and no greater handling of raw material of such value at one point during the day, as that enacted at the present time in the wool shed at the Darling Harbour railway station. The wool shed is a covered-in way for trucks and vehicles. It is a broadway paved with wood blocks, having a railway line on each side the full length of the building. The two lines are filled up with the trucks laden with bales of wool, and the waggons and trollies in the centre take delivery of the various consignments.

At 6.30 work commences by a gang of men in the employ of the wool-carrying firm stripping the tarpaulins from the trucks covering the bales of wool, and folding each tarpaulin for further use. Simultaneously in file the early waggons, mainly pair-horse teams, that are immediately backed against the sides of the trucks, commencing at the Pyrmont end of the shed. Within half an hour there are forty to fifty teams ranged close together, almost in review order. The later teams may be three or five horse, for five horses take longer to harness up than a pair. By 7.30 there may be 80, 90, or 100 teams in the wool shed, and some en route to the various wool stores. By that time many of the teams are on the move in the shed, and the scene is not so impressive as when the centre of the roadway in the shed is clear, and the horses' heads are all in a line, with wool being laden on to the waggons from the trucks. When the work is in full swing, and the hurly-burly is on, then the scene is very similar to the battle of Waterloo in the peep-show, when you can neither see Wellington nor Napoleon "for the smoke."

On one line in the wool-receiving shed about 65 trucks may be ranged up; all close, buffer to buffer; and on the other about 63; a total of about 128 trucks, containing for a day's receipts about 7000 bales of wool, worth about £85,000. According to the carrying capacity of the trucks, so the number that the two lines will accommodate, and so the number of bales that the trucks will hold. There are "D" trucks, "E" trucks, "F" trucks. Some will carry 56 bales as a full load; while others, not so numerous—"regular bonzers," 18 feet in length—will carry 75 bales. The old wooden truck may be coupled up with the new steel truck; both pressed into service on the lines when the clips are being rushed into store. Over 9000 bales have been received on one day this season, and over 12,000 bales have come to hand on one day in previous years.

NO CHAPMAN WOOLPACK.

There is no wool lying about at Darling Harbour to indicate the contents of the bales, as with bags of wheat; and all the bales, though uniform in size, are not of equal weight. There is no "Chapman" pack; some are heavy, and some are light. None have to be lifted. The bales of wool are hooked or rolled off the trucks into the waggons, and no machinery is used or required. It is all carried out most expeditiously by the few railway officials and the various trollymen. The whole of the unloading is performed by contract with one firm, J. M'Mahon and Co., the head of which is as prominent in wool-carrying circles as merinos on a sheep station. He has some 460 horses going, and in his turn puts on other carriers during the height of the season. Each trollyman looks after his own load, which may be 12 or 14 bales of heavy wool or 18 to 20 of light wool on a pair-horse waggon, and 32 to 35 bales with a five-horse team. The system of unloading would be comparatively simple if each truck contained only one consignment; but when there are three or four brands, and each one consigned to a different wool-selling house, then there is apt to be some jostling and argument inseparable from work that is not carried on quite so politely as selling woollens in a hosiery shop. If receipts have been heavy for the day, and all the bales have not been delivered to the store, the remaining lots are loaded upon the waggons ready for the morning, so that the trucks may be released, returned to the country, and no congestion encountered at the shed. By 4.30 practically all the teams with wool have cleared for the stores, which close for receiving wool at 5 p.m.

SYSTEMATIC HANDLING OF WOOL.

In the early days, when the bulk of the wool was shipped to London for realisation, and before the Sydney market had reached its present proportions and importance, teams would be at the railway station gates earlier than at the present time, and would carry on with less clockwork regularity. Two factors have contributed to the growth of the present order of things—the rules and regulations of the Sydney wool market, on the one hand, and the growth of trades and labour unionism, on the other. A system has been evolved, and within its scope are indirectly embraced the receipt of wool and the delivery at the wool stores. Closer settlement has made a change in pastoral affairs; large flocks are diminishing and smaller flocks are increasing in the State, carrying with them more handling and greater detail in receiving, storing, showing, selling, and shipping of wool.

Wool consigned to the Sydney market for sale cannot simply be dumped on any of the floors of the wool stores from the waggons as they come from the Darling Harbour railway station, and stacked out of the way. All wools have to be weighed, by sworn weighers, within 48 hours of the consignments coming into store, and the weight marked in ink on each bale. A rule of the trade is that duplicates of in-weights and descriptions of wool shall be filed within 48 hours from time of weighing; and where descriptions have not been furnished by the owners, the descriptions have to be filed within four days, but the weights must be filed within the due 48 hours.

Apart, however, from those rules, there must be a systematic handling of consignments as they come into store during the wool season. Wool is classed, and never bulked like wheat. If it could be sold on a f.a.q. sample, then no stores would be required; a few elevators at convenient centres in the country and at Darling Harbour might suffice; and the expert wool-buyers, who now come from the wool manufacturing centres of the world, could remain home, and conserve their strenuous energy for some less exacting pursuit than wool-buying in the Australian markets. No two clips are exactly alike; if the fleece portion of one is of the same value as another, there will be a difference in the first or second pieces, the bellies, or the locks. Here are a number of different qualities in each clip, and every clip must be kept intact in each store. There can be no bundling of the wool anyhow and anywhere, so long as it is under cover. It must be stacked in the order of its qualities, and each clip, or portion thereof, in store available as required for inspection and cataloguing. When 350 consignments come into one store between one sale day and the next; when the required number of bales of each lot in the catalogue is being displayed on the show floor, when wool already sold is being dumped for shipment, and all the operations are being carried on with great precision, it may be readily understood that there is no trade analogous to that of wool-selling.

CAPACITY OF THE STORES.

There are now 13 firms of wool-selling brokers in the Sydney market, each one a limited liability company. As some of these firms store wool in more than one warehouse, there are 15 or 16 stores in use during the height of the season. A new store is now nearing completion at Pyrmont. These stores are designed and erected primarily for the storing and showing of wool; but some of the floors may be partly put to use for other purposes during the off season. The Sydney wool stores have a capacity for the stacking in the different order of qualities, with each clip intact, and well-lighted alleyways between the rows, of no less than 700,000 bales of wool, with a show-floor space of over 40,000 bales. Upwards of 500,000 bales have been in store at one time, of the approximate value of six millions sterling. The value of the stores, without including the land, is approximately one million sterling.

In the construction of the stores full advantage has been taken of the different elevations of the land. Sydney is a city of hills, where the waters all round the harbour have scooped out depressions 50 to 100 feet in height. Where the waters have not eroded the hills, rock-choppers and excavators have been at work, with the result that some of the wool stores have a frontage to one street on the sixth or seventh floor, and a frontage to a wharf or another street on the basement level. Thus wool may be received on an upper floor and lowered by lifts on to other floors, or through chutes by gravitation to the wharf for shipment.

A SENTIMENTAL NOTION.

The most cursory glance at the provision in Sydney for the storing, showing, and shipping of wool, with the principal buyers for this world's market commodity located in this centre, shows how fallacious any notion of decentralisation in connection with wool-selling is. Those familiar with the trade know this; but there are others who sentimentally look at some of the ports north and south of Sydney, see the calm placidity that surrounds them, except when butter, bacon, maize, pigs, and calves are being shipped, and sigh for the time when wool and wheat shall put the nose of dairy products out of joint—everywhere between Newcastle and Byron Bay on the north, and Jervis Bay to Eden on the south. In the decentralisation scheme outlined by a Royal Commission the trafficable area of Port Stephens is set down at 125,000 square miles, the presumption being that the produce from that area should find its outlet for export purposes at Port Stephens. A further decentralisation idea might further subdivide, with outlets at all the barbound rivers.

This reduction to an absurdity argument may seem to be altogether too far-fetched, and so it would be if the decentralisation notion did not impinge on wool selling and export. For instance, in speaking at Curlewis during the Liverpool Plains by-election campaign the then Acting Premier said: "The necessity for a decentralised railway policy had also been recognised for years past, not only by Governments, but by the people concerned. An agitation against a railway system which dragged every bag of wheat and every bale of wool to Sydney, to be handled by Sussex-street and the Government agents, had been gaining force for many years past. The Liberal Government during its six years of office had set its face like flint against any concession to the principle of decentralisation."

AN ABSURD PROPOSITION.

What the bales of wool would do if "dragged" from the Liverpool Plains district to the Manning, or the Hastings, or the Macleay, or from the north-western slopes and plains and northern tablelands to the Clarence, Richmond, or Tweed, was not told to the woolgrowers present at the meeting; and in the stress of the election fight over the Conversion Act and freehold versus leasehold principle of land tenure no one seems to have inquired. If there had been any quizzing on the subject it would have been very difficult for the Acting Premier to rise to the occasion. The mere difference of the railing between the tablelands and the coast compared to that of Sydney, in order to arrive at nothing at all, would not have been very convincing. To have said that the wool buyers who come here from the United Kingdom, France, Germany, Belgium, the United States, and Japan, with the local trade, would prefer to meander up and down the coast to secure supplies, mixed up with butter, bacon, maize, eggs, onions, and potatoes, would also have been unconvincing. To have said that it is a sound principle and good business proposition for the woolgrowers of this State to have the premier merino wool market of the world belittled and multiplied out of all recognition, with the cost of handling and selling increased, splitting up the buying power and restricting competition, would have been a poor argument, and secured no doubtful votes.

VALUE OF ONE CENTRAL MARKET.

The wool stores in Sydney are only in full use during six months of the year, and if they are insufficient for the season in the coming years they will be added to rather than multiplied on a smaller scale at other points. The wool trade needs one great central market, and the more the trade is concentrated the less difficult it is for wool-selling interests to act on growers' behalf at critical times during the height of the season. International complications, trade disturbances, react momentarily on wool values, upsetting market calculations and generally adversely affecting woolgrowers' interests, whose well-being is reflected in the whole state for better or worse, as the case may be. The wool-buying and financial houses of the manufacturing world act as one man in any matters affecting their interests in Australia, and it will be a bright day for the Commonwealth when the woolgrowers and sellers can go and do likewise, at a day's notice. In any case, there is no room for decentralisation in wool-selling economy.

SELF-REDUCING CORSETS.

A MISNOMER.

To say that any Corset is "self-reducing" is an absurdity. The simple fact is that there never has been and never will be invented a corset capable of reducing the figure ever so slightly. What is worse is, that when the fat is there the best corset in the world only serves to throw it into greater prominence. What fat folk require is to actually remove the fat already formed, and to prevent more fat accumulating. No Corset can do this. But Formettes, a pleasant vegetable tablet, will. They are the only known, tested, and approved remedy for reducing fatness. They remove excess fat easily, quickly, and permanently, without causing a wrinkle or having the slightest injurious effects on the health. No person can afford to be fat, for stout people not only look older than they really are, but have a coarser aspect than slim people. Formettes strengthen the whole system, increase the appetite, and allow you to enjoy your meals. No dieting or exercising necessary when they are taken, and not only do they reduce weight, but will be found to be a splendid remedy for dyspepsia, sick headaches, and stomach troubles, besides rendering breathing easy, and banishing palpitation of the heart. Formettes are sold at 5/3 (fortnight's supply) by all chemists in the Commonwealth, or obtainable direct from S. H. Henshall, Chemist, 246 Clarendon-street, South Melbourne. THE NEW ENCYCLOPAEDIA

Three hundred years ago Bacon planned in his "Advancement of Learning" to set down the sum of human knowledge. It was an ambitious project, and we are not surprised that his task was never finished. However, in 1768 a firm of Scottish publishers, Bell and Macfarquhar, took up the idea again, and in 1771, the first completed edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica made its appearance. In those days the sum of human knowledge was contained in three volumes, but although Macfarquhar died, "worn out by fatigue and anxiety of mind," others have followed in his footsteps, until in 1910 the eleventh edition, with its 29 volumes, was published by the Cambridge University Press. The new publishers would not claim to expound all the wisdom of the ages, but they have certainly covered as much ground as is humanly speaking possible.

A new edition was badly wanted. Right through its history the Encyclopaedia had been revised and supplemented at comparatively frequent intervals, but between 1875, when the ninth edition began to make its appearance, and 1910, the date of the eleventh, there had been a gap. Certainly the "Times" issued a reprint in 1898, and in 1902 a supplement, which together form the tenth edition, but a supplement is not by any means the same thing. In the first place many who possess the Encyclopaedia do not possess the supplement; and in the second, even those who do, find it annoying to have to refer to two separate volumes, often only to find that the information supplied in the one is corrected in the other.

Of course the ninth edition and its reprint were shockingly out of date. For instance, the armour-clad ships of the German navy were given as "seven frigates, three corvettes, seven floating batteries," which nowadays is far from being the case. Of Africa, scarcely any knowledge at all existed save of the Cape, Algeria, Egypt, and Natal. Many of the most important departments of science were in their infancy, or not even heard of. Practically the whole of the modern industrial and socialistic developments had still to come. No mere bringing of the book up to date could be regarded as more than a provisional matter, and the Cambridge University Press were well advised when they took the matter in hand and produced the eleventh edition.

Even from a mechanical point of view the undertaking was an enormous one. There are 40,000 articles dealing with persons (of every nationality and of all periods, including persons still living), places, histories (whether of countries or of institutions), languages, literatures, arts, sciences, religions, philosophies, laws, manufactures, sports and games, with all the things or ideas connected with them. The editors have set before them as an ideal that whatever word may reasonably prompt a question should form the title of an article, and certainly they seem to have succeeded to an admirable degree. Their 15,000 contributors are drawn from every part of the globe, from Hobart to Kyoto, and Milan to Melbourne. They include not only distinguished scholars and men of science, but others who are not academic lecturers, but practical experts in the arts and industries. Moreover, they have managed, and a difficult thing it is, to avoid bias in their disquisitions. It would have been easy to secure a number of brilliant but partisan monographs, which, however, would have been outside the sphere of an encyclopaedia. It is far less easy to write with perfect impartiality and freedom from prejudice. Of course, there are times when it is impossible to avoid a statement which depends on personal opinion. For instance, a writer on "Arbitration and Conciliation" can hardly treat his subject adequately without giving some estimate of its success or otherwise, and such an estimate is bound to meet with the disapproval of a section at least. But so far as possible the encyclopaedia abstains from entering upon controversy, and confines itself to accepted fact.

This edition contains the very latest information upon most topics. In the article, for instance, on Polar Continents (to which Dr. Nansen contributes), there is a full account of Peary's exploit. Dr. Cook is dismissed with "he spent two years in the Arctic regions in 1907-9, and claimed to have reached the pole by sledging alone with two Eskimos, a year before Peary. He submitted the evidence for this achievement to the University of Copenhagen, which did not find it satisfactory, and Dr. Cook did not appear to challenge their decision." Shackleton's work in the south is described in detail, and Scott's expedition mentioned.

Australia comes in for a good deal of notice. There are articles both on Australia itself, and on its component States, and the names of T. A. Coghlan, Sir John Cockburn, and others (who are responsible for the historical and economic part), and of Professor Gregory, late of Melbourne, who describes the physiography and geology, are sufficient guarantee that the work is thorough and the treatment adequate. The populations given are as in 1906, and events are recorded up to 1909.

In other places we learn things flattering to our national vanity. In the article on "voting," for example, it appears that the modern system of the ballot card used all over the world is an Australian invention, which reached England in 18[illegible], and thence spread to America. Also that, easy as the method is, it offers many loopholes for the ingenious stupidity of man. "The 'X' is a very simple and well-known mark, yet in the case of Coulehan v White, before the Supreme Court of Maryland, 27 different ways of making the mark 'X' were shown in the ballot in controversy, and all of them were the subject of judicial consideration on which the Judges of even the highest court could find room for disagreement. Wigmore, in his book on the 'Australian Ballot System,' points out 13 ways of wrongly placing the mark, and 44 errors in the style of the mark, besides many other errors. These errors are not confined to the illiterate, but are just as common amongst the best educated people."

Many of the articles are really monographs of considerable length. That, for instance, upon socialism, gives a complete survey of the subject from the earliest times to the present day in its historical, political, and economic aspects, and describes the place it holds in various countries to-day. The term is defined as the "policy or theory, which aims at the securing by the action of the central democratic authority a better distribution, and in due subordination thereunto, a better production, of wealth than now prevails." In Australia, we are told, the central government is less socialistic than the separate confederated States, and the progress even of these has been rather in municipal than in State socialism. For State socialism in all its rigour the author takes the illustration of New Zealand. Our wages boards and arbitration courts are largely quoted, both in this article and in others, upon "Strikes" and "Arbitration and Conciliation."

Even in the lighter side of life we are not neglected. In the articles upon cricket, football, and rowing considerable space is given to the achievements of Australian sportsmen, both at home and abroad up to the year 1909.

This new edition should be widely appreciated. A new and very desirable feature is its compactness. The work is printed on India paper, with the result that the whole of it takes up less than one third of the space of previous issues, and each volume is light and handy. This is no small merit, for, as Dr. Johnson used to say, "no man reads long together with a folio on his table. Books that you may carry to the fire, and hold readily in your hand, are the most useful after all."

THE DANGER OF BACKACHE.

Backache is the sure sign of Kidney Complaint, for, in reality, the ache comes not from the back, but from the kidneys, which lie just beneath the small of the back. The pain is caused by uric acid and other poisons oppressing and hindering the kidneys, and until these poisons are removed you can never be well. The kidneys cause bad backs—Kidneys will get out of order; they are overworked; we expect too much from them; they can't stand the strain of incessant overtaxing, and they become congested, inflamed, and unable to perform their functions. Doan's Backache Kidney Pills—the special kidney medicine—give the suffering kidneys just the help needed; they drive out of the body all the liquid poisons, giving freedom of action and new life to the kidneys, and ridding the blood of the impurities which spoil your sleep at night, yet make you feel drowsy, heavy, and heartless all day. Thus, by bringing the kidneys back to health, the Genuine Doan's Backache Kidney Pills guard you against Dropsy, Urinary Disorders, Gravel, Rheumatism, Stone, Sciatica, Nervous Ills, and Depression.

SYDNEY PEOPLE
CURED TO STAY CURED.

ALEXANDRIA.

Mr. Walter Niddrie, 88 Buckland-street, Alexandria, Sydney, says:—"I suffered terribly with my kidneys. The worst symptoms were backache and rheumatism. Sometimes I would be doubled up with the pain, and unable to do any work. Reading of a similar case to mine being cured by Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, I got some, and before I had used them long I was quite free of the pain. Previous to using the pills I would often sit down, and it would be fully ten minutes before I could get up again to a standing position. I was unable to stoop down to lace my boots in the morning, and my wife would do it for me. I am quite free of the pains now, and I consider that without Doan's Backache Kidney Pills I would have had to give up my billet."

Ten years later Mrs. Niddrie says:—"My husband has been free of backache and rheumatism ever since Doan's Backache Kidney Pills cured him ten years ago. He never suffers with his kidneys now, and is in splendid health. We attribute this solely to Doan's Backache Kidney Pills."

WATERLOO.

Mrs. W. Benn, 46 Hanover-street, Waterloo, Sydney, says:—"I am quite convinced that I owe my life to Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, for this remedy cured me of Dropsy and other symptoms of disordered kidneys. My illhealth started with headache, then I got urinary trouble and dropsy. My back was always aching, the sharp, shooting pains were so bad that I would have hot flannels put on to try and get ease. The secretions were thick, and caused intense pain. I was fit for nothing, feeling tired out always, and I had bad headaches. My legs and feet swelled to twice their natural size; I could not put my boots on, and I practically lost the use of my legs. I was really very ill, and nobody thought I would ever get well. I tried every remedy I could hear of, but got no better. The doctors whom I consulted could do me no good, and gave up my case as hopeless. A friend advised me to use Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, and I procured these pills. The first few bottles gave me relief, and twelve bottles completed my cure. I am now quite free of the dropsy and backache, and the secretions are regulated. Doan's Backache Kidney Pills have cured me completely and permanently, for I have been quite well for two and a half years now, I cannot sufficiently praise Doan's Backache Kidney Pills; they saved my life."

BALMAIN.

Mrs. Andrew M'Donald, 5 Dennison-street, Balmain, says:—"For three years my husband was bad with a lame back. All the time he did no work, his back was so crippled. He always reckoned it was caused by the kidneys. He was sometimes free from pain, but at other times he could scarcely get out of bed, feeling, he would say, as if he were gone in the loins. Mr. P. Smith, of Cheltenham-street, who had been cured by Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, was always telling him to get them, and he did get some at last. These pills soon put him on his feet, and he was able to go to work, and has kept at it regularly ever since. My son also used them for severe backache, and two bottles stopped the pain. Doan's Backache Kidney Pills are an excellent remedy."

Mrs. M'Donald confirms the above.—"Eight years ago I made the above statement, and I am now pleased to bring it up to date by telling you that my husband is still quite free of every symptom of kidney trouble. My son's cure was also permanent."

Get what you ask for. Get Doan's. Don't accept something "Just as Good." All Chemists sell Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, and will give you what you call for. LIFE IN LONDON AND THEREABOUT.

(CHRONICLED BY HENRY LUCY).

WESTMINSTER, Aug. 25.

One of the largest employers of labour in Great Britain, whose sympathy with his workmen has been systematically shown in various practical ways, including co-partnery, writes to me on the subject of the late strike. "The real truth is the socialists have captured the trade unions. No man has advocated trade unionism more than I have done, or more constantly urged its necessity when honestly and wisely led by such men as Burt, Fenwick, and others of that stamp. But the socialists have got the upper hand in those unions and exploited them for socialistic purposes. I believe every workman should belong to a union, as I prefer dealing with the leaders of such unions rather than with a disorganised body or section of men. I object, however, to compelling a man to join a so-called trade union when he knows full well that it is simply advocating socialism, to which he is opposed. There should be two unions for each trade or industry; one for those who are avowed socialists, the other for those who decline to be socialists but wish to be trade unionists in the strict sense of the term. However, this is by the way. It is a time for clear thinking and firm action. A bad example has been set by such declarations as 'Ulster will Arm,' 'Ulster will Shoot,' 'Ulster will Fight.' Now, whatever objections those 'misguided patriots' may urge against Mr. Lloyd-George's Limehouse speech, he has never reached this height of setting law and order at defiance."

Happily, the strike has come to an end with the dramatic suddenness by which it burst into action. As Australia also has its labour troubles, it may be well, whilst the disaster is recent, to register some truths revealed in its lurid light. We in this country have seen that the genuine working man to whom a strike means a grievous setting back in money matters, and the untold misery of a foodless home, is habitually made the tool of various malign influences. One is dealt with in the letter quoted. (2) In Liverpool the hooligans who populate certain districts of the city, and are ever ready for a tussle with their natural enemy, the policeman, made the most of the opportunity provided by the strike. It has been the same in degree whenever the workman has "come out" upon what he regards as a reasonable struggle with his employers for better terms. (3) An influence earlier at work to precipitate a state of things which temporarily checked the growing prosperity of the country, and inflicted upon the labouring classes, large sections of which are not concerned in the strike, incalculable damage for months to come irreparable, is that of the executive committee of the railway men. Hitherto the railway managers have declined to enter into conference with them. They welcomed the opportunity of talking over troublous matters with deputations of their workmen. But they would not admit to the council chamber paid officials of a trade union. A reason given for this policy is [illegible] these men are not representatives of the whole body of workers, a large proportion of whom are non-unionists.

Naturally, this excited the resentment of the able and active persons directly concerned. It is not only a personal slight on them. It goes to the very root of their means of livelihood. If masters and men can come to terms in friendly conversation, what is the use of paying a salary to officials? How bitterly the executive committee feel their position has been shown in various manifestoes put forth by them since the struggle began. To quote one will suffice, more especially as it was drafted with extreme deliberation and put forward at the most critical moment. When the President of the Board of Trade met the two-score members of the executive committee, with the object of devising methods to avert the strike, he submitted in writing a series of five questions, and asked for written responses. One went straight to the crucial point, asking whether the grievances complained of could not be remedied in a way less drastic than a general railway strike. The executive committee made answer:—"Yes; by the suggestion offered by the committee to the railway companies yesterday to meet the official representatives of the men." There is the head and front of the railway managers' offending. Remove the ban that keeps the executive committee in the background and all may be well.

I am not blaming these men, or even criticising their action. But it will be seen from their own statment that they recognised their opportunity, once for all, to bring the railway managers to the knee and enforce their long-pressed demand for recognition, and they implacably exploited it. Meanwhile, the country was for some days in a state of chaos. Cavalry rode with drawn swords through the business streets of great towns. Foot soldiers stood with rifles loaded and bayonets fixed, guarding the railway stations and adjacent lines. Business was paralysed, and the gaunt figure of famine grew familiar in innumerable homes. On the day after, thanks largely to the management of Mr. Lloyd-George, settlement was arrived at, the general secretary of the Association of Railway Workers made a statement for publication in the press. Discussing the terms of settlement he said: "The main question was that of recognition, and that for the first time we have got. Sir Guy Granet and Mr. Claughton, representing the railway companies, met us before the Chancellor of the Exchequer." Here again at slightest touch leaps forth the first and most important issue, as the question is viewed by the railway men's paid officials. The urgently desired recognition triumphantly announced is strictly limited to the sitting of the Royal Commission. But the commission is authorised to make suggestion as to the measures necessary to avoid fresh disputes. First and foremost in the estimation of the executive committee is recognition of their status by the railway managers, and till that is conceded there is no hope of permanent peace. It is a small matter of personal pique on the part of the managers, of personal interest on the part of the executive committee, and may just as well be conceded.

The death of Lord James of Hereford removes a figure which for 35 years filled a prominent place in political, legal, and social life. When I first knew him he was plain Henry James, a member for the Oxford Circuit, not yet having taken silk. He was at that time a singularly handsome man, an attraction he preserved in degree almost to the end of a life whose length exceeded four score. One of his contemporaries was Henry Mathew, and in most important cases the two brilliant young men found themselves briefed on either side. It was a matter of divided opinion in court as to which was the greater barrister. They were balanced with singular equalness of weight. Henry Mathew, now Lord Llandaff, still survives, though long time crippled by rheumatism. He does not often appear in public, but when a fortnight ago his old friend Lord Halsbury led his men into the lobby against the Veto Bill he painfully hobbled through in the rear of the column. It was Lord Randolph Churchill who brought him into the field of politics, making him Home Secretary right off, and bitterly resented his disloyalty in refusing six months later to follow his benefactor into political exile. Henry James made his way unhelped by patronage. In the days of the decadence of Gladstone's power wielded in the Parliament of 1868-74, Harcourt and he, both comparatively new to the scene, sat below the gangway and made things uncomfortable for their chief on the Treasury bench. There followed the consequences customary in such circumstances where the mutineers are men of exceptional ability. Gladstone closed their mouths by making one Attorney-General and the other Solicitor-General, thus starting them on careers that led to the loftiest Ministerial heights.

A WOMAN'S LETTER.

For the Australian Summer.

LONDON, Aug. 25.

I need not tell you that the dregs of August are not conducive to the finding of novelties in the matter of frocks and frills. Therefore, I rather give you the advance fashions as far as I can, which can be used for your rapidly approaching summer.

First of all, discard all the narrow, squarely cut "tube" styles of summer dresses. Make up your pretty cottons, your zephyrs, your ginghams, for these are quite lovely, in more florid style, frills at the edges of the skirts, and more width in them. The cut is still straight. I was told this at Bradley's only two days ago, but there is more fulness. You disguise this by introducing flat pleats and pressing them well down. You get the back panel as a double pleated one, only it is pressed so flat that you do not see the extra material until some chance movement of the figure shows how necessary this width is. The pleat is stitched flat some six inches from the waistline, more if the figure is slender. Frills sometimes are interlarded with broad tucks of the material, and every kind of ruching is used now for the trimmings of dresses. You remember some time ago I told you the advance models had them. They are still a little ahead of our fashions, but they are worn by the best-dressed people, who find that the fulness of the ruche on a short skirt makes the feet look smaller. I assure you some of the feet I have seen since the very short tight skirts have been worn are little short of apparitions. You hardly credited the average girl with such long, large feet, and the strides of them! It might have been a Marathon race.

Coats and skirts have been the object of my chase after new models, for we are entering the recognised coat and skirt season. You can adapt the ideas to the coats and skirts you plan for your summer weather. I suppose there are times in an Australian summer that such things can be worn. Here our heat was so great that pro tem. no coats were seen. Women walked about in dainty white blouses and linen skirts, or else wore whole gowns of embroidered muslins or embroidered voiles. It mattered not so long as the material was thin enough. It was very trying I assure you. The skirts of such things as Shantung, tussore, alpacas, or the linens and satins (for costumes of all these materials are turned out by tailors) are made much upon the same pattern—a narrow skirt not measuring more than three yards round, some not quite that; a front and a back panel, with pleats let in invisibly; numbers of small buttons with sham buttonholes made of satin pipings or braids pleated and sewn on under the button. Coats are now fastened straight down almost from the throat, with round buttons as large as cherries, and something of their shape put very close together. The large revers and the fastening of coats somewhere on the hip are gone. The effect is straight in front, narrower, and yet not by any means tightfitting. You indicate a figure; you do not outline it. Sleeves are curious in coats. Instead of the manly coat cuff coming rather closely to the wrist, the sleeve flares slightly from the elbow. I expect this development suggests the coming of rather fuller sleeves to our blouses. The extra space is to prevent the crushing of the under sleeve. I cannot say I like the coat sleeve of a tailor-built coat so cut, but I expect there is a reason for it. Braid seems to be having a rest as far as the early autumn models are concerned, but it may reappear later on.

There are many curious little additions to the toilette which are of interest to you on the outset of your summer—the narrow apron tunics, made up with kimono blouse, and put on after the skirt. As you know, I am a devout lover of white embroidery, and it seems to me that in these aprons and plain-falling backs you get your chance. I would, "an I were a girl," have a design across the bottom of the apron and its fellow of broderie Anglaise with scalloped edge and lots of openwork. Or a piece of cut linen work, Richelieu embroidery, in which the design is buttonholed, and bars connecting the design made in buttonhole stitch, then when done the linen is cut away, and you have a very handsome trimming at the foot of your apron and the back of the narrow, loose panel at the back. Irish coarse lace insertion would be handsome. Then, again, there is a field for crochet, and so many people do this work so beautifully they might like to find a chance for it which does not entail too long a piece of work.

Aprons and Overalls.

Curiously enough, there is a rage for wearing pretty dainty aprons in the house over one's gowns. Anything more sensible I have not seen for many a year. When I was young, we were always expected to wear aprons to save our frocks. And later all good housewives wore them when in the kitchen or making their home confections, jams, cakes, etc. the edict is for pretty aprons, such as the French and German girls wear in their houses.

Some years ago Ellen Terry played in one of Bernard Shaw's plays, "Captain Brassbound," and wore, in what one would term the "infirmary act," when she had to tend some wounded desperadoes, a long, straight garment of coarse linen, exactly like the long scapular of a nun, falling straight from the neck, back and front hanging loose. It struck me at the time as being very becoming, and I mentally copied it, with the result that I made myself an apron or overall, which term describes it better, just like it, only in some broad green-checked stuff, instead of Russian crash. Well, this idea is one of the best protective overalls, with a good line, that I can think of. You cut a piece of linen, cotton, or anything suitable, folding it in half, for there is no seam on the shoulders, and no fastening. You simply get the right length back and front, and then cut what style of opening you wish. Mine was rounded, but it could as well be a shallow square. You put your head through, and down it falls in its proper place. But you will say, "Won't the sides slip apart, and leave the side of the skirt exposed?" Quite so; and here comes the newest development of this delightfully artistic garment. At each side of the apron you add two broad linen tabs with button-holes, and the same on the opposite side, with rather large bone or some stout style of button. Thus the sides are held together, and protect the gown. One of the advantages of this apron is that the back of one's blouse is protected. A most useful thing in London, where your steps are stalked by smuts and dust.

I have seen some of the autumn and winter models, and will try to describe them. They cannot, even in cold type, be more eccentric than they are in reality. I saw models by some of the first Parisian milliners—the people who create fashions.

The first hat shown me was an exact copy of the hat worn by King Louis the Eleventh. You may have seen Sir Henry Irving wear one, and if his son, at present playing in Australia, puts on the play of that name, you will see what I mean. The hat was made of black velvet, fitting the head closely, much like a pork pie hat, with the front of the brim cut out. This space in King Louis' time was filled in with a row of silver medals, a crucifix, and some tiny statuettes; and at his most wicked moments the old ruffian would take his hat off, and mumble some prayer over the objects of devotion he carried there. Well, in the model hat I saw this space was filled in, with, what do you think? Some flowers crocheted in woollen yarn. The brim was turned up with bright blue velvet, but these decadent crochet flowers made me feel that even the patience of the proverbial "dog" had been exceeded. You cannot imagine anything more ugly, and the thing was handed to me with the utmost reverence—"A model of the great Madame Pomme de terre." I forebear the use of the artist's real name!

Then came another small hat of plain blue frieze felt, turned up all round, with a common little spray of cherries and leaves worked in crewel wools. It was no better as regards the workmanship than a bit of work a child of 7 brings home from the kindergarten as her first bit of embroidery.

There were larger round squash felts trimmed with pleated wools and two wool tassels. The only decent thing I saw was a very close-fitting blue cap, rather like the Fez worn by the Persian Court, almost covered with some handsome blue, red, and gold lace. There was some style in this, and it suited a young Australian lady who had gone with me to look for hats beautifully. Wool, Wool, nothing but wool, trimmings all the time, till we left the great establishment from sheer weariness.

HENRI BOURASSA.

THE NEW CANADIAN LEADER.

(BY P. S. C.)

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier accepted the leadership of the Liberal party 15 years ago, and by bringing with him the undivided support of Quebec, drove the Conservatives from power after their 18 years of office, Labelle County, Quebec sent into Parliament for the first time a brilliant young orator, who was just beginning to win his spurs at the Bar. A grandson of Louis Papineau, the patriot rebel in 1837, he was dear to the French-Canadians, of whom Sir Wilfrid was then and long afterwards the leader. Possessing a magnetic personality, sincere to a fault, and endowed with the highest gift of oratory, he was a valued lieutenant of the ambitious Premier, and one day many years ago, before the South African troubles broke out, Sir Wilfrid, musing upon the day which had to come soon or late, said to a colleague, "When I pass away the King in Quebec will be Henri Bourassa." The day has come, but not as Laurier dreamed it. Bourassa reigns not as successor, but as victor.

Like most of great politicians, Laurier placed little value on consistency. The Liberals fought the fight of 1896, and won it under the banner of freetrade, but it was their destiny to give Canada the highest protective tariff in the world. Suspected in 1891, of undue leaning towards the United States, of which its opponent, Sir John Macdonald made the most, it became perhaps the strongest imperialistic party in the Empire during the Boer war, modified since by strange outbursts of nationalism, which at times verge upon indiscretions. While depending for support on the Catholic province of Quebec, it strained the loyalty of its followers by the Manitoba school agreement. But although his chief thus displayed political versatility which placed him in the front rank of Imperial statesmen, Henri Bourassa's breezy sincerity prevented him from approving of the ends or the means. He went into Parliament a Nationalist, and when he could no longer follow his leader in Imperialistic paths, he retired from Federal politics, to strengthen his influence in Quebec. That he has at length succeeded, the cablegrams of Saturday last are sufficient proof.

According to the "Times," in April, 1909, "It may be that the three men of first rank in the public life of Canada to-day are Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Borden (Conservative leader), and Mr. Bourassa." The English journal goes on to say:—"Mr. Bourassa is a man of irreproachable public and private character. He is studious but not austere, serious, but affable and agreeable in his personal relations with his fellows. He has the bearing of a gentleman, the equipment of a scholar, and the sobriety of a statesman. There are those who say that he was the most attractive speaker in the House of Commons (Ottawa), and he is as effective on the platform as he is in Parliament. It is certain that he is disinterested. He is susceptible neither to bribery nor to flattery. He has contempt for petty partisan disputes, and all political knavery. And if he so willed he could have been in the Federal Cabinet years ago." It would be difficult to add anything to such praise. Whether we agree or not with his politics, we must admit that a man with such ideals and bearing is an honour to the Empire to which we all belong.

Mr. Bourassa was Canadian secretary to the Alaskan Boundary Commission under Lord Herschell in 1898, but next year the first rift between him and Laurier began to appear. When in October, 1899, the Premier decided to send a contingent to South Africa, Bourassa, with two of his provincial colleagues, Monet and Angers, bitterly opposed him. So earnest were they that the Premier hesitated for a moment, and then went on. Bourassa and Tarte, Minister for Works, left the French districts, and sought to rouse the English-speaking provinces against the Government, but Laurier exerted all his strength and dominated the Opposition. The fiery young "Nationalist" resigned his seat, was triumphantly returned, and then carried the war into the Dominion Parliament. According to the "Times,":—"In these discussions he rose to a high level of Parliamentary oratory; he went to the roots of the issue, and in power of presentation and logical handling of his material, his speeches were able and noteworthy performances."

Two other events drove him quite out of the Laurier camp. The new provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta (called after Father Albert Lacombe, the missionary) were about to receive Constitutions, and Bourassa became the political representative of the Catholic education claims, which he wished to have inserted in the Constitutions. In this controversy he raised himself to the leading position in the House, and his power, said the "Times," seemed to increase with his isolation. He obtained much more favourable terms than his party had received in Manitoba. The other provocative of his denunciation was Mr. Chamberlain's preferential trade scheme. He found himself here in the same boat with Goldwin Smith. On one occasion when the Governor-General, Lord Minto, made some mild reference to Imperial bonds of trade, Bourassa threatened him with deportation.

But Henri Bourassa is not anti-British. He fears and dislike the United States, not England. He is Canadian first, and after that of all connections he prefers the English one. He wrote some articles for the "Empire Review" in 1902, and these few sentences fairly comprehend his attitude towards Imperialism:—"The blood connexion and the pride in Imperial power and glory having no claims upon him (the French Canadian), what sentiment can he be expected to entertain for New Zealand or Australia, South Africa or India, for countries and populations entirely foreign to him, with which he has no relations, intellectual or political, and much less commercial intercourse than he has with the United States, France, Germany, or Belgium? By the motherland he feels that he has done his duty; by the Empire he does not feel that he has any duty to perform. He is prepared to sacrifice his racial principles for Canadian unity, and he thinks that the Anglo-Canadian should be prepared to study the problems of imperialism from a purely Canadian standpoint."

When Henri Bourassa retired from the Dominion Parliament, and decided to cultivate the provincial politics of Quebec, in the atmosphere which gave Cartier, Laurier, Langevin, and Mercier to the Dominion, he did it with the limelight full upon him. Gouin, the ally of Laurier, was Premier of Quebec, and there was practically no opposition. His seat in Montreal had only been once challenged in nine years, and his majority then was 2916. Bourassa chose this contest. He fell on the electors like a whirlwind. No halls could hold his audiences. He addressed 10,000 at a time, and processions followed his carriage through the streets. Gouin went down before his onset, and he had scored "one" against Sir Wilfred Laurier.

From that date he worked for this election of 1911. He started a paper called "Devoir" to spread his principles; he lectured, and organised, and wrote against the Government. But it is only within the past few months that he has allied himself with Mr. Borden and the Conservatives. Looking at Borden's career, there cannot be much in common between them, and if Sir Wilfrid Laurier retires it is not improbable that Bourassa will find himself in his rightful camp. For, as one of his opponents put it during his contest with Gouin, "he is no Conservative." He is a man of great eloquence and ability, who deliberately seeks to evoke the spirits of race and religion. Monarchic in principle, aristocratic in preference, criticising severely the leader whom he still admires, he is a Radical in theory, with the manners of a grand seigneur.

Mr. Bourassa, who is yet only 43 years of age, has great possibilities at his feet. He has never been tried as an administrator, and of his success or otherwise in that sphere no doubt a few months will tell. But if he can earn half the praise as a statesman that he has received as a speaker, and as a man of honour, Canada will have a worthy successor of Macdonald and Laurier.

THE MODERN MAORI.

(BY G. ALLHUSEN.)

To gain some idea of what the race has undergone as a result of contact with Europeans (which means the introduction of firearms and disease), it may be as well to remark that the first generation or period of three decades saw their numbers reduced by one-half. This we have on the authority of the early settlers. It is, of course, only an estimate, but not very wide of the mark. Ever since then people who have taken an interest in the race have carefully watched the population statistics as they have been taken from time to time. For long it looked as though the race was doomed to extinction. Consumption, typhoid fever, and infant mortality were the natural outcome of insanitary living, the punishment which Nature meted out for the infringement of her laws. At last there came a period, about 1890, when the decrease in numbers ceased. For a decade they held their own, and now the latest census shows their numbers to be 49,550, an increase of 1800 in the last five years. That this is due to a more enlightened mode of living may be proved by an analysis of the statistics. This shows an increase of 1100 in the East Coast districts, the locality which has come most directly under the influence of the Young Maori party.

This Young Maori party, under the leadership of the Hon. A. T. Ngata, is the force which is going to regenerate the Maori. Composed, for the most part, of enlightened and well-educated young Maoris, they have banded themselves together for the moral and physical advancement of their race, for the recovery and preservation of old-time myths and customs, which were in danger of being lost altogether. There are a great many songs and dances which can only be preserved by the Maori himself, which lose all vitality in the cold and dead medium of printer's ink.

But the most important work undertaken by this Young Maori Party is the regeneration of their race. It is typical of their outlook upon life. They realise that their only hope lies in healthy living and undertaking all the responsibilities of citizenship, to work shoulder to shoulder with the pakeha. Already the cry goes up: "Give us equal facilities for dealing with our lands to those enjoyed by the pakeha." A demand which must be granted in the near future. For the Maori is capable of holding his own beside the pakeha in any industry or calling. This has long been recognised by those at the head of affairs. Already the Maoris are represented by one member in the Upper House and four in the House of Representatives. This is in reality a more liberal representation than that allotted to Europeans, viz., one for every 12,000 Europeans and one for every 10,000 Maoris.

At first sight it seems rather an anomaly that the Maori should have equal representation in Parliament with the Europeans, and yet be denied freedom in dealing with their own land. The chief reason for this is the communal system under which their land is held. But as rapidly as possible the land is being individualised, surveyed, and cut up, so that this grievance will be removed before long. That it is a very real grievance may be proved by a single instance. A man owns 1000 acres in a block of 25,000 acres near Mangakahia. As the land is not individualised, he can neither sell, lease, nor work it himself. He therefore lives in a state of poverty, going out to work occasionally on the roads or in the bush as opportunity offers, while his land remains a perfectly useless asset to his family to the potential value of £1500. There are hundreds and, possibly, thousands in a similar position. But there are indications that these disadvantages will be overcome. Large meetings have been held at Waahi, near Huntly, in the Waikato, to deal with land questions, and the Government has recently purchased large blocks from the native owners for the purposes of settlement.

Meanwhile, for the most part, the Maoris live in their villages or kaingas in a delightfully free-and-easy style. Each family possesses enough land to supply all domestic requirements in the shape of kumeras or sweet potatoes, English potatoes, and maize. If they are situated near the sea fish and shellfish supplement their needs, so that by simple and by no means arduous toil the necessaries of life are always assured. But civilisation has brought with it many needs which cannot be satisfied without money, chief among which are the adornment of the person, the expenses of race meetings and land courts.

And so the Maori offers himself on the labour market. Generally speaking, he is a good and intelligent workman, asking and receiving pay on an equal scale with the European. They make splendid bushmen and shearers, nearly all the East Coast sheds being worked by Maori hands. But they have the great objection of occasionally leaving in a body in the middle of their work to attend a tangi or wake in honour of some deceased member of the tribe. Allowance has generally to be made for this, and the work is eventually completed in a satisfactory manner.

In all the more important kaingas there is a native school, conducted by a European, who must be a married man, and teach the children in English. The general curriculum is the same as that obtaining in the European State schools, so that the rising generation are sent forth well grounded in the three R's, capable of holding their own in the battle of life. And not only this, but the more promising boys and sons of well-to-do chiefs can proceed to a secondary school, such as Te Aute College, in Hawke's Bay, founded by Bishop Williams, which turns out a superior class of individual, who will compare favourably with any member of the upper middle class of European origin. From here a considerable number hav entered the several universities of the Dominion, and emerged as doctors, lawyers, and divines.

It will be seen, therefore, that the Maori is capable of taking his place in any capacity required by a civilised community. In no case is this more distinctly proved than in that of the Hon. Sir James Carroll, who, though a half-caste, has twice held the post of Acting Premier in the absence of Sir Joseph Ward, and who is acknowledged to be the most brilliant orator in the Dominion, receiving the honour of knighthood on the occasion of the King's coronation.

It is the fact that the intellectual standard of the Maori is such a high one which makes them such an interesting race to the ethnologist. It is also this which makes it worth while to consider their religious beliefs. Originally their religion was chaos, a kind of hero or ancestor worship, mingled with superstition of a most amazing kind. They had a most elaborate ritual for the more important ceremonies of life, in which Tapu and the sacredness of the chief took a leading part, but which there is no space to enter on here.

But with the advent of the missionaries Christianity made considerable headway amongst them. It is true that the Pakeha God was accepted at first because he was considered the strongest and most helpful in war, but, as the years passed, he was accepted in a truer and more reverential spirit. For many years the Maoris observed Christianity in such an orthodox fashion that they might have been held up as an example to Europeans. Then their education and independent thought began to assert itself. At the present day many have drifted into a form of agnosticism and superstition, but the majority still retain the outward semblance of Christianity, according to its multifarious sects, just as the Europeans do around them.

It speaks a great deal for their intellectual independence of thought that they have been able to formulate religions or sects of their own in different parts of the country. The oldest is that founded by Te Kooti, the old outlaw revolutionary of the sixties. It is called the Ringa Tu Church, or the Church of the Uplifted Hand, and consists of a blending of various Christian sects and a teaching of the Old Testament. To the uninitiated the chief point about the religion seems to be the observance of Saturday as a day of rest, instead of Sunday.

More recently another prophet has arisen, named Rua at Mangopohatu, in the Urewera country. He claims to be a sort of Messiah, who acts as an intermediary between man and God. He has gathered together a considerable following, who can always be recognised by their long, unshorn locks which hang over their shoulders, giving them a most picturesque appearance. He wields considerable influence by virtue of his divine attributes, and has prospered considerably in a material way, taking unto himself no less than nine wives. This instance of polygamy, it may be stated in passing, is almost unique, the Maori being strictly monogamous to-day. The observance of his religion consists, to a great extent, in singing or chanting hymns. As the Maoris have splendid voices, and a very good ear for music, there is nothing finer in life than to hear a company of them singing a hymn in the early morning while the daylight hovers about the bush-clad mountain tops of their wild home.

THE CHURCHES.

WORLD'S LARGEST DIOCESE.

A diocese of 2,000,000 square miles sounds on a first hearing like the famous report of Mark Twain's death—greatly exaggerated—particularly when one is informed that this remarkable diocese is in America. Yet it actually exists and flourishes under the vigorous direction of the Right Rev. L. F. Blair, who, in addition to being Anglican Bishop of Falkland Islands, exercises authority over churchmen for 6000 miles along the western coast of South America, including the five republics of Chili, Peru, Bolivia, Ecuador, and Colombia. Dr. Blair declares that thousands of English people are going to these parts owing to the expansion of trade, a third of which is in British hands. For this reason he is doing his best to equip the British communities residing in these countries religiously, educationally, and medically, in anticipation of the great boom in commerce that will result from the opening of the Panama Canal. As things are, he has only 14 churches and chaplains to meet the wants of the widely scattered British settlers, and he is anxious to establish more churches and chaplains, good schools with English teachers, hospitals and nursing homes with skilled medical men. "When in 1915 the opening of the Panama Canal takes place," confidently asserts Dr. Blair, "with the consequent rush to these now little known countries, the British newcomers will find their old Church already firmly established, ready with the offer of spiritual, educational, and medical help to all her sons." Strange to say, Dr. Blair, who returned to England last April to collect £100,000 for church work in his huge diocese, is quite a young man, and was only consecrated last year.

The Anglican Synod, on Tuesday afternoon, on the motion of Archdeacon Gunther, passed a motion of sympathy in connection with the death of Bishop Camidge, at Bathurst.

The Bishop of North Queensland supports an appeal by the churchwardens of the parish of Charters Towers for clerical help. The churchwardens say:—"The parish of Charters Towers, North Queensland, for which we are appealing for clerical help, is probably unique in Australia, inasmuch as the whole city, Charters Towers, together with two large shires, form an ecclesiastical unit." Bishop Frodsham, in endorsing the appeal, writes:—"It is impossible to overestimate the strategic importance of the Church occupying these new and developing mining camps and townships. Men of devotion and ability may at the present stage place their mark upon the future of tropical Australia, and do much to win North Queensland for a real, not a nominal, Christianity. Our appeal is directed not to self-interest, but to devotion to the Church."

The statistics of the Church Missionary Society show that in the past 20 years its educational institutions have increased from 1700 to 2800.

At St. Clement's, Mosman, last Tuesday, Gounod's "Redemption" (part III.) was rendered by the choir. The Rev. E. Potter gave a short address on Gounod.

Archbishop Kelly, following in the footsteps of the late Cardinal Moran, is pushing on towards completion the many works inaugurated by his Eminence. Dearest to the heart of the deceased prelate was the finishing of St. Mary's Cathedral, within which his mortal remains are at rest.

Archbishop Carr will on Friday next celebrate the 25th anniversary of his appointment as Archbishop of Melbourne. Archbishop Kelly intends to be present.

By the Matunga, which arrived in Sydney on Tuesday, the Rev. Father Clauser, who is attached to the Yule Island mission, and has been stationed at the Mafulu mission, 80 miles inland, was a passenger. By the same boat came Sister Mary Clare, of the Order of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, who has been absent from Sydney for 27 years. She was one of the first white women in New Guinea.

The Presbytery of North Sydney has nominated the Rev. Thomas Morgan, of Mill Hill, Waverley, as Moderator of the State Presbyterian Assembly.

A floral fair was held recently, extending over three days, in the Princes Theatre, Gulgong, in aid of the building fund of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Gulgong. The gross amount taken was £130. The success of the fair was in a great measure due to the hon. secretary, Miss Macreadie, and other ladies.

The Rev. W. A. Stevely, M.A., from the United Free Church of Scotland, will on Wednesday evening next be ordained by the Presbytery of Sydney in the church at Stanmore, and inducted into the pastoral charge of that congregation.

The annual meetings of the Congregational Union begin on Monday fortnight, when the Chairman-elect, the Rev. Principal Thatcher, M.A., B.D., will deliver his address. The mornings of Tuesday and Wednesday are to be devoted to the discussion of papers on:—1. The sense of personal responsibility: Is it declining? (a) In the home; (b) in business; (c) in politics. 2. Immortality—doctrine and influences. On Thursday morning there will be a conference on home missions. The afternoon sessions will be devoted to business.

A special evening session will be held on Tuesday, October 17, to consider the question of the union of the Churches. On Wednesday evening, October 18, the home mission festival will be held, when the Kurri Kurri male choir will sing. On Friday afternoon a special women's session will be held, when papers will be discussed on the following subject:—1. That the tendencies of modern life have weakened—(a)—woman's sense of responsibility for the spiritual training of her children; (b) her attitude to the church. 2. The result of this to the nation.

The Rev. W. M. Carrington has resigned the pastorate of the Arncliffe Congregational Church.

As a result of an appeal by the President of the Queensland Methodist Conference for home mission workers, a number of English Methodists have volunteered.

The Methodist Centenary Fund campaign is still being prosecuted vigorously. The Rev. W. Woolls Rutledge secured £1000 last week from Illawarra Methodists.

The South Australian Parliament has passed the bill authorising a separate New Zealand Methodist Conference. Mr. Swinburne is in charge of the bill now before the Victorian State Parliament. In New South Wales the bill has passed the Legislative Council, and is now before the Legislative Assembly.

The annual assembly of the Baptist Union commences on Tuesday next, when the retiring president, Rev. James Barker, will welcome the ministers and delegates and their wives at the Y.W.C.A. rooms, Castlereagh-street. In the evening, in the Bathurst-street church, the incoming president, Mr. William Ardill, will be inducted to the chair, and will deliver his presidential address.

The interest of the meetings this year will be much enhanced by the presence of the forceful and popular preacher of the Collins-street Church, Melbourne, the Rev. F. C. Spurr. Mr. Spurr will deliver one of his delightful lectures on Wednesday evening, on "Personal Experiences in Eastern Lands," illustrated by limelight. A large delegation from the country districts is assured.

The Baptist Tabernacle at Newcastle celebrates its jubilee during the coming month, and elaborate preparations have been made to make this a great celebration.

A legacy of £90, free of legacy duty, was received recently at the Young Women's Christian Association. This sum of money was bequeathed to the Y.W.C.A. by the late Mrs. Graham towards the building fund for the extension of premises. This may be an inspiration to other citizens in making their wills.

At the recent conference of clergy and ministers with Y.M.C.A. delegates, it was moved that literature suggestive of the activities of the Young Women's Christian Association should be placed at the disposal of all country clergy and ministers, in order that girls may be instructed when moving to the city of the helps to strangers that are supplied by the Y.W.C.A. Accordingly, this month, for the first time, all country, as well as city, clergy and ministers have been furnished with copies of the annual report for the year ended July, 1911.

The New Year services were inaugurated at the Great Synagogue on Friday evening last. Rev. A. D. Wolinski read the Mincha service, Rev. M. Einfeld the Maariv, and Rabbi Cohen gave a Bible reading. The choir sang the incidental music.

General Booth, head of the Salvation Army, has commenced a month's motoring tour in England in quest of converts.

Mrs. Booth is to visit Canada in the autumn to lead the annual Salvation Army Congress in Toronto.

The members of the Church of Christ, at Auburn, have decided to erect a new church building in one day. It will be of wood, lined throughout, and when completed, will measure 55ft by 25ft, with porches and vestries. The brick foundations, doors, windows, and principals will be the only portions attempted before the actual day of erection. Fifty carpenters, 20 painters, 15 plumbers, 10 bricklayers, and a host of handymen and labourers, together with a large staff of ladies, who will attend to the catering, will combine in this unique work. The architect and practically all of the workers, will give their services without fee or wage. A few workmen will be employed by those members of the Churches of Christ who wish to have a tradesman at work on their behalf. The date of erection is not yet definitely fixed.

SLIGHTLY-USED PIANO BARGAINS AT PIANOLA HALL.

There is always an excellent assortment of Pianos by leading makers, such as Steck, Bechstein, Ronisch, Lipp, Bluthner, and others, available at enormous reductions at Pianola Hall. The reason, and the only reason, they have been exchanged is the desire of their owners to replace instruments they could not play with others which they could play. For the first time in the history of the Piano business, Pianos which were entirely satisfactory have been exchanged by their owners. They have come from some of the best homes in Sydney, and are remarkable for their excellent condition as well as their uniformly high grade.

The PIANOLA PIANO (Steck or Steinway Piano) represents an entirely new thought in musical instruments. Its advantages for the accepted type of pianoforte are so manifest that thousands of Pianos heretofore satisfactory are destined to be disposed of to make room for this 20th Century production.

THE PIANOLA COMPANY are manufacturers of the Steck and Stroud (ordinary Pianos) as well as the Steck Pianola Piano. They control the largest producing factories in the world, making last year over 20,000 Instruments. All Instruments sold by the Australasian houses are manufactured expressly to meet Australian climatic conditions. They are shipped direct from our factory, and are sold throughout Australia with but one profit added to the cost—that of the manufacturer, thus saving the profit of the home exporter and indenter. We invite you to visit our showrooms, where we carry large stocks of Steck and Stroud Pianos, Steinway and Steck Pianola Pianos, besides a huge selection of Slightly-used and Second-hand Pianos. The Steck is represented in Burr Walnut, Circassian, Walnut, Rosewood, Mahogany, and Waxed Oak from a small Upright Piano to a Concert Grand.

OUR SPECIAL EASY TERMS OF PAYMENT SYSTEM IS WELL WORTH INVESTIGATING.

If Unable to Call, Write for Prices and Description.

WE PAY FREIGHT, AND GUARANTEE ALL INSTRUMENTS.

WHAT THEY THINK IN GERMANY ABOUT BEALE High-Grade PIANOS.

The London "Musical Opinion and Music Trade Review," an important trade journal published in Great Britain, says (July, 1911):—

"A Hamburg trade journalist, who has just returned from the Antipodes, states that the pianos manufactured by the Beale Company in Sydney greatly resemble in touch and in tone those turned out at the best German factories. The Beale is sold at forty-five pounds and upwards, and enjoys a good reputation, not only in Australia, but in India, Java, South Sea Islands, and other colonial countries with hot climates. The 'Hamburger' fears that if these British colonials extend their piano manufacturing operations there will be little room left for Continental makers in the musical instrument line."

PIANO BUYERS, BEFORE PURCHASING, ASK YOURSELF THE QUESTION—

If your Piano is saddled with 25 per cent. paid to the Canvasser, added to the cost of Collectors and expensive Advertising, does it not stand to reason that you cannot possibly get the same value as you can where such expenses are unknown?

This is the sole reason that we can supply you cheaper than any other House.

MOTOR NOTES.

TO-DAY'S EXHIBITION.

HINTS ON BUYING A CAR.

With our first automobile show opening to-day, and the certainty that it will bring a large number of intending purchasers to the point of placing their orders, it will serve a good purpose to enumerate a few points which are well worth consideration before finally deciding upon the make of car. To the novice a few hints may save dissatisfaction, or at least future annoyance, and to the initiated, or the man who has already had a car, and intends to buy another, the same hints are useful, and may prevent him making a mistake.

Remember no one agent has all the good things of the automobile world. Every agent sells cars which have special points worthy of consideration. No single car contains every virtue, and it cannot satisfy the fastidious tastes of a thousand buyers. Excellent features may be found in every car, but some have more than others. Cars eminently suitable for some roads and districts may be very unsuitable for others, and your choice without considering many points may be an unsuitable car.

Haggle and barter over the price as much as you desire, but remember every concession you gain may be no profit in the end. Every car has its value, and no agent makes a reduction without a quid pro quo—full price obtains full value, and reductions pro rata. A reduction of £10 to £20 is easily recouped by inferior finish, inferior accessories, and lack of future attention and assistance. When a man buys his first car the agent can be of valuable assistance to him in many ways; he who pays the fair and legitimate price has a right to expect advice and assistance without extortion.

Do not send a friend to price the car for you and arrange a commission, as, should it be given, you must pay it in the same manner as a reduction must be paid for.

If you must rely upon an expert's advice, go to a man in the trade, whose business it is to deal in such matters; if it is the local dealer in the district, and you can trust his judgment, so much the better; the agent will pay him a legitimate commission, as he is entitled to it; you will have a man on the spot in your neighbourhood with an interest in your car, as he is more or less responsible for your choice; he does all he can to assist you in getting satisfaction in the running of your car, and this is valuable, not only to you, but to the agent from whom you buy your car, which is the chief reason why he is willing to pay your man a commission and give you full value at the same time.

Do not accept the praise or condemnation of your chauffeur, or the casual acquaintance without being certain that he knows more about motor cars than yourself, and that his opinion is disinterested.

Some agents never make any concession, and will lose your order rather than do so. Never pass him with your order for that reason, rather admire his business methods; you are assured of a straight deal and full value combined with the pleasing knowledge that no one can buy a facsimile of your car at a better price than you did.

Now, as to advice on selecting a car. Go to the motor exhibition, but do not first of all start admiring the carriage work, taking a seat first in one car and then in another, looking for comfort and luxury, or for nicely-blended colours; leave such details, and also the shape of the radiator and bonnet alone, they will take care of themselves, as, after you are satisfied that the mechanism is what you require, you can obtain the exact carriage work and colours you require.

First decide how much money you are prepared to spend, then interview the various firms, and give them the conditions you wish your car to fulfil—the number of passengers to be carried, the speed you wish to travel, the nature of the roads in your district, and if of good surface, or if broken with deep ruts and holes, the gradients of the hills, if any, and the purpose for which the car is likely to be used. Then listen to the explanations in favour of the various makes.

The engine must not be less than four cylinders, as smaller numbers are out of the question in these days, when four cylinders are supplied for all powers, 8 to 60 horse-power. Magneto ignition is essential, particularly for up-country work, where the charging of accumulators would be impossible; have accumulator ignition as an auxiliary, if you like, but do not have it alone. Next have the carburetter explained, and do not become infatuated with a complicated type; there are thousands of simple and efficient carburetters which will never give trouble unless you trouble them.

Lubrication systems are not all perfect, but whether you decide upon "forced feed" or "splash" system see that it will not require much adjustment or attention—it should not be needed, there are plenty of makes requiring none. The question of lubrication is an important one; an efficient system means little wear and tear, with flexibility and power; an inefficient system means much dissatisfaction.

Valves and working parts should be encased and protected from dust and sand, and this arrangement minimises the noise when working. Magnetos and underworks should also be encased to prevent water splashes, stones and grit being thrown up amongst the mechanism.

Examine radiators and see that they are large and efficient for this climate, particularly those having the "thermo-syphon" system of water circulation. A radiator with just sufficient cooling surface for European countries will be a source of constant trouble and anxiety in Australia.

If your roads are bad make a special study of the springs, and note the clearance between the lowest portion of the mechanism and the ground. A well-sprung car on bad roads is a pleasure to ride in, but badly-designed springs will not only give great discomfort, but will always be breaking and straining the mechanism of the car.

Axles and steering gear should be of forged steel, and no castings be used, as a fracture in these parts may have very serious results. Pneumatic tyres of good size are strongly advised; it may cost a little more in initial outlay, but they stand longer and are less liable to punctures and bursts than undersized tyres.

The question of whether European or American cars are the best is one which cannot be settled, and providing the points enumerated above are considered the buyer will be sure to get a chassis which will give satisfaction. Trial runs are advisable before deciding, but the question of whether or not the car will climb a steep hill need not trouble, as all cars of repute, even small horse-powers, will climb exceedingly steep hills, being geared proportionately to their power.

After deciding upon a chassis the body-work can be arranged to each purchaser's own fancy, as also may the accessories and general equipment. Motor-car guarantees need not trouble an intending motorist. No guarantee is worth the time spent in reading it, as owing to conditions under which a car is used the terms of a guarantee can easily be evaded. The greatest security the private buyer can get is to deal with a firm of repute who know how to conduct their business.

The motor show will undoubtedly be well attended, and there is evidence that a large business will be done. A considerable amount of money has been expended by the various exhibitors to make their stands attractive, and as cars of every important make will be shown the exhibition should be a great success, both from a spectacular and business point of view.

A motor show is alike advantageous to buyer and seller. The former has the opportunity of making comparisons and inspections, impossible on any other occasion. A few hours spent at the exhibition will give more information than the perusal of scores of catalogues and price lists at home. The buyer and seller alike have more time and inclination to go more thoroughly into details than in a conversation held in the city depot or garage. There is an atmosphere of "motors" throughout the show, and special facilities are generally arranged for the intending buyer to become aware of the merits of each make of car.

BUSINESS AND PLEASURE.

Everybody appreciates a holiday. To combine business with pleasure is an additional advantage on such a day as Eight-hour Day. Therefore, on Monday pack your hamper and take your "billy," and go out to Taren Point, on the George's River. Take the train to Kogarah, tram to Sans Souci, and then the new ferry from the lastnamed place to Taren Point, more popularly known, perhaps, as Commons Point. It is little more than half-an-hour away from Central Station. It may now be reached at a small weekly cost by this direct route, and on October 28 Taren Point is to be sold in subdivision by Raine and Horne. Dozens of lovely water frontages running down direct to shelving sandy beaches with no annoying mountains of rock to meet the eye. Every site to be sold has a fine water view. Splendid reserves will add to Life's pleasures there. Spacious avenues, commodious wharfs, facilities for boating, fishing, and bathing are assured to you. Pick your block on Monday. Buy it on October 28th. A Special Representative will be on the land, Eight-hour Day, to give all particulars, and hand you Lithos. of the Estate.—Advt.

REAL ESTATE.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

Business in the real estate market this week has been active, but devoid of anything startling. There has been a steady demand for good, payable property, and buyers and sellers alike were numerous. Quite a number of small properties changed hands at good payable prices, and inquiries were made for larger properties. The tone of the suburban market all round was pleasing to the agents, especially is it so in regard to the subdivision week-end sales, which this year are more numerous than ever.

The land everywhere is selling well. There is no such thing as "boom" prices, but the market is steady. Buyers are making good offers, and vendors are accepting them; and this is regarded as a sign of sound business, with good prospects of its continuance.

The rush for week-end allotments at the seaside has not diminished in any way. There was evidence of this last Saturday at Narrabeen, where land brought from 30s to £2 per foot.

It is a vexed question whether the popularity of the surf has interfered with the rush for the mountains that was so much in evidence a few years ago. Those whose work lies in the direction of pushing forward the interests of Katoomba and Wentworth Falls claim that now that the Railway Commissioners have reinstated the season ticket system, the mountains will this summer be more popular than ever. At the present time in both Katoomba and Wentworth Falls land values are rising, and Katoomba has now the advantages of gas, water, and sewerage, and this has given the place a big lift. In the centre of the main street of this municipality land was sold ten years ago at £4 per foot. This week the same allotment changed hands at £16 per foot. Another allotment close to the station was valued at £10 per foot nine years ago. Recent sales show this land to be worth now about £40 per foot, and the corners at £50 per foot. In Wentworth Falls, while the advances in values have not been so rapid as in Katoomba, yet a good many houses are going up, and inquiries for building allotments are numerous.

However, the public will have a very good opportunity on Monday of judging of the popularity of the seaside as against the mountains, for two sales are to be held at these popular week-end and health-giving resorts. The one is at Katoomba, and the other at Cronulla. The latter is regarded as a popular seaside resort, and the former the leading centre of the mountains. For both sales there is a big inquiry for lithographs, and for general information. At Katoomba 100 good building blocks in close proximity to the Leura Falls will be submitted, while at Cronulla 40 allotments, situated on the main road and close to the tram terminus, will be offered, so that the public have now their chance to declare for the mountains or the seaside.

There has been a lull in the market during the past few weeks as far as city property is concerned, but buyers of this class of real estate will have their chance during the next fortnight. Next week both Messrs. Hardie and Gorman and Raine and Horne will submit some valuable city property, and the following week in the rooms of Messrs. Hardie and Gorman the largest and most varied sale of city property ever attempted will be held. The whole of this property, situated in almost all the leading thoroughfares of the city, comprises a realisation sale for distribution purposes, of which Messrs. T. J. Marks and Dr. H. J. Marks have control. There are 13 distinct lots, all occupying picked positions, and offering some of the highest class of investments yet submitted to public competition. It is estimated that this property is worth anything from a quarter to half a million sterling. A very neat booklet giving the plans and full particulars of the incomes, etc., has been prepared by the auctioneers.

In Parramatta and the surrounding districts the property market is brisk, and numerous sales are reported by the different agents. The tramway to Castle Hill continues to induce settlement in that district, and when the line is extended to Dural it will become even a greater factor in opening up this part of the country.

At the last meeting of the board of management of the New South Wales Real Estate Auctioneers and Agents' Association further progress was made in readjusting the new scale of fees, which will shortly be issued in an amended form. It is also proposed to hold the annual dinner of the association at an early date.

Messrs. Hardie and Gorman report having had a very good sale at Randwick last Saturday. There were only five allotments to offer, but they were all quickly snapped up at £8 per foot, which is a good price for land in Allison-road, overlooking the racecourse.

There are several sales set down for this afternoon. Messrs. Richardson and Wrench have two subdivisions to offer. One is at Gungah Bay, about two minutes from the Oatley railway station and overlooking George's River, Como, and the railway bridge. The subdivision consists of 116 quarter-acre allotments on an elevated tableland. The other sale is at Auburn, which is fast becoming a great industrial centre, and here the Hill Estate, comprising a number of good building blocks suitable for workmen's cottages, will be submitted. Messrs. Hugh Duff and Co. will sell 30 of the allotments of the Oswald Park Estate at Longueville; and Messrs. E. C. V. Broughton and Co. will offer, in conjunction with Mr. F. Brown, of Hurstville, 25 allotments, part of the Gilmour Estate, at Penshurst.

Mr. W. F. Kay, who has carried on business for a number of years in Granville, announces the removal of his headquarters to 72 Pitt-street, Sydney, where he has secured commodious offices. Granville will be used as a branch, in addition to another at Camden.

GREENACRE PARK EXTENSION.

ACRE LOTS from £30 10s. ON EASY TERMS.

This Magnificent Property extends almost from the railway line right back to Liverpool-road. The soil is excellent, and every block has a frontage to one of the many well-formed roads intersecting the estate.

BANKSTOWN is a suburb with a great future. That is why we sold nearly 600 lots during the past year or so. It has all the advantages of accessibility, good soil, and healthy location. When the line is extended to Liverpool, Bankstown will become a second Strathfield, and many of the present farming blocks will be bringing big prices PER FOOT as building sites. Good reasons why you should take up a block on GREENACRE PARK EXTENSION.

THE BIRD OF PARADISE ..

This princely stranger comes from the coastal forests of (German) New Guinea, which, with its adjacent islands, is the home of the Bird of Paradise, a few genera overflowing into the North of Australia. Birds of Paradise are the most glorious of all birds. The manner and colouration of their plumage differ, but are always exquisite. A French naturalist described one flying as a "living meteor," and was so overcome by emotion at its splendid appearance that he quite forgot to shoot it. Wallace declares that "the intensity of colour and of metallic lustre displayed by their plumage is not to be equalled by any other birds, except perhaps the humming-birds, and is not surpassed even by these." The exuberance of the plumage is remarkable. From the head, back, or shoulders, it sprouts in graceful wires, sometimes ending in discs of metallic lustre, or waves in glowing cascades of feathers gloriously curved over the bird's body and sometimes ending far beyond in a rain of living gold. Rich lights of green and gold, fire, violet, and ruby, play over the Birds of Paradise as they display their glories in the dancing parties which they hold in their play-tree in the green wilderness. They have been observed to spend hours making their toilet, so that apparently these lovely birds are fully conscious of their own charms. It is only the male which is so be-plumed and coloured. The female bird is generally robed in sober chocolate, so that she may sit upon her nest without displaying "beauty's ensign" to her foes. The lavish adornment of the males is supposed to exist solely for the attraction of the females. Nevertheless, the startling beauty attained by the Birds of Paradise remains one of Nature's mysteries. This beauty is a tragic gift, as the glorious plumes are sought almost as eagerly as gems. The handsome tropic stranger shown in the illustration is obviously quite at home in the company of a variety of interesting Australian birds. The Bird of Paradise is omnivorous, and the Sydney specimen is fed on a mixed diet of fruit and insects.

LAW REPORT.

BANCO COURT.

(Before the Chief Justice and a jury of four.)

ACCIDENT AT A CROSSING.

Matthews v Chief Commissioner for Railways.

Mr. Young and Mr. Alroy M. Cohen, instructed by Messrs. Owen and Champion, of Wollongong (by their agents, Messrs. A. J. Taylor and Greenwell), appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Lamb, K.C., and Mr. E. M. Mitchell, instructed by Mr. J. S. Cargill (Solicitor to the Railway Commissioners), for the defendant. This was an action brought by Thomas Elijah Matthews, carter, against the Chief Commissioner of Railways and Tramways to recover compensation for personal injury sustained by the plaintiff on June 25, while driving two horses attached to a lorry, owing, as he alleged, to the negligence of the defendant's servants in the care, control, and management of certain railway gates at Edgeware-road, Marrickville. The case for the plaintiff has already been stated. Damages were laid at £2000.

His Honor, in summing up, said that the ground of plaintiff's claim was the negligence which he alleged against a signalman in the service of the defendant, whose duty it was to open and shut the gates at this level crossing. Some comment had been made on the fact that the public was concerned in these matters which the Railway Commissioners had to deal with, but in a court of justice they were there to do justice without respect to persons. If the plaintiff, upon whom rested the responsibility of proving the charge, had, in the opinion of the jury sustained the injury through the negligence of one of defendant's servants, they would not be doing justice unless they found a verdict for him; but if they were not satisfied that the signalman was guilty of a breach of duty amounting to negligence, the verdict must be for the defendant. If they were of opinion that the plaintiff had failed to make out his case by a preponderance of evidence in his favour, then they could not give him a verdict.

The jury, after a short deliberation, returned a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of £500.

(Before Mr. Justice Gordon.)

ELDER v ELDER.

His Honor said the parties were married on December 31, 1889, and the suit was one brought by the wife against her husband for dissolution of the marriage on the ground that for three years and upwards respondent had been an habitual drunkard, and had been guilty of habitual cruelty towards petitioner. The Legislature had only given the Court the right to grant a divorce in such cases if it was satisfied that there had been habitual drunkenness on the part of the respondent and also habitual cruelty for three years and upwards. He thought the evidence fell short as to the habitual cruelty, which was a necessary ingredient of the case, and, therefore, the petition must be dismissed. He thought a case had been made out for judicial separation, and if the petitioner liked to apply for judicial separation he would consider it.

Mr. Sanders said he had no instructions on the point.

BROWN v BROWN.

His Honor said the suit was one by the husband against the wife, and the question submitted for decision was whether the parties were married on April 10, 1905, and whether the respondent had wilfully deserted petitioner without just cause or excuse, and left her so deserted for three years and upwards. The question was whether the fact that petitioner returned to her husband's home for five days broke the continuity of the desertion. It appeared that, though petitioner did return to the respondent's home for the period named, she refused to cohabit with him as his wife or in any way to take up her domestic duties. That being so, following the decision in Hull v Hull, 1 State Reports, which was a much stronger case than this, he was of opinion that the continuity of the three years' desertion had not been broken, and, therefore, petitioner was entitled to the relief prayed.

Decree nisi, returnable in six months.

CHEN CHOU v CHEN CHOU.

His Honor said that the suit was one by the wife against the husband, and the issues were marriage on September 27, 1881, and whether between certain dates respondent had been guilty of misconduct with a woman. He reserved judgment for the purpose of considering whether the evidence established that at the date of the institution of the suit respondent was domiciled in New South Wales, and he was not satisfied that he was or that he ever abandoned his original domicile in China. That being so, the petition must be dismissed on that ground.

WHELAN v WHELAN (HILL CO-RESPONDENT).

His Honor said that the suit was one by the husband against the wife, and the issues were marriage on January 24, 1893, and whether the respondent had been guilty of misconduct with the co-respondent within the dates mentioned in the petition. He was satisfied on the question of marriage, domicile, and the misconduct charged against respondent and co-respondent, and he only reserved his decision to consider whether or not petitioner had not debarred himself from relief by his delay in presenting the petition. It had been laid down that, where a husband presented a petition against his wife on the ground of adultery, he must act promptly, and here there was no reasonable explanation of the delay in bringing the suit after petitioner had reasonable cause to believe that the offence complained of had been committed. That being so, petitioner had lost the right which he would otherwise have had to divorce. The petition was dismissed.

ARMATI v ARMATI (HEER CO-RESPONDENT).

His Honor, in the course of his judgment, said that the suit was one presented by the husband against the wife on the ground of her misconduct with the co-respondent. The petitioner and respondent were married on September 30, 1905. The respondent duly appeared to the petition, and in her behalf issues were raised whether petitioner had been guilty of misconduct with women, and of cruelty towards her. Co-respondent, although served with the petition, had not entered an appearance, and was not represented in the suit. At the close of the evidence he expressed an opinion that there was no evidence to prove the cross issues raised by respondent, and the only question upon which he reserved his decision was whether there was sufficient evidence to prove the misconduct charged between respondent and co-respondent. In his opinion there was no evidence of misconduct at any place except Glen Lynn, Camperdown. A rule which might very well be adopted in dealing with such cases was that if two people of mature years and knowledge, and not children unacquainted with the ways of the world, chose to place themselves in a situation which they must know was likely to carry an inference of guilt to ordinary persons, they had only themselves to blame if the Court came to the same conclusion. The question he had to decide was whether he was satisfied beyond all reasonable doubt that the respondent and co-respondent had been guilty of the misconduct charged by petitioner at Glen Lynn, and, taking the whole of the evidence, he was satisfied as to the misconduct at the place mentioned. That being so, he granted a decree nisi, and made it returnable in six months, with costs against co-respondent.

BAKEWELL v BAKEWELL (SHIELDS AND WILKINSON CO-RESPONDENTS.)

His Honor said that this was a suit for dissolution of the marriage brought by the husband against his wife. The parties were married on September 8, 1904, and respondent was charged with misconduct with co-respondents Shields and Wilkinson. There were several issues raised on behalf of co-respondent Shields, namely, whether the petitioner had been accessory to the misconduct alleged, whether he had been guilty of wilful neglect towards petitioner, and connivance, and condonation, and misconduct conducing to the misconduct (if any). There was also an issue of unreasonable delay in bringing the suit. With regard to the misconduct alleged between respondent and Wilkinson, that was practically undefended, and the only question which made him hesitate after the case had closed was whether petitioner had made out the issue of misconduct between his wife and co-respondent Shields; whether, in fact, it was a case of certainty or only of grave suspicion. Up to a certain point in the relations between respondent and Shields he was not satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that the offence charged had been committed, but he was satisfied that on June 8, 1909, they were guilty of misconduct, which entitled petitioner to the relief asked for.

Decree nisi returnable in six months, with costs against both co-respondents.

SUTHERLAND v SUTHERLAND.

Mr. J. A. Ferguson, instructed by Messrs. Gilfillan and Sheridan, of Kempsey (by their agents, Messrs. Weaver and Allworth), appeared for the petitioner. The respondent did not appear. The suit, which was before the Court on the 5th inst. was one brought by Charles Sutherland against his wife, Eleanor Sutherland, for dissolution of the marriage on the grounds of wilful desertion by respondent for three years and upwards without just cause or excuse.

His Honor said he was satisfied as to the marriage, domicile, and also the desertion charged, but he required evidence as to the exact time when respondent left her husband. On the last occasion he allowed affidavits to be filed for that purpose, and adjourned the further hearing of the case generally.

EMPLOYMENT OF CARPENTER.

PROCEEDINGS AGAINST A COLLIERY.

Mr. A. G. P. Jackson, inspector, appeared to prosecute; and Mr. Nathan (of Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co.), for the Sydney Harbour Colliery, Ltd.

This was a case for the enforcement of a penalty, in which the Sydney Harbour Colliery, Limited, was proceeded against for an alleged breach of the Woodworkers' Board award. The complaint against the company was that it had employed one Diery, a young man, carpenter, and paid him £6 for 96 hours' work, which was claimed to be a less rate of wages than the minimum under the award of 1s 4½d per hour.

It was argued by Mr. Nathan that the colliery had a separate award for its employees, and the carpenters came under the term "other surface hands."

His Honor thought that "other surface hands" meant hands of a like nature to miners, etc. He remarked that it was a pity that carpenters had not been specifically dealt with by the award for the colliery, which had been treated as a separate industry. He thought that in the case of the Western collieries they had been specially dealt with. Generally, he understood, the colliery carpenters were rough workers, who used the adze.

Mr. Nathan took the point that the colliery having been treated as a separate industry, any employee in the mine, whether carpenter or not, did not come under any other award, and there was therefore no jurisdiction. He said, further, that colliery carpenters were looked upon as "surface hands."

His Honor held that there had been a breach of the award, and imposed a fine of 10s, with 6s costs.

SUNDAY OVERTIME.

ENGINE-DRIVING AND FIRING.

Inspector Jackson also proceeded against Resch's, Ltd., of Dowling-street, Redfern, for an alleged breach of the engine-driving and firing award. Mr. Fawl (of Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co.) appeared for the defendant co.

After hearing the evidence and argument, his Honor held that the award allowed the working of seven shifts of eight hours, and that overtime on Sundays, where operations were continuous, did not begin till eight hours had been worked on that day. In this case there had, therefore, been no breach, and he dismissed the summons.

SHOT AT LITTLE COOGEE.

MISS DAVIS' SORRY PLIGHT.

ACCUSED MILLER COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

George Leslie Miller, 28, was charged before Mr. Aubrey Mowle, Chamber Magistrate, at the Paddington Police Court, yesterday, with having at Mundarrah Towers, Little Coogee, on June 30 last, shot Lily May Davis, with intent to murder her. The hearing had been postponed from time to time on account of Miss Davis' condition precluding her from appearing.

Mr. J. W. Abigail appeared for the defence.

Depositions taken at St. Vincent's Hospital on July 2 last by Mr. Mowle were read, in which Miss Davis said she was a single woman. She was engaged, she stated, to be married to George Leslie Miller; but had not spoken to him for the last three months. Miller had written to her for the last three months, but she had not answered his letters. The last time she saw him was on the night of June 30, at about 7 o'clock, when she was in the kitchen at Mundarrah Towers with her nephew, a boy of 12. The kitchen door was open and the accused walked right in and said, "You will never see me again." Deponent got excited. Accused had a revolver in his hand. He shot deponent twice, and she fell down. About an hour after Constable O'Brien brought accused, and deponent, in answer to questions put by him, said accused was the person who shot her. When Miller came in with the officer he said, "Oh, that's Lily." Deponent here corrected her statement and said she had not seen Miller for two months, not three as previously stated by her. In answer to the accused deponent did not remember him coming back after the shots were fired, and lifting her head, and saying, "What is the matter, Lily?"

On previous occasions accused came into the kitchen without knocking. When accused came into the kitchen on the 30th June, he was "mad-looking," and said he would not see deponent again. She saw the revolver in his hand. She did not remember saying, "Les, I always loved you."

The testimony of Dr. Woodburn, taken on August 29, was that Miss Davis was suffering when examined at St. Vincent's Hospital on June 30 from a punctured wound under the right armpit. A solid mass could be felt in the left side under the skin. On July 5 an operation was performed by deponent and Dr. Veech, and under a local anæsthetic a piece of lead was extracted. Miss Davis was then suffering from paralysis in both legs. It was hard to say whether she would get right. The pieces of lead extracted were handed to the police. In answer to Mr. Abigail deponent thought no operation would effect a recovery, and Miss Davis would always be an invalid.

Michael Veech, visiting surgeon at St. Vincent's Hospital, said he assisted in an operation on July 4, with two other doctors. The operation was for the purpose of removing a piece of lead, apparently a revolver bullet, from the left loin. Witness thought the injury produced by the bullet would be probably a lasting one. The bullet had gone through the lung and the spine—those being the vital parts affected. The injury to the spine would produce paralysis to the lower parts of the body. She was completely dead in those parts, having no feeling or motion.

Senior Sergeant R. Lilley, of Randwick, stated that on the night of April 30, he, constables O'Brien and Fairhall, when crossing to some vacant land off Battery-street, Little Coogee, they met the accused carrying the parcel (produced) under his left arm. Witness accosted him and questioned him about the parcel, which witness seized. Accused gave his name as Les. Miller, and said he lived at North Sydney. At the same time Miller started to cry, and called out in a loud voice: "I'm mad, I'm mad. I've shot a woman." Accused was searched and in the left-hand pocket of his overcoat the revolver (produced) was found. The revolver contained one exploded shell.

To Mr. Abigail: Miller was in a very excited state, and the smell of drink was noticeable. The parcel contained correspondence between Miss Davis and the accused.

Constable P. O'Brien, of Randwick, in his evidence concerning the arrest of the accused, produced a written statement by the accused which was to the effect that he lived at Falcon-street, North Sydney. He had been lately employed at an hotel at Byron Bay. On the night in question he saw the girl, Lily Davis, at the Towers. He did not know why he fired the shots. He had had a revolver for a long time, but did not remember buying it. He thought he fired two shots. Miss Davis got hold of him when he had the revolver in his hand and he fired one shot. Miss Davis fell down. He picked her up and lifted her head. He did not know how many shots he fired, but he thought only two. He had known the girl about 18 months, and had kept company with her. She invited him to see her about a month ago. She had another young man with her, with whom she went away, leaving him (Miller) by himself.

To Mr. Abigail witness said that upon inquiries made concerning the accused he had learned that Miller was regarded by most people as being very weak-minded.

Walter John Lumley, a boy of 12 years of age, living with his parents at Mundarrah Towers, Little Coogee, deposed that his parents had left home about 7.30 p.m. on June 30 last. His aunt, Lily May Davis and he were the only persons then in the house. When witness and Miss Davis were in the kitchen they heard a shuffling on the verandah near the kitchen door. They thought it was the dog, which they called. Miller then entered by the door and stood between witness and Miss Davis, who was sitting down. Miller said to Miss Davis: "You know what I've come for?" Miss Davis replied, "Go away, I don't want to speak to you." Miss Davis got up and was going towards the door when Miller stepped back and, pulling a revolver from his overcoat pocket, fired. Miller was not two steps away from her at the time. When Miss Davis fell Miller fired another shot at her while she was on the floor without shifting his position. Witness ran out and hid.

To Mr. Abigail witness said he did not see Miss Davis grab the revolver before it was fired, although she might have done. Miller was red in the face. Miller used to come in the back way.

At the conclusion of the case for the prosecution, Miller, duly cautioned, said: "I did not intend to shoot her. She caught my hand and the revolver went off."

Accused was committed for trial to the Central Criminal Court.

CHARGE AGAINST A GUARD.

ALLEGED THEFT ON THE RAILWAY.

A guard, who has been employed on the railway for some 30 years, was yesterday arrested on a charge of theft.

Detectives Gallagher and Pauling followed the man from the station to his home, where he was arrested. He was carrying a handbag, which was found to contain 11 pairs of socks and 10 pairs of ladies' gloves, and several other travellers' samples, in all amounting to about £12. His house was searched, and a large quantity of articles of clothing and several pieces of jewellery, to the total value of £250, were seized. It is stated that the accused had been employed as guard on the southern line.

COUNT CISNEROS' RINGS.

ALLEGED THEFT AT HOTEL AUSTRALIA.

William M'Millan, 30, appeared before Mr. King, S.M., this morning, at the Water Police Court, to answer a charge of stealing in the dwelling-house of John N. Smith, known as the Hotel Australia, a purse, two rings, a shield, and £4, of the total value of £30, the property of Count Cisneros.

Detective Surridge said that on the 28th inst he was with Detectives Ward and Vincent, when he saw accused in Pitt-street, when he stopped and questioned him, saying that he answered the description of a man wanted by the police. Accused admitted he had pledged certain rings in Elizabeth-street, and that he had given the name of Daly. He added that he bought the rings from a man he met in the street.

Francis de Cisneros, residing at the Hotel Australia, said that he occupied a suite of rooms there, and that the rings, the coin, and purse were his property. The purse contained £4, and it and the other articles disappeared while he was having his bath, and the room was left unattended.

Accused, who had nothing to say, was committed for trial.

CHILDREN'S COURT.

The new Children's Court, situate at the corner of Albion and Commonwealth streets, having been completed, the business at the court will be carried on at the new premises, on and after Tuesday, October 3. The telephone number will be Paddington 591.

ALLEGED FALSE PRETENCES.

At the Water Police Court on Friday, before Mr. J. L. King, S.M., Frederick Farnell, 51, was charged with having, on September 15, falsely pretended that a cheque for £3 was a genuine and available order, by which false pretence he obtained from Charles Pankhurst the sum of 35s, with intent to defraud. Accused, who reserved his defence, was committed for trial.

"FACE NEURALGIA AND SICK HEADACHE, CLEMENTS TONIC SURPRISED ME."

'I took other Medicines, but I might as well have taken so much water."

Here is a letter which tells those who suffer from neuralgia or faceache what this grand medicine can do for them:—

"48 Smith-street,
"Kensington, 24/2/'11.

CLEMENTS TONIC, LTD.—

"For some time I had been feeling weak and nervous. My friends said I was fairly run down, and advised me to take various medicines. I gave several a real good trial, but I might have taken so much water. It is twelve months since I had neuralgia. It was impossible to get any rest, the side of the face up to my temple was throbbing night and day. The want of sleep wore me out. Even dainty things could not entice me to eat. The chemist supplied medicine and liniments. I took the medicine regularly, and rubbed my face. This went on for three months, but I only got temporary relief, when the attack would come more severe. At this time a lady who visited me was surprised to see me looking so ill, told me to take Clements Tonic. One bottle made a great improvement. I took that medicine for four or five weeks, and was quite well. I still take an occasional bottle. I must say that Clements Tonic is a wonderful medicine for such ailments.

(Signed) "WINIFRED SHORTAL."

This medicine is without doubt without equal for the rapid relief of insomnia or broken rest, sick headache, neuralgia, indigestion, weak nerves, and nervous breakdown, lowness of spirits, hysteria, heart weakness or palpitation, biliousness, and constipation. Keep it in the house if you are ill, and you will soon be well. ALL CHEMISTS AND STORES SELL IT.—Advt.

NORTH SYDNEY BRIDGE.

INFLUENTIAL DEPUTATION.

EARNESTNESS OF THE GOVERNMENT.

MR. GRIFFITH AND MR. WADE IN CONFLICT.

The question of communication between Sydney and North Sydney, notwithstanding the intentions of the Government on the subject, has not been allowed to rest so far as the Sydney and North Sydney Bridge League is concerned. As a result of representations made to the Government, the Premier yesterday morning received an influential deputation on the subject of bridge communication, representatives of the whole of the municipal and shire authorities interested, the Bridge League and those whose interests will be directly served by this means of connection. Mr. A. Griffith (Minister for Works) was also present.

Mr. Wade, M.L.A., who introduced the deputation, said they desired to make a general request, that full consideration should be given to their wishes for a bridge. In July last the Acting-Premier had said that immediate action would be taken to improve existing conditions. They were all agreed that the present system was inadequate and could not last much longer without increasing greatly the danger to life. The congestion of the traffic at Circular Quay also called for attention. What the deputation wanted primarily was an adequate means of connection, but as to whether it should be by bridge or tunnel, or both, that might be left to the Government. It was absolutely necessary in the interests and convenience of life to take steps to give increased punt communication so as to avoid present risks. If given the choice of means of communication, of course, it was for a bridge. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. D. Fell, M.L.A., said that it was generally agreed that the time had arrived when the work of construction of a permanent connection between the two shores of the harbour should be undertaken.

Dr. Arthur, M.L.A., said that any tunnel proposal would not meet the requirements of the district.

Mr. Arthur Cocks, M.L.A., said that the great difficulty at present existing was in regard to the methods for dealing with the vehicle traffic, which could only be adequately met with a bridge. Some 150,000 people daily suffered from present disabilities, as those using the punt well knew on account of irritating inconveniences. So large, on occasions, was the traffic that those arriving in time for a certain punt were compelled to wait a quarter of an hour, simply because the punt could not carry the traffic offering. If the Government felt that it could not justify the necessary expenditure out of consolidated revenue or loans, he was sure the people of the northern suburbs would be willing to pay a toll gladly—(hear, hear)—rather than suffer the disabilities of the present punt service.

Alderman E. Macdonald (Mayor of Mosman) cordially supported the bridge proposal.

Alderman M'Manus, Alderman Green (North Sydney), Councillor Fitzsimons (Kuringai Shire), Mr. Brown, Mr. Hugh Duff (secretary Sydney and North Sydney Bridge League), Alderman E. M. Clark and Dr. C. Read (Willoughby), also spoke in support of bridge communication.

The Premier, in reply, said that the question was one that could and should be determined with as little delay as possible. It should not be viewed from either the party or the town and country standpoints, but from the national point of view. The Government had only been in office for a short time, and one of the first things brought under his notice as Premier was the argument of a deputation representing the business interests of the State that their business was being restricted by the Sydney Harbour Trust Commissioners. Of course, as a result, he was quickly in communication with the department, and the Harbour Trust said that the restrictions complained of were imposed in the interest of public safety. He, as Premier, realised that, and also that Sydney as a port, had grown to be one of great significance—the fourth port of the Empire—with marvellous prospects for the future. Therefore, it behoved them to treat the question apart from narrow standpoints. Since in office he and his colleagues had been working on these lines, and he was quite prepared to stand all charges that had been made about "hoodwinking," and to let the people be the judge of the Government, not only on what it said, but on which it accomplished. One member of the deputation had said that the financial prospects were better now than at any previous time, but he wished to say that that had nothing whatever to do with a question which was of national importance. Referring to the question of communication at a time when it was previously a live question, he said that two Governments had been in power, one of which had turned down the bridge idea, and had referred to the Public Works Committee a tunnel proposal.

Mr. Wade: You have missed one stage. We took the course of referring the matter to a Royal Commission, and they recommended a tunnel.

Mr. M'Gowen, continuing, said he was asked to go on with the bridge. On the business paper of Parliament was a motion by the Minister for Public Works asking the Public Works Committee to report on a subway to provide railway communication; also a motion to report as to the expediency of connecting Sydney and North Sydney by means of a bridge. What was wanted?

Voices: A bridge.

The Premier said the question had gone beyond the convenience of the people of Sydney and North Sydney; it had become a question of national importance. They must see that this Sydney of theirs, this great distributing centre, should not have its trade hampered. It had now come to the point when connection must be made in the protection of the expansion of trade and business of Sydney, and in the protection of life. What further could be done? Everything that had been done in the past had been to obtain expert evidence as to the best way to bring about connection, recognising those two great factors. How dared the Government do more than it was doing?

The Government intended to submit to the Public Works Committee plans that had been prepared, as well as expert evidence, not obtainable when the question was last considered. When a decision was made, it would be of such a character as would give a connection that was necessary for the convenience of the people, and for the development of the port of Sydney. More than that, he could not say. His colleagues were trying to obtain that expert information. They were not up against any financial proposition; they were dealing with the matter as a national one. While the Government was in office, everything would be done to bring to a successful and satisfactory conclusion what was the best means of communication between Sydney and North Sydney, and no time would be wasted when they had power to meet the requirements demanded by law. Before the Government definitely decided this important question, it would have to get the best and most reliable evidence obtainable, for, when the State came to deal with the question in the interest of the State, it wanted to know that it had done the best thing.

Mr. Griffith, Minister for Works, spoke on the practical side of the question. He said that, on account of the immense grade on the north side of the harbour, no tunnel could deal satisfactorily with vehicle traffic. That traffic, notwithstanding its present immense volume, was only a trifle to what it would be in 10 years' time, and that could only be met by a high-level bridge. (Applause.) A fortnight ago he had in Parliament presented his motion for submission of both bridge and tunnel schemes to the Public Works Committee. Addressing Mr. Wade, he said, "You want expedition, and so do we. I want to say, Mr. Wade, that probably both those motions would have been reached now but for certain matters in the House. I want to say, further, that, if you will restrain a few of your supporters——

Mr. Wade: Don't talk that nonsense here.

The Deputation: No politics.

Mr. Griffith: If permitted within a fortnight from now, I can have these two matters before the Public Works Committee, and evidence being taken. If the committee reports favourably to Parliament, I am practically certain that both these matters will be constructed by the Government.

Mr. Wade said that, as had been agreed, the question had passed beyond the party stage, and had become a national matter. He thought he was voicing the desire of the deputation when he said they wished the Government to give the matter the utmost expedition. If left back to the end of the session for reference to the Public Works Committee, it would probably be hung up for two or three years.

Mr. Griffith: I gave you my promise.

Mr. Wade, continuing, said he was coming to that, and he felt bound to reply to the words that had fallen from the Minister for Works. He protested against the suggestion that any action of his had led to these things being delayed. The Opposition had their rights, and, added Mr. Wade, "bring this matter up on Wednesday next, and I will guarantee that the prosopals will pass that night." (Applause.)

ORNAMENTAL TREE-PLANTING.

How much this is neglected, and yet how much it is talked about. Certain suburban areas have been well cared for in this respect. None more than Beecroft, where the Civic Authorities begrudge the removal of the smallest shoot likely to make a tree. A pretty sight can be seen on the Beecroft road, fronting Ramona Estate, with its ornamental and natural varieties of shade trees. This Estate, comprising 34 large sites and the Bungalow Villa, "Ramona," will be offered in subdivision for the Intercolonial Investment Co., Ltd., by Hardie and Gorman, next Saturday.—Advt.

SOCIAL.

Since the arrival in Sydney of their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Denman they have been driving about and seeing many of the beauty spots within easy distance of town, besides fulfilling many social engagements. Their Excellencies are charmed with Sydney, and especially with Government House, the site of which they think ideal. Lord Denman has upon several occasions expressed the hope that it will be retained for the residence of the Governor-General when in Sydney, and also remarked incidentally that his Majesty the King had heard with regret the suggestion of the Government to resume it, as should his Majesty again visit Australia there would be no fit residence for him. Being one of the few historic places of interest now remaining, it is sincerely hoped that it will long remain as the residence of the Governor-General, for most Sydney residents have a great affection for Government House, with its old associations.

The Spring meeting of the Australian Jockey Club opens to-day, and the coming week will, as usual, be a round of festivities in connection with the racing carnival. Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Denman will be present, appearing for the first time at the Randwick races. Monday being a public holiday, a very large attendance is anticipated, and the meeting will be continued on Wednesday, and brought to a conclusion on Saturday, October 7.

Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Denman gave a brilliant ball at Government House last night, which is fully noticed elsewhere in our columns. Their Excellencies will give the second ball of the season on Monday evening, October 2, and a garden party at Government House on Thursday afternoon next.

Last Monday evening their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Denman were present at Her Majesty's Theatre to witness the performance of "La Boheme." Lady Denman wore a handsome dress of black satin, veiled with jetted net, and a black ninon coat, with black velvet and cut-steel trimming, her ornaments being a beautiful all-round crown of diamonds, a diamond necklet and pendant, and long chain of diamonds. Sir Walter and Lady Barttelot, Miss Quirk, Major Quilter, and Mr. Vernon were included in the vice-regal party.

Lady King-Hall presided at the final meeting of St. Vincent's Hospital ball committee on Wednesday morning, when the hon. secretaries reported that most satisfactory progress had been made in connection with the Shakespearean ball, to be held next Tuesday evening in the Town Hall, in aid of St. Vincent's Hospital. Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Denman, the Lieutenant-Governor and Lady Cullen, the Admiral and Lady King-Hall, and the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress have signified their intention of being present. Many Shakespearean sets have been arranged, and many characters from Shakespeare will be represented by others not taking part in the sets. The ball promises to be a great success.

Much regret has been expressed on all sides at the illness of Madame Melba, and it is sincerely hoped that she will speedily recover from her attack of bronchitis. The opera is a source of the greatest pleasure to hundreds every evening, and the numerous visitors from the country now in Sydney for the races are eagerly anticipating the enjoyment which they know is in store for them by the performance of grand operas by such an excellent company.

Mrs. Russell French gave a most enjoyable "At home" at her residence, Vange, Bellevue Hill, on Thursday afternoon, when a large number of friends accepted her invitation and availed themselves of the opportunity of wishing her daughter, Mrs. Finlayson, "good-bye" and "bon voyage," previous to her departure for England to-day by R.M.S. Orontes, to rejoin her husband, Lieut.-Finlayson, R.N., who preceded her some weeks ago. The rooms were charmingly decorated with a profusion of flowers, and amongst the numerous guests were Lady Griffith, Lady Barton, Lady and Miss Fairfax, Lady Suttor, Lady Stephen, Mrs. Radford, Miss Macdonald, Mrs. J. T. Walker, Mrs. Verney, Mrs. Stopford, Mrs. E. W. Knox, Mrs. Warry, Mrs. Gordon Wesche, Mrs. Barff, Mrs. and Miss Mackinnon, Mrs. Arthur Allen, Mrs. Garland, Mrs. J. O. Fairfax, Mrs. H. Levy, Mrs. P. A wedding was celebrated at St. Andrew's Cathedral on Wednesday evening, September 6, when Mr. Herbert Waring, B.A., LL.B., only son of Mr. T. Waring, of Haberfield, and Miss May Halloran, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Halloran, of Stanmore, were married by the Rev. E. N. Wilton. The service was fully choral, the bridegroom being a former chorister. The bride, who entered the Cathedral on the arm of her father, was preceded up the aisle by the choristers, who sang "The Voice that Breathed o'er Eden," and during the signing of the register Miss Ada Baker and Mr. Emil Sussmilch sang "Because" and "Love's Coronation," respectively. The bride's dress was of satin, the bodice draped with beautiful lace and silver fringe; and she wore a long tulle veil and coronet of orange blossom, and carried a shower bouquet. She was attended by her sister, Miss Ivy Halloran, in pale pink charmeuse, with short panelled tunic of pale blue ninon, each panel finished with pink bebe roses and silver fringe; and the bridegroom's sisters, the Misses Grace and Violet Waring, wore cream charmeuse, veiled with pale blue ninon, finished with silver bugle fringe. All three wore silver Juliet caps and carried pink shower bouquets, which, with jewelled pendants, were the bridegroom's gifts. Mr. R. Hermann Fawl was best man, and Mr. Edward Norrie and Mr. George Lane the groomsmen. After the ceremony the guests, who numbered 100, were entertained at Baumann's, where the tables were beautifully decorated with white flowers. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Waring, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hogue, Mr. and Mrs. James Dennis, M.A., Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Halloran, Mr. and Mrs. Artlett, Mr. and Mrs. James Rickard, Mr. and Mrs. A. Later the bride and bridegroom left on a motor tour, the bride travelling in a navy cashmere de soie, finished with Oriental embroidery, and a large velvet picture hat with white feathers and a beautiful set of furs, the bridegroom's wedding gift. The honeymoon will be spent touring the Mountains.

Mrs. C. F. Roberts was "at home" to a large number of friends at the Rose Bay Golf Club on Thursday afternoon, and although there were threatening clouds overhead for some time, it fortunately kept fine, and the afternoon proved most enjoyable. Tea was served on the verandah, the weather being too uncertain to have it on the lawn. Mrs. Roberts was assisted in entertaining her guests by Colonel Roberts and Miss Dorothy Roberts. Amongst those present were Lady Simpson, Lady Barton, Lady Fairfax and Miss Fairfax, Mrs. Ryrie, Mrs. Christian, Miss Stephen, Judge Docker, Mrs. and Miss Docker, Mrs. Lang Campbell, Miss May Campbell, Mrs. and Miss Enid Bayley, Mrs. and Miss Cox, the Misses Mann, Mrs. Rich, Miss Mort, Mrs. Wilfred Docker, Mrs. H. Blomfield, and Mrs. Rodd.

The first performance of "Lady Frederick" by Miss Ethel Irving was witnessed by a large and fashionable audience at the Criterion Theatre last Saturday evening. The comedy is well worth seeing, even more than once, and Miss Ethel Irving's beautiful dresses have been much admired each evening during the week. Miss Irving made her first appearance in turqoise blue bordered with dark fur, and veiled with pale blue ninon, having a border of large blue velvet bows, the bodice being of velvet, with coat effect, embroidered with silver and a crossover front of deep purple-coloured satin, and the sleeves from wrist to elbow were ornamented with silver fringe. Her black hat was trimmed with dark heliotrope and a few pink flowers. Her beautiful pink satin dress was trimmed with cream net embroidered with gold and silver, a feature of the dress being the panel back, which begins between the shoulders, and extends to a narrow train outlined with thick gold cord and gold tassels. The Magyar bodice is of pink, with a dark green fold ending in a large bow at the back, with embroidered net yoke finished with bell-shaped elbow sleeves of net. Another handsome dress is of cream brocade, bordered with heavy lace edged with coral velvet, and a tight-fitting cut-away coat of velvet entirely covered with lace, and a knotted girdle of gold coral, and a pink rose at the waist. All her dresses are so beautifully made, and so much attention has been paid to every little detail, that a short description gives but the merest suggestion of what so much delights and pleases the women in the audience. Miss Violet Lev also wears some noticeable dresses, and looks particularly well in a black crepe de chine with beautiful jewelled embroidery, and later wears pale blue satin and black ninon embroidered in gold.

Miss Esta d'Argo (Miss Hetty Holroyd) received quite an ovation upon her reappearance in Sydney at her first concert given in the Town Hall last Saturday evening, when she was the recipient of very many beautiful baskets of flowers and bouquets from many of her old friends. Miss Esta d'Argo wore white satin, rather quaintly made with white lattice-work insertion of crystal bugle trimming, brought down on either side of the bodice, and crossing over at the waist was continued down the front round the drapery of white ninon. The bodice was veiled in ninon, the sleeves and the front folds being bordered with pale blue, a posy of flowers being worn at the waist. Mr. Ben Davies, who at once charmed the house with his singing, was the recipient of a Welsh harp of laurel leaves, tied with crimson streamers, from his old friend Madame Melba. On Thursday evening Miss Esta d'Argo wore a beautiful dress of pale blue satin charmeuse, trimmed with a deep band of cream silk embossed lace, veiled with a tunic of iridescent sequin net, which was cut up on either side, showing the skirt beneath, on Thursday night. The singer was again the recipient of many beautiful flowers, and of a canary in a golden cage tied with yellow ribbons.

A pretty wedding took place at St. Anne's Church, Strathfield, on Saturday, September 23, when Mr. Percy Gidley Pring, eldest son of Mr. Justice Pring was married to Miss Lilian Constance Anning, eldest daughter of Mrs. William Anning, Halsbury, Strathfield, and of the late Dr. William Anning, Chudleigh Park, Queensland. The Rev. Canon Vaughan officiated, assisted by the Rev. H. J. Rose. The bride, who was given away by her cousin, Mr. Reginald Day, wore ivory duchesse satin with an overdress of tulle embroidered with crystal beads and seed pearls, wreath of orange blossom and myrtle, and a tulle veil. She carried a shower bouquet of roses, orchids, and lilies of the valley, and also wore a necklet of aquamarines and pearls, the gifts of the bridegroom. She was attended by five bridesmaids—Miss Trixie Anning, Miss Ethel Pring, and Miss Olive Anning, who were dressed alike in pale blue satin, with overdresses of white point d'esprit net inlet with filet lace, hats of blue tulle, point lace, and pink roses and forget-me-nots. The two younger bridesmaids—the Misses Ella and Evelyn Anning, twin sisters of the bride, wore frocks of white hailstone muslin, made in fichu style, with Juliet caps of forget-me-nots and pink roses. They all carried shower bouquets of roses and forget-me-nots. The three elder ones wore necklets and the younger ones Nellie Stewart bracelets, gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. Reginald Campbell (Yass) was best man, and Mr. Philip and Mr. Sidney Pring groomsmen. Mr. Edward Haylock and Mr. Stanley Grace acted as ushers. After the ceremony Mrs. Anning held a reception at Halsbury, where a large marquee was erected on the lawn. Later Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Pring left by motor for Yarrangobilly Caves and Mount Kosciusko, the bride wearing a coat and skirt of powder blue shantung, and hat to match, with flowers and white Lancer plumes. Amongst the guests were Mr. Justice and Mrs. Pring, Mrs. Richard Anning, Mrs. John Anning and Miss Loulein Anning, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Day, Mr. and Mrs. Alison Russell, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wilkinson and Miss Wilkinson, Miss Pring, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Wilkinson, Mr. F. L. The New Zealand Association held its second annual ball on the night of Dominion Day, September 26, and the gathering was most successful. During the evening the following cablegram was read from Sir J. G. Ward, Bart., Prime Minister:—"Owen Cox, president New Zealand Association, Sydney.—On the anniversary of Dominion Day I send heartiest greetings and good wishes to our kinsfolk in New South Wales. Whether at home or abroad New Zealanders are at one in their affection for their beautiful country. May your association prosper, and your gathering this evening be another illustration of the unity which binds those who claim Maoriland as their home. Kia-ora and Aroha." The committee who had the arrangement of the ball included Mesdames Danaher, Roper, O'Connor, Macaulay, Miss Black, Miss Quin, and Messrs. Montgomery, Tabor, Bentley, Danaher, Tetley, Trenwith, Lavin, Johnson, and Saxon (hon. secretary). The following were also present:—Mesdames Hutchison, Freeman, Trenwith, Brenan, Messrs. Mr. and Mrs. W. Yinson Lee, of Sunny Cathay, North Sydney, were "at home" to a large party of friends at Baumann's Cafe on Saturday last, when an enjoyable evening was spent. The ballroom was brilliantly decorated with flags, bunting, palms, and pot plants, the British Ensign and the Chinese Dragon occupying positions of prominence. There were about 70 guests present. Music and dancing were indulged in, Messrs. Sussmilch and Ellis Price and Mesdames Tart, Beattie, and Lyons contributing to the former. The supper table was tastefully decorated with daffodils.

A most enjoyable "wattle dance" was held in the Oddfellows' Hall, The Rock, on September 19. The hall was tastefully decorated with wattle and wild baronia, and the stage, which was arranged as a drawing-room for the non-dancers, was festooned with wattle intertwined with art muslin. Supper was served in an adjoining marquee, the tables being decorated with freezias and nasturtiums kindly supplied by Rock station.

The recent annual dance in aid of St. John's school-church, Naremburn, was largely attended. The successful results were mainly due to the efforts of the ladies' committee—Mesdames Kirkpatrick and Allen (hon. treasurers), Miss Nita Kirkpatrick (hon. secretary).

One of the best dances of the Casino season was that given by the Arcadian Social Club, Casino, in the Masonic Hall, on Wednesday, September 20, to celebrate the end of the season. It was attended by visitors from Lismore, Kyogle, Coraki, and Sydney. Miss Esther was secretary to the dance, and she was complimented on its successful issue.

The Bombala Polo Club's annual carnival was held on Friday night, 15th inst., in the School of Arts. The hall was prettily decorated, the predominant feature being a display of imitation peach blossoms. They were arranged in long lattice-work overhead, and on the stage, with a background of lace curtains, with charming effect. The members and their guests comfortably filled the hall. The supper tables were bright with daffodils from the Cambalong and Bibbenluke station gardens. Amongst those present were Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Newton, Mrs. Welch, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Sautelle, Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. Earle, Mrs. Copeland, Mrs. G. Wildash.

The matrons' ball of Yass and the surrounding district was held on Friday, September 15, in the hall of the Mechanics' Institute, and was attended by visitors from all the southern towns, about 200 guests being present. The walls of the hall were draped with yellow muslin from ceiling to floor, and the supper tables were artistically decorated with daffodils. A committee of matrons received their guests at the entrance to the ballroom, each matron carrying a posy of violets. Amongst those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hill and Mr. L. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Maddrell, Mr. and Miss Waddell, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Wood, Miss Wood, and Mr. Arthur Wood, Mrs. C. Massey, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Love, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Stewart, Mr. A. B. A dance in aid of St. Margaret's Hospital took place in the Paddington Town Hall on Tuesday, September 26, and was well attended. Miss Daly was president of the ball committee, Matron Abbot and Mrs. Coffill the hon. treasurers, and Mrs. Byrnes and Mr. J. R. Hough hon. secretaries.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dixson entertained a number of guests at their residence, Abergeldie, Old Canterbury-road, Summer Hill, last Saturday, the guests being invited to meet the president and members of the council and ladies' committee of the Prisoners' Aid Association of New South Wales. Amongst those present were Mr. A. H. Collis (late Governor of Darlinghurst Gaol), Mr. Charles Graham (late Governor of Goulburn Gaol), Rev. T. Hillhouse Taylor (prison chaplain), Mr. J. H. Whitelaw (chief clerk of the Prisons Department), Messrs. C. R. Walsh, H. M. Hamilton, E. Baylis, R. H. Ducker, and T. R. Mr. Hugh Dixson, who is a vice-president of the association, alluded to the valuable nature of the work performed by the society in helping discharged prisoners to seek a better mode of life. In many instances situations had been found for the discharged prisoners, and by the help extended by the society to unfortunate men and women at a time when it was most needed, many had been enabled to completely reform their lives and become useful citizens.

The twelfth annual daffodil show of the Ministering Children's League was held in the Moss Vale Hall on Friday, 15th inst., under rather unfavourable weather conditions, which deterred a large number of visitors from attending. Hill, assisted by Mrs. Richardson, and the success of the show was greatly due to their untiring efforts.

Young (Deputy Postmaster-General), of Sylvania, and Mr. Peter Britz, of "Fernbank," Edgecliff, was solemnised by the Rev. Canon Bellingham, assisted by the Rev. Joseph Young, uncle of the bride. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a white charmeuse, with an overdress of embroidered net. Her Honiton lace veil was arranged over a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet, which, with a diamond pendant, was the gift of the bridegroom. The bridesmaids were Miss Doris Douglass and Miss Enid Douglass. They were dainty lingerie frocks of Malines lace, and white ninon hats, trimmed with lace and posies of roses. They carried baskets of pink roses, and wore watch bracelets, the gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. H. Ireland acted as best man, and Mr. H. Douglass as usher. Mrs. Norman Richards (Queensland) sang "Beloved, it is Morn," during the ceremony. A reception was afterwards held at the residence of Mr. W. C. Douglass, "Elstree," Wolseley-road, Point Piper. The bride travelled in a dainty blue crepe-de-chine, with Oriental trimmings, and a white tagel straw hat, trimmed with white orchids. The presents were costly and numerous. Amongst them were several from London and the United States.

At the Presbyterian Church, Ocean-street, Woollahra, on August 30, by the Rev. Sweyn Macqueen, D.D., Ernest James Ryall, eldest son of the late James Ryall, of Waverley, and formerly of Grafton, was married to Muriel Frances Braden, only daughter of Mr. A. J. Braden, of Waverley. The bride wore mousseline de soie, trimmed with Cluny lace and insertion; also a wreath of orange blossoms and veil, and carried a shower bouquet, the latter, with an amethyst and pearl bangle, being the gifts of the bridegroom. Three bridesmaids were in attendance—the Misses Ethel Ryall, Edith Franklin, and Freda Forth. Their bouquets of pink stocks, with grey and pink streamers, and gold bamboo bangles, were gifts from the bridegroom. Mr. W. G. Ryall acted as best man, and Mr. E. E. Braden as groomsman, and Mr. E. G. Vincent was usher. During the interval in the ceremony Miss Gladys Bourke sang "The Song of Thanksgiving." A reception was afterwards held at Harkness Hall, Woollahra, where about 60 guests were entertained. The presents were numerous and handsome.

The marriage of Mr. Robert B. Cameron, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Cameron, of Darling Point, and Miss Muriel Gladys T. Browne, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Browne, of Greencliffe, M'Mahon's Point, took place at St. James' Church on Saturday afternoon, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Wentworth Sheilds. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a handsome dress of white duchess satin, with a porcelain beaded tunic, and a square train draped with ninon and finished with beads; a chou of tulle was worn instead of the usual wreath, from which fell a veil of embroidered tulle and bunches of orange blossoms. The bridegroom's gift to his bride was a diamond cluster ring. The bridesmaids were Miss F. Hutchinson, Miss Blanche Rogers, Miss Doris Cameron, and Miss Enid Baker, who were dressed alike in white Oriental satin, veiled with coral pink ninon opening on the left side to show a beaded panel. Their "Nell Gwynne" hats of coral pink were wreathed with shaded pink roses, and they carried coral pink empire staffs ornamented with posies of pink roses and stocks. The bridegroom's gifts to them were coral and pearl necklets. Mr. Harold George was best man, and Messrs. J. T. Rogers, T. Hughes, and B. Walker, groomsmen. Messrs. Sydney Hughes and Peter Murphy acted as ushers. A pretty innovation was the presentation of a floral horseshoe to the bride by little Muriel Hutchinson. Miss M. Hughes sang "Beloved, it is Morn," while the register was being signed. After the ceremony a reception was held at the Hotel Australia, where the drawing-room was beautifully decorated with palms, white flowers, and ribbons. The guests numbered about 150, and were received by Mr. and Mrs. W. Browne. Later the bride and bridegroom left for Melbourne. The bride wearing a pale blue cashmere de soie coat and skirt, with panels of black satin and revers of ninon, and a black hat with blue lining and blue feathers.

The marriage of Mr. Nathan Frederick Spielvogel, of Longwood, Victoria, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Spielvogel, of Ballarat, to Miss Jessie Muriel Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Rosettes of orange blossoms were worn under a tulle veil, which was embroidered in the corners with true lovers' knots, and was the wedding gift of a friend. She also wore the bridegroom's gift, a pearl necklet with gold mezuza, and carried a large shower bouquet. Little Sybil Saber (cousin of the bride) acted as trainbearer, wearing a white Honiton lace frock over silk and a pearl Juliet cap, and carried a pink staff tied with a large posey of pink stocks and carnations. The Misses Hannah and Haidee Harris were bridesmaids, and wore cream marquisette, finished with filet insertion and rosettes of tulle over white satin; and cream tagel hats with pink roses. They carried pink empire staffs, and large shower bouquets of pink flowers. They were the recipients of black opal necklets, the gift of the bridegroom. Mr. Marcus Marks was best man, and Mr. Phillip L. Harris the groomsman. Subsequently a reception was held at Baumann's. Later the bride and bridegroom left for Melbourne and Ballarat, where the honeymoon will be spent. The happy couple were the recipients of a large number of beautiful presents. In the evening the sisters and brothers of the bride entertained over a hundred friends at a dance at Baumann's.

On September 2, at St. Matthias' Church, Paddington, the Rev. S. G. Fielding solemnised the marriage of Mr. Robert Garn, of Waverley, and Mary, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Flavin, of Woollahra. The bride was dressed in white Oriental satin with pearl trimmings, and also wore a coronet of orange blossoms and an embroidered veil, and carried a shower bouquet of white azaleas, carnations, and sweet pea. Horne (brother-in-law of the bridegroom) and T. Flavin (brother of the bride) acted as best man and groomsman respectively.

A wedding took place at St. Bede's Church, Drummoyne, on September 6, when Frederick Sydney, eldest son of ex-Alderman O. H. Chidgey, J.P., of Balmain, was married to Veda Adeline, youngest daughter of Mr. Thomas Hurst and Mrs. Hurst, of Glenyville, Piper's River, Launceston, Tasmania. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. Reynolds, rector of St. Bede's, and the church was beautifully decorated by friends. The bride wore an Empire dress of soft crystal voile handsomely trimmed with silk applique and Tosca net, also a coronet of orange-blossoms and an embroidered veil, and carried a lovely shower bouquet, which with a gold engraved bangle was a gift from the bridegroom. She was attended by two bridesmaids, her sister, Miss Elvey Hurst, and Miss Minnie Chidgey. Mr. John H. Chidgey acted as best man, and Mr. S. Woods, of Stanmore, as groomsman. After the ceremony a reception was held at the parish hall, where about 60 guests assembled, and were received by Mrs. and Mr. F. W. Farey—sister and brother-in-law of the bride—and the parents of the bridegroom.

A wedding which caused a great deal of local interest was celebrated by the Rev. J. H. Wilcoxson at St. Mark's Anglican Church, Casino, on Thursday, September 21, when Miss Eva May Browne (daughter of Mrs. T. Browne, of Canterbury-street) and Mr. Herbert F. Street (eldest son of the late Mr. C. P. Street and Mrs. Street) were married. The bride was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. G. Turner, and wore a handsome dress of cream silk striped ninon over glace silk, with applique trimmings, also a wreath and veil, and carried a handsome bouquet, the gift of Mrs. Norman Martin. Her gift from the bridegroom was a gold dagger brooch set with pearls and turquoises. Miss Elsie Browne, the bride's sister, was bridesmaid, and Mr. H. Pledger best man. After the ceremony a large number of friends drove to the residence of the bride's mother, where a reception was held.

A wedding was solemnised in St. John's Roman Catholic Church, Dapto, on Thursday, September 14, when Mr. E. G. Coughlan, eldest son of Mrs. Coughlan, of Leichhardt, Sydney, was married to Miss Mary Cook, second daughter of Mr. W. H. Cook, of Glendalough, Unanderra, and Mayor of the municipality of Central Illawarra. The Rev. Father Power officiated, and the church was prettily decorated by the Sisters of St. Joseph's Convent with palms and arum lilies. The bride wore a handsome dress of ivory white paillette silk, trimmed with Limerick lace, also a wreath and veil and a pearl pendant, which, with a shower bouquet, was the gift of the bridegroom. She was attended by two bridesmaids, Miss E. Cook (sister of the bride) and Miss L. Coughlan (sister of the bridegroom). The bridegroom's gifts to them were a gold bracelet and brooch respectively. Mr. M. Broun was best man. During the ceremony Miss Ivy Broun sang an "Ave Maria." A reception was afterwards held at Glendalough, where the happy couple received the congratulations of their friends. The presents were numerous and costly.

BOTANIC GARDENS.

The Botanic Gardens have never looked better than during the present week, as we have had cool nights, warm days, and a reasonable amount of moisture (writes the director, Mr. J. H. Maiden). There are so many flowers in the garden at the present time that it is difficult to pick out those of especial interest to the public. Allow me, however, to invite their attention to a broom, Cytisus stenopetalus. It is at present a shrub of five or six feet high, with flowers of Laburnum aspect. It is in the Leguminosae bed, not far from the twin ponds. This is the first time that it has flowered in New South Wales so far as I am aware. It is a native of the Canaries, and seems to be a charming addition to our collection of flowering shrubs. It is not only very floriferous, but the bright yellow blossoms are very sweet-scented. Not far away from this plant, and in the Umbelliferae border in the arrangement ground, is the Angelica Plant, Archangelica officinalis, which looks like a huge Fennel, and at present the flowering spikes are 8ft high. It is a biennial herb of the carrot or fennel family, and is not only a showy plant for the border, but it is interesting to note that the leaf stalks are candied in Europe, and form the sweetmeat used by confectioners as Angelica. The flowers of a bright yellow colour, and the roots are aromatic. Still in the Arrangement Ground attention may be invited to that lovely plant of the small-leaved Native Eugenia, known as Eugenia Luehmanni. It is now neither in flower nor in fruit, but its young foliagle displays various shades of green and plum colour characteristic of so many of our myrtles, that it is a beautiful object at the present time. On the edge of the large pond, not far away, the pink-flowering Horse Chestnut of North America is now beautifully in flower, and will remain so for two or three weeks. Teh best place to see it is from the vicinity of the sea-wall, looking across the large pond, and the shapely tree, with ith masses of blush or pale red flowers, forms a beautiful contrast with the broad white fringe of Arum lilies encircling the pond.

Near the corner of the Museum building, a little to the north, and along the second path from the Wishing Tree, is a slender shrub called Indigofera pulchella. It is a native of the Himalayas, and now is a blaze of pink flowers. Its leaves are deciduous, and have not yet appeared, and visitors may be interested in comparing it with the common Indigo of our coast districts, Indigofera Australis.

LINNEAN SOCIETY.

PRESERVATION OF FLORA AND FAUNA.

At the Linnean Society's monthly meeting Mr. E. I. Bickford invited the attention of the society to a matter of public, as well as scientific, interest. In 1892, when president in Western Australia, he had taken an active part in a movement to have a certain area set apart for the protection and preservation of native flora and fauna. In that year the Premier, Sir John Forrest, authorised the gazetting of an area of 25 square miles between Pinjarra and the Bannister, for the purpose named. Since leaving Western Australia Mr. Bickford regretted to say that he had learnt that, with a subsequent change of Government, the reservation had been abolished, and most of the land given over to a firm as a timber concession. This, he thought, was a regrettable step, and one very much to be deplored. Emissaries of science from Germany, Great Britain, and even Sweden, had been visiting Western Australia of late years for the purpose of studying and collecting the fauna and flora, and this fact, in his opinion, should alone stimulate Western Australia to greater activity in taking steps, before it was too late, to secure more adequate protection for the choice characteristic forms. For example, the Christmas tree (Nuytsia floribunda), one of the botanical wonders of Australia, was in grave danger of extermination. It was quite evident, if reservations for the protection of the native plants and animals were to be effective and of lasting value, trusts must be created, empowered by Act of Parliament, to take complete control of them, as in the case of national parks of the other States, in order to safeguard them from the whims of the politician or the wiles of the exploiter.

Mr. Fred. Turner exhibited the exotic "blue couch," which is said to have caused the death of a number of pasture animals near Muswellbrook in 1907. The inflorescence of this grass is sometimes infested with a fungoid growth, and the "mysterious" deaths of stock might, perhaps, be more reasonably attributed to such a source. This blue couch is different to the native grass bearing the same vernacular name, and may have been accidentally introduced into Australia from Mauritius in the early trading days. It has long been established in Queensland.

A paper was read, entitled "Notes on the Indigenous Plants of the Cobar District," by Archdeacon F. E. Haviland, and communicated by Mr. E. C. Andrews, dealing with an area of 6000 square miles. The plants so far met with represent many genera and species.

POSTAL OFFICIALS.

COMMISSIONER CRITICISED.

At the monthly meeting of the Mail Branch Association of New South Wales on Tuesday night the following lengthy motion was carried:—

That this association views, with unlimited concern (in common with kindred associations in the other States) the Public Service Commissioner's decision of carrying out the recommendations of the supervisers and others heads in this State, who are antagonists to the sorters in general, of expunging the designation of despatching officers, with a view of defeating the ends of the Postal Commission's recommendations to raise the much-desired maximum to £200 per annum, at the rate of £10 per annum increase.

Another resolution was unanimously carried, viz.:—

That, in view of the fact that the department complains of the dearth of officials offering themselves for tests, etc., to qualify for the position of "sorter," this association deplores the fact that several assistants, carriers, etc., have succeeded in passing a severe test nearly 12 months ago, and, although many are doing the sorting duties they are not receiving the money provided for on the estimates, and it is the opinion of this meeting that if all the sorters provided for on the estimates, who have passed the prescribed test, were appointed, and received sorters' money, the public facilities would be safeguarded and better served, instead of continually employing temporary labour for six months' terms, and this would tend to be a step nearer to the long-looked-for improved conditions, and much-desired straight shifts for sorters, as enjoyed by the supervisers, thus overcoming many well-founded claims for overtime and refreshment allowances.

It was further resolved,—"That a deputation at once wait on the Deputy P.M.G. in connection with certain junior officials being given preference to qualify for months, and then promoted over the heads of their seniors, and proved more intelligent colleagues."

NEW METHOD OF REDUCING FAT.

A news item from Paris informs us that the American method of producing a slim, trim figure is meeting with astonishing success. This system, which has made such a wonderful impression there, is the Marmola Prescription Tablet method of reducing fat. Anything that will reduce the excess flesh a pound a day without injury to the stomach, the causing of wrinkles, the help of exercising or dieting, or interference with one's meals is a mightly important and useful addition to civilization's necessities. Just such a catalogue of good results, however, follow the use of these pleasant, harmless, and economical little fat reducers. We say economical, because Marmola Prescription Tablets (made in accordance with the famous prescription) can be obtained of any chemist for 3/6 (which is a decidedly economical price, considering the number of tablets each bottle contains), or sent post free on receipt of price by the Marmola Co., 7 Barrack-street, Sydney, N.S.W.

NOTE.—For those who prefer the liquid preparation, chemists are still dispensing the famous prescription as follows:—One ounce of fluid Extract of Glycyrrhiza B.P., one ounce of pure Glycerine B.P., one half-ounce of Marmola, and mix with peppermint water to make six ounces in all. The dose is two teaspoonfuls after each meal.—Advt.

In Miss Ethel Irving's performance of the principal part of "Lady Frederick," in Melbourne, the critics were unanimous that here was an actress of extraordinary resource and character, and the clever play could scarcely have achieved such distinction had it not been for the perfectly lovable and convincing picture drawn by this inimitable artiste.

The scene in which Lady Frederick's lover is initiated into the mysteries of complexion "veneering" is a delicious caricature of how the average Englishwoman practises her daily beauty culture.

Lady Frederick appears in deshabille, both sartorial and cosmetic: her fine gowns left snug in the wardrobe, and the lovely complexion in so many pots, bottles, and boxes. Lady Frederick of Society is not the Lady Frederick who makes her appearance before the pitiably shocked wooer. Nothing of the usual spark, buoyancy, and colour can be discovered in her face. The admirer beholds a skin that is muddy, yellow, washed-out, and tired, of complexion not a trace. The young man and his ardour part company.

Miss Irving's presentation of this must ever remain a classic.

But in private life Miss Irving knows better. She would abhor the idea of taking care of her skin in any but the most natural manner. In a letter here reproduced she attests the merits of Valaze Preparations in the most flattering terms. She pronounces them "Perfectly wonderful for the skin."

And many of her sisters in the profession share her opinion, as witness: Miss Lily Brayton, the beautiful and gifted Shakespearian actress, says: "Every woman should Valaze to preserve her complexion." While Miss Ellaline Terriss writes: "I find Valaze a most valuable preparation, and will certainly recommend it."

Miss Marie Studholme states that "I have found Valaze a very agreeable and valuable preparation, and can strongly recommend it."

Thus are the Valaze Preparations spoken of among the most competent judges.

Lady Frederick and Complexion Beauty.

Valaze Skin Food is an ideal Skin Corrective, Preserver, and Beautifier. It is Nature's own skin replenisher and nourisher. Valaze stands for freedom from wrinkles, tell-tale lines, drab appearance, freckles, sallowness, and tan.

Valaze makes the skin proof against all vicissitudes of weather and climate, and the use of it, to produce the greatest possible benefit, does not make a greater demand on your time than two to five minutes a day. By its use blotchiness gives way to clearness, softness, and smoothness of skin. You can watch Valaze do its work, for it is essentially the home treatment.

Valaze is sold in jars at 3/6 and 6/6, 6d postage.

As Valaze is not a cure-all, Mlle. Rubinstein supplies the following preparations, which are as effective in their own sphere as is Valaze in its own.

Valaze Complexion Soap soothes, cleanses, stimulates, and softens the skin. Is perfect for toilet use, and lasts several months. 2/2, posted.

Valaze Blackhead and Open Pore Cure banishes every trace of this disfigurement, and prevents recurrence of the blemishes. It closes enlarged pores, relieves coarse and greasy skins, and assists in preserving a healthy and beautiful complexion. 2/10, posted.

In connection with the removal of these unsightly and frequently dangerous blemishes, and also for a skin that inclines to greasiness, shine, and flushing of nose and cheeks, Valaze Liquidine is essential. This preparation acts directly on the pores, and frees them of over-abundant secretions, promotes healthy circulation, and skin breathing, which is so essential to charm of complexion. Valaze Liquidine in bottles, 5/ and 8/6, 6d postage.

Valaze Snow Lotion is a delightful liquid powder for outdoor use, which soothes and cools the skin, imparts a natural soft, clear appearance, and overcomes redness, flushing, brownness, greasiness, and shine. It is a beauty lotion, par excellence. In bottles, 3/6, 6d postage.

Valaze Powder is especially adapted for greasy, over-moist skins; it is pure and dainty, and imparts a clear, soft appearance to the skin. Novena Poudre for normal or dry skins is the only powder which is a skin-food as well. Each in three shades, 2/ and 3/ a box.

Novena Cerate is the most natural and effective skin cleanser (without the use of soap and water) in existence. When skin is delicate and sensitive, or intolerant of soap and water, it should be cleansed with Novena Cerate. Price, 2/ and 3/6 a jar. 4d postage.

Valaze Lip Lustre safeguards the delicate outer membrane of the lips against cracks, chaps, and sores, and imparts a natural colour, which cannot be displaced by biting or wetting. 2/, and Special, 3/.

Novena Sun-proof Creme, a unique preparation for outdoor use, protects the skin from the wind and sun, imparts a natural, soft, clear colour, and prevents the appearance of freckles, sunburn, tan, and sallowness. 2/ and 3/6.

At the Valaze Institute, new methods have just been introduced for the treatment of puffiness under the eyes, or enlarged or distended pores, greasiness, coarseness, and blotchiness of the skin, of blackheads, line about the eyes, and looseness of the skin about the neck and face, which the French so aptly call "cou de dindon."

If you write to her for an appointment, Mlle. Rubinstein will be pleased to see you, but if you are unable to call on her, and prefer to treat yourself at home, she will send you, if threepence is sent for postage, her book, "Beauty in the Making," in which will be found a remedy for every complexion trouble, and indispensable information on the subject of the scientific and modern treatment of the face and hair. Only as a thoughtful and graceful act of courtesy to this paper, please mention its name when writing.

Address your orders, applications for appointments, as follows: Mlle. Rubinstein, Valaze Institute, Dept. D., 158 Pitt-street, Sydney, opp. the Strand.

ON A COUNTRY SHOWGROUND.

A country show would be nothing without the side-shows, from the standpoint of the bulk of the attendance. Heretical to say it, but they are more important than the horses, and cattle, and sheep. More important even than the pavilion, where embryo artists and cooks struggle in fierce rivalry. We might almost make an exception of the pavilion, for in these days of school competitions, the entries run into heavy totals. And each entry has a host behind it; admiring mothers, sisters, aunts, and others. Here we find the biting criticism as the winning picture, the best scone or d'oyley is ruthlessly dissected. Still there are a lot who care not for the pavilion any more than the stock and produce exhibits. But they all have a look at the sideshows—even if only from the outside. At times seriously-minded committee-men arise in protest against the ubiquitous sied-shows, but the wise man, with an eye on the gates, emphasises their attraction for the multitude. Perhaps he remembers his boyhood days. How little then did the big Clydesdale compare with the cute little circus pony, and the wonderful clown. In truth, the pony was often a starved, despondent animal, and the clown little better; but that was not noticed. Of what infinitesimal importance was the fat bullock to the fat woman; the unromantic woolly sheep to the wild hairy man from Borneo, "brought straight from the jungle at enormous expense." And what a mournful disillusion it was when the latter was discovered—through the fascinated wanderings of a small boy—at the back of the tent in partial undress; a very ordinary, very grimy individual, prosaically munching German sausage.

To the average small boy the coming of the local show meant the coming of the circus and merry-go-round, and other delights; a week of wonderful excitement and careful expenditure of limited pocket-money. Expenditure that entailed gigantic thought as to obtaining as much as possible for the outlay; delicate deliberations concerning the charms of different fascinating tents. Of course, the youth of means, who could see all that was to be seen, missed the real essence of the thing; he never even realised the trembling ecstasy of surreptitious peeps beneath the flap of the tent when funds had run out. It is safe to say he never enjoyed what he did see as much, anyhow. The charm of the circus band, the big white horses with flowing manes and tails, dies hard (the posters alone gave a zest to life), and judging from the ring of intent little faces that cluster round the front of the tent, just before the show begins, the most trivial side-show still has the same old glamour. The "grown-ups" see only a forlorn group; seamy, hard faces that tell the story of a dreary battle through life; tawdry, tarnished costumes, pinched and darned and cunningly contrived to further eke out an ancient existence. Hear raucous voices murdering some popular song, humorous when sentimental, pathetic when humorous; hear the same old wheezy gags, the old flamboyant story of the merits of the show. Happily in some respects at least the youngsters have not yet realised "that all is not gold that glitters," and it is all absorbingly, wonderfully real, excepting to that awful anachronism, the supercilious child of the city, who was never really a boy, much to his own misfortune and loss.

The circus, the merry-go-round, the abbreviated menagerie, the shooting gallery, the Aunt Sally, and others are all old, legitimate, and established favourites, that roam through the generations with varying fortunes. A side-show that is possesses of a strange attraction nowadays is a more elaborate edition of the old "what you ring you get." Apparently it should not take much capital to establish such concerns, but they appear very lucrative. A circular stall is fitted up with a wonderful collection of tawdry, cheap goods, ranging from pipes to teapots, cruets, ornaments, studs, and glittering, but not enduring, novelties. The patrons buy large rings or quoits, a penny each, with a reduction for a quantity, and then try and "ring" whatever article takes their fancy. It is a mere detail that there is hardly an article worth possessing. The stall is generally surrounded with people, big and little, desperately trying to win. When they do there is frantic expressions of delight, for at the bottom it is really a contest between the crowd and the showman. The crowd knows the other fellow must win on an average, but that does not matter. It is common to hear a lot of indignant, well-meant moralising regarding these concerns, and regret that people should waste time and money at such paltry amusements. But it seems to us that the fact is overlooked that most folks attending a country show are out solely to enjoy themselves to the best of their lights. In this case they know probably that it would be cheaper to go and buy such articles if they wanted them, but then there is the joy of winning, and the man or boy, woman or girl who does ring an article undoubtedly obtains a heap of fun out of it. There is always a pride in winning. And why not? It is harmless fun, and none can gauge another's pleasure. Probably many thus engaged look with scorn upon an able-bodied man hitting a small white ball with an iron-shod stick. They do not dream of how preverse that small ball can be. Yet it is harder at times to hit that ball in the right place with the right swing than to land a ring nice and comfortably around a gorgeous green and gold biscuit barrel, or glittering nickel-silver pipe.

It is perhaps not so easy to understand why people are beguiled into buying what the humorous-tongued, but intensely serious from a business standpoint, salesman describes as "Y.M.C.A. studs, because they are never lost!" But then others eagerly give a sovereign for a small piece of brown paper from the garish individual alongside, whose respectability is guaranteed by his evening dress suit, which he makes a point of wearing. This business is a recrudescence of the old days, when the famous "Gyp" Jones sold so many purses containing three halfpennies in places of three sovereigns. Certainly, now and again a lucky individual won; the lure for further business. So in this case the occasional buyer receives for his piece of brown paper his sovereign back, another added to it, and some trifling article. Needless to say, the majority do not; for their sovereign they receive ultimately some article worth a few shillings, if that. But then they willingly give a sovereign for a piece of brown paper! There is no further contract—"Will you give me a pound for this piece of paper? Come on; I don't promise anything—just give me a pound!" The glib-tongued cheapjack fixes his prospective victim with a magnetic eye, which says so plainly that this is going to be one of the fortunate pieces of paper. Undoubtedly it is the unspoken promise lurking in that eye that does the business. At the psychological moment someone is produced who actually did get, not only his own pound back, but more besides. Perhaps he is a local man, who, visibly uncomfortable at unwonted publicity, ejaculates confirmation of this fact, and denies vigorously that he is a friend of the salesman. There is still no distinct promise, but the suggestion is effective. The pieces of paper sell in a manner calculated to cause the politician with a belief in paper money infinite envy. This gamble is generally marked by lulls of pronounced suspicion and short spurts of reckless purchase.

The thing is a swindle on the face of it, and most people know it. They risk the money on the chance of being the lucky one, much as a man takes a ticket in "Tatt's," although in that case it is pure luck; while in the former the dress-suit gentleman is the deciding factor all the time, and he is out to win. It seems an anomaly that a country that prohibits the big sweep allows this other business to flourish. One of these men boasts of having made £80 at one small country show, and £120 at another somewhat larger. It is hard-earned money secured by a plausible tongue, and easily earned in the latter case. If there is any gratifying feature about the whole business it is that the success of these gentry is a striking proof of the prosperity of certain districts. None feel the pinch of adverse conditions more than the travelling showmen, be his show legitimate or a fraud. In one district where the season had not been very good the above trick failed to elicit any patronage, whereas down in the wheat districts of Riverina, where things have boomed the last few seasons, quite a merry business has been done.

But the gentleman in an evening-dress suit selling pieces of blank paper for sovereigns is one of the side shows that could be dispensed with on a country show ground.

THE WOOL TRADE.

A BETTER TONE.

After a week's recess wool auctions were resumed in the Sydney market on Monday last, and the general tone was much healthier than during the week ended September 16. When sales opened on September 11 for the week there were grave fears of international differences over the Moroccan question, and the market reflected the tension that existed at that time on the Continent. As the week wore on some of the clouds lifted, and the market brightened, being considerably better at the close than the opening. After that came the Brisbane and Adelaide sales. In the meantime, prospects of a diplomatic settlement of international differences became pronounced, with the result that the wool market is now proceeding on much more normal lines, and buyers are operating with far greater confidence than was the case two or three weeks ago. The proportion of clearances to the offerings at auction fairly indicates the position. On the four selling days from September 11 to 14, inclusive, the offerings aggregated 23,211 bales, and the clearances under the hammer 17,061 bales; as compared with 29,644 bales offered, and 26,222 bales realised at auction this week. Thus 6150 bales were passed in out of 23,211, and only 3422 bales out of 29,644.

There has not been a recovery to the full extent of the fall in values, but there has been a firmer tone, and the demand more general. This, too, in spite of the fact that a determined set on dragging the market down was made at Bradford last week with the lower quotations, especially for future delivery of tops. It is the policy of Bradford to run up prices for tops right on to the opening of the Australian weekly selling season, and then to suddenly drop prices both for spot and future. The "bear" campaign there is earlier this season than last, simply because the Sydney selling is earlier. Exactly 12 months ago cabled quotations were at the highest point of the season for merinos; preparatory to the fall of a week later, and at intervals till wool values were down to the lowest depth that they could drive them. The situation favoured those tactics last year. There was a persistent misrepresentation of the supply position in London, and wool was put up in Tasmania during the Christmas-New Year recess—when the Continental section of the trade, that had bought so heavily early, needed some breathing space. This played into the hands of the Yorkshire section of the trade. So when the ordinary sales were resumed they, with Japan, were to come in on a lower level, and get somewhere even with their lower futures.

History occasionally, but not always, repeats itself. Conditions are not always suitable for a repetition. The chances of running a "bear" movement this season on the strength of a 200,000 to a 300,000 bales increase are exceedingly small, and fortunately these occasional rains that are so exceedingly welcome in the country are steadying the flow of wool to the seaboard. The shearing season opened earlier than usual, and the weekly series of auctions followed suit. Fine weather prevailed during the greater part of the time for shearing and transport, with the result that a quarter of the New South Wales clip has already come to hand; yet the increase by rail, compared with last season's wool receipts, is only 10,722 bales, with a decrease by boat of 7806, or a net increase of only 2916 bales. Allowing for some of the decrease in the receipts of wool by boat to be due to less coming from Queensland, through the increase in the sales in Brisbane, it still indicates not merely a moderate increase, but the possibility of no increase at all. In the case of merino wool there is certainly a prospect of a decrease. There is a greater tendency on the part of flockmasters to go in for crossbreds than formerly, and very serious losses of merinos were incurred on some stations and throughout some districts in the north-west through worms and other causes detrimental to woolgrowers in the autumn and winter.

These are factors that must necessarily enter into the calculations of the trade, and exercise a considerable influence in market movements this season. Whether America will come along and improve the selling position has yet to be seen. Certainly the trade reports are much more cheerful than for a long while previously from the United States markets and manufacturing centres. The likelihood of a change in the American tariff is out of the way for 12 months, and as supplies of imported wools must be exceedingly small, there is reasonable ground for anticipating some activity on American account in the Australian markets this season. Referring to that aspect of the situation at Boston last month, the "Wool and Cotton Reporter" said: "The situation with regard to foreign wools on this market is without change, and outside of the rumour of a sale of 300 bales of Australian merino wool, no transfers of any large lots of wool are reported. A transfer of 31 bales of Buenos Ayres good quarter-blood, or about 30,000lb, is reported at 33 cents; also another lot of the same kind amounting to about 40 bales, or about 40,000lb, at the same price. Transfers of small lots of crossbred are also reported at prices which have prevailed for some weeks. Among the transfers reported was one of 10,000lb of 80s Australian clothing on a scoured basis of 86 cents. Foreign wools still continue notably weak, and it is a bold man indeed who dares to predict what their future is to be. By this we mean, of course, the immediate future, for ultimately—and there is no gainsaying the fact—we must have a better market, and one of these days there is going to be a demand for foreign wools of certain grades—a demand which dealers will be unable to fill from wools on this side of the water, and should the present strong situation in England and on the Continent continue, they would find it mighty hard to fill them elsewhere without sending the price of these wools soaring. We have witnessed two such periods in recent years, and it probably would not be surprising to find that there is an immense amount of wool, in fact, the accumulation of two years of inactivity in this country, in Bradford, held in anticipation of just such another period. The question is, however, when is it to come? Certainly, if it should come, our American manufacturers would have to pay a mighty high price for their wools."

Growers are not justified in being too sanguine of America coming in and giving a great lift to the market, but any operations on a moderate scale would be welcome, and be a splendid antidote to the stand-off attitude of Yorkshire. Meanwhile values remain on recently established levels.

Rates current for the principal descriptions of staple now coming forward may be given as follow:—

THIS WEEK'S SALES.

On the four days this week 29,644 bales were catalogued, and 26,222 bales sold by auction. In addition thereto 1551 bales were sold privately ex catalogue, and 1771 bales uncatalogued; mainly scoured skin wools. Two catalogues were submitted on Monday, totalling 7743 bales, of which 6773 were realised at auction. The offerings comprised a large proportion of wools from the western and north-western districts, with a number from Riverina and a few parcels from Queensland. The selection was a fairly attractive one in both the greasy and scoured sections. Clips from the north-west and west generally were lacking in length and were in dry and dusty condition, while those from Riverina stood in marked contrast, being well grown, of broader quality, and in generous condition. The selection of scoureds included some choice lines. There was a large attendance of buyers, competition was good, principally from the Continental sections; and the demand was strong on the better-grown lines, while low-grade and faulty wools were irregular. Greasy sold to /13½ (the highest price so far this season), obtained for 21 bales sup com e of Gurley (Narrabri), 60 sup com w /13¼, 28 A com /13, and 100 bales sup com /12½, a bright, fine, soft spinning wool, carefully prepared, that met with spirited competition. Scoureds sold to /22½ for 55 bales of Aften (Q.).

On Tuesday four catalogues were submitted totalling 7229 bales, of which 6306 were sold at auction. The selection was not up to the standard of the previous day, no super wools being included in the offerings. There was a representative display of medium to good wools from the western and north-western districts, with a few clips showing growth and quality. The market ruled firm for all good-stapled wools, but occasionally dull for faulty, wasty lines. The highest price for greasy being /11½.

On Wednesday two catalogues totalled 4947 bales, and the clearances at auction 4731 bales. The selection in the grease was an improved one, the offerings mainly comprising western and north-western wools. There were no super scoureds. The market was buoyant, not only were good wools in strong demand, especially lines showing quality, but medium and low quality lines met with a better reception and more consistent rates throughout. Greasy sold to /13, obtained for 19 bales 1st com e of VJH/Widgee (Cubberoo), and 19 bales 1st com e same brand /12½, a bright, dry wool of good length, part being dusty tipped. German and French buyers operated freely; Bradford secured a portion of the offerings, and Japan a few lots.

Two catalogues were submitted on Thursday, totalling 9747 bales, of which 8503 were cleared from the rostrum. The catalogues comprised a good average selection from the western and north-western districts, as well as odd lines from the south-west. A number of full-grown western lines were in good condition, other parcels being more or less touched with burr. The market again ruled very strong for wools showing length and quality; faulty wools, however, were irregular. Greasy sold to /12½, paid for 6 bales AA com w of Pipiriki (Moree), and /12 for a parcel of crossbred lambs of WLW/Beanbah. Scoured sold to /19½.

The business to date by the various firms is as follows:—

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

There has been an absence of auctions in interstate centres during the week. The weekly season, however, commences in Melbourne next week, when about 20,000 bales are to be catalogued, including a number of clips from Riverina. SYDNEY WOOL RECEIPTS.

The receipts of wool this week have shown a slight decrease, both by rail and boat, compared to the corresponding week last year. This has probably been due to the useful falls of rain in some parts of the country. How the quantities for the week and for the season to date compare with last season, are shown as follows:—

BRADFORD TOPS.

Our cable message of yesterday's date stated that business was limited, but with slightly more inquiry. The only alteration in quotations was for forty-sixes, which were dropped ½d for immediate delivery. On the corresponding date last year quotations were put up to the highest point of the season. The price of sixty-fours was put up ½d, and super sixties as well as common sixties ½d. The Australian wool-selling season had only just started, and that movement in quotations was the upward stroke prior to the usual "bear" decline that started a week later. The course of prices of wool tops compares as follows:—

NEXT WEEK'S ROSTER.

There will be only three sale-days in Sydney next week, owing to the Eight-hour Day public holiday on Monday next. About 26,000 bales will be catalogued, by nine firms of selling brokers. The roster for large lots is as follows:—

Tuesday, October 3.—(1) Pitt, Son, and Badgery, Ltd., (2) Australian Mercantile, Land, and Finance Company, Ltd., (3) John Bridge and Co., Ltd.

Wednesday, October 4.—(1) Dalgety and Co., Ltd., (2) Goldsbrough, Mort, and Co., Ltd.

Thursday, October 5.—(1) Schute, Bell, and Co., Ltd., (2) Hill, Clark, and Co., Ltd., (3) Country Producers' Selling Company, Ltd., (4) Co-operative Wool and Produce Company, Ltd.

WOOL SHIPMENTS.

Five vessels have cleared the Sydney Customs for the United Kingdom and foreign ports since last review, with wool aggregating 17,616 bales, as compared with eight vessels, with an aggregate of 11,735 bales during the corresponding week last year. The steamers, with quantities for the week, and total for the season, compared to last year, are as follows:—

LUCERNE SEED.

ABERDEEN.—There is a brisk demand at present for good lucerne seed locally. Last week a farmer on the Blairmore subdivision purchased a consignment of best quality seed in Scone at £13 15s per bag, equal to about 1s 6½d per lb.

SATISFACTORY IMMIGRANTS.

ABERDEEN.—Immigrants from English rural districts are now largely employed by local farmers and graziers, and are giving entire satisfaction to their employers, without a single known exception. A number of new arrivals were employed on Rossgole station all the winter at prickly-pear cutting, and made good cheques all round. They are now mostly engaged in rouseabout work at various sheds. One of these, Mr. John Armstrong, holds the trophy for the lightweight championship of England, whilst his younger brother, at present on Rossgole, is an all-round athlete.

FRUITGROWERS' CONFERENCE.

The Australasian Fruitgrowers' Conference will be opened at Brisbane on Tuesday next. New South Wales' delegates are Messrs. J. Neil, F. A. Nicolson, C. C. Tucker, and F. Chilton. Among matters set down for discussion are interstate trade, oversea carriage of fruit, standard case, import duty, reduction of excise on spirit, rural workers' demands, refrigerator cars, uniform railway gauge; while papers pertaining to the industry will be read.

DAIRYING.

DUNGOG.—At the Dungog Co-operative Butter Factory, Ltd., for the pay ending September 159 tons 1cwt 36lb of butter were manufactured. The price paid was 12½d per lb for first-grade cream.

WINDSOR.—Mr. C. J. Roberts, of Clarendon, one of the largest of the Hawkesbury dairymen, and one of the principal suppliers to the Windsor Condensed Milk Factory, informed a meeting of dairymen, called to consider the unsatisfactory price now offered in Sydney for milk, that if the local factory ceased operations he would simultaneously retire from the dairying industry, for his past experience of the Sydney market was that it was hardly worth bothering about. Mr. W. Percival, of Richmond, the largest milk producer in this district, has, amongst many others, notified his withdrawal as a supplier to the Sydney market. The Windsor Condensed Milk Company has purchased a new business—the manufacture of powdered milk, in connection with which an expert is being brought out from England.

BLACK LIST.

MOTION OF CENSURE.

DEFEATED BY TEN VOTES.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

MELBOURNE, Friday.

As was anticipated when it was launched, the motion of censure was defeated in the House of Representatives by 28 votes to 18. The debate has lasted three days, and it cannot be said that the time was wasted, for it has given the public an opportunity of seeing to what extent the Labour Government will go in its policy of spoil to the victors.

To-day's debate was colourless, and marked with only one incident worthy of notice. It occurred early in the morning, and almost resulted in the negativing of the motion on the voices. Mr. Higgs was speaking. It naturally followed that there was a thin House. On the Ministerial benches were half a dozen members. The Opposition was represented by Mr. Palmer, who was to speak next, and Mr. Atkinson. After a while the latter left the chamber for the library. Mr. Palmer followed him to ask him to send in other members. Directly Mr. Palmer closed the door behind him Mr. Tudor saw the empty Opposition benches and the chance of a snatch vote. He turned and called Mr. Higgs' attention to the House, and that gentleman, although slow to see what was offering, eventually sat down. Nobody else rose, and the Speaker was putting the question, when in rushed Mr. Palmer, just in time to get the call and save the situation. Had he been three seconds later the vote would have been negatived without a division. The Ministerialists took the defeat of their tactics in good spirit, and throughout Mr. Palmer's speech he was subjected to good-natured banter about his saving the situation.

Mr. Palmer claimed that the ukase of the Minister for Home Affairs would affect the Electoral Department, prejudicially, for it would mean that in the appointment of poll clerks and others preference would have to be given to unionists. When Mr. Wise rose a buzz of expectancy went round the House, for this member was the only one whose vote could not be forecast with any degree of certainty. He did not keep the House long in suspense, and before he had been on his feet many minutes made it clear he was utterly opposed to preference to unionists by the Government.

The motion was negatived by 28 votes to 18.

The voting was as follows:—

For the motion (18):—Sampson, Fowler, Wise, Fairbairn, Sinclair, M'Williams, Edwards, Hans Irvine, Atkinson, Best, Cook, Groom, Forrest, Deakin, Palmer, the Rev. Mr. Foster, W. H. Irvine, and Greene.

Against the motion (28):—Bamford, Finlayson, L. Smith, Fenton, W. J. Johnston, Chanter, Charlton, Cann, Howe, West, Frazer, Anstey, Fisher, Batchelor, Watkins, Tudor, Matthews, Thomas, Higgs, Poynton, F. J. Foster, Page, P. Moloney, West, Jensen, Scullin, M'Dougall, Brennan.

The House then adjourned.

"HIS MASTER'S VOICE."

THE UNION DEPUTATION.

WHAT WAS ASKED FOR.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Fisher) to-day issued a summary of the representations made by a deputation from the Trades Hall, Melbourne, when they asked for preference to unionists. The summary reads as follows:—

"The following members of the council were present:—Messrs. Duprez, Gray, Long, Russell, Campbell, Bennett, and Holloway. The points urged by the deputation were:—

"(1) That in connection with Commonwealth work preference be given to unionists, i.e. that in cases where workmen were required by the Commonwealth departments such men should be engaged through the Trades Hall.

"In support of this proposal reference was made to the fact that Mr. O'Sullivan when Minister of Public Works in New South Wales laid it down that at least one-half of the workers required for the Public service should be engaged through the Trades Hall. The idea was such a success that a considerably greater percentage than one-half was so engaged, and the deputation would like to know whether the Commonwealth Government could do anything of a similar nature.

"(2) That in all Commonwealth work the union rate of wages be paid.

"The deputation stated that in some departments the union rate of wages was paid, but in others it was not. It was pointed out that in some instances the men got certain privileges which were not general outside the Commonwealth service, but the deputation considered it advisable to put aside the privileges and pay the men the full union rate of wages.

"Mr. Fisher: In regard to your representations in favour of preference to unionists, that is the policy of the Government. As to hiring the men through the Trades Hall, so far from being antagonistic to the proposal I am decidedly in favour of it, subject to this limitation, that no restriction should be imposed upon the person empoyed on behalf of the Government to take men on. That is, he would not be restricted to only take people on through the Trades Hall, other persons applying for work. He would be entitled to ask them if they were unionists. Supposing a unionist came from the back country, I would not agree to making him register at the Trades Hall in his union before he could get work under the Commonwealth. With reference to the other point brought forward by you that in connection with all Commonwealth work the union rate of wages be paid, since getting your letter I have gone into the matter, and find that different Ministers have different ways of dealing with employees in their departments. Some say that though the men get less money the advantages enjoyed by the employees in their departments are really equivalent to a higher rate than the union wage. With regard to the question of these privileges, I believe we made an error in entering into these special privileges. In my own judgment we have made an error in getting away from the strict union conditions, which are based on the experience of ages past. Out of kindness and consideration we granted these privileges, but I think it would be better to adhere to the union conditions and rates of pay. (This statement was agreed with by the members of the deputation. We have a Conciliation and Arbitration Court, and we shall make access to that Court easy, and we shall make any award of that Court retrospective. I promise you that. That is, retrospective up to the time of the dispute, so that there need not be any cessation of work. We intend to give the public officers the same rights as the ordinary employees have. There shall be no privileged class in the community, and the only way for the man who has only his labour to sell is to afford him the same protection as the most privileged—from Ministers down. Now, the two points are, firstly, preference to unionists. That is the policy of the Government. Secondly, wages and conditions shall be the wages and conditions prescribed by a Court of Arbitration, a wages board, or a duly recognised union rate. As regards holidays, etc., the customs and privileges recognised in the trades shall be followed in connection with Commonwealth employees."

ABSENCE FROM DRILL.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Roy Austin Barclay was charged at the Footscray Court with having neglected to attend drill under the compulsory clauses of the Defence Act.

After reprimanding the defendant, the magistrate adjourned the case for three months, and said if Barclay attended drill probably nothing further would be heard of the case.

ON SUCCESS.

Quickness of decision and pertinacity are important qualities necessary to success in life, but, always, there must be opportunity. An American millionaire attributed his start in life to the "boss" disliking him and giving him the "sack." He said that he was at the time getting a fair salary, and, if the "boss" had liked him, his life probably would have been spent in the same employment. The great thing is to recognise opportunity when it presents itself. Of course, anyone who suffers from ill-health is enormously handicapped in the struggle for success. No one can possibly do his best when suffering, as so many persons do, from common ailments, such as rheumatism, gout, neuralgia, lumbago, backache, sciatica, blood disorders, anaemia, indigestion, biliousness, jaundice, sick-headache, general debility, gravel, stone or bladder troubles. Anyone thus afflicted is strongly recommended to try the effect of Warner's Safe Cure. The curative action of Warner's Safe Cure is due to the stimulating and restorative action of the medicine upon the kidneys and liver. When the kidneys and liver are acting efficiently the uric and biliary poisons are duly expelled from the body, and it is the retention of these poisons which causes suffering from all of the complaints named above. Warner's Safe Cure is sold by chemists and storekeepers everywhere, both in the original (5s) bottles and in the cheaper (2s 6d) non-alcoholic, "Concentrated" form.—Advt.

BEAUTY'S FAVOURITE.

The article which excels all others in improving the beauty of the skin is naturally and deservedly beauty's favourite. This has been the acknowledged and honoured position held by PEAR'S SOAP for nearly 120 years. It won, and has maintained that position by virtue of its complete purity, and by the possession of those special emollient properties which soften, refine, and impart natural colour to the skin. No other soap possesses these qualities in such a pre-eminent degree as

MAKE YOUR BATH A PLEASANT TREAT

After a heavy day's toil, when tired out after vigorous exercise or study, a bath with a few drops of this splendid hygienic AMMONIA in it, is a delightful, nerve-soothing, body-refreshing luxury. It cools the skin, removes perspiratory odours, invigorates healthily after mental or physical fatigue, keeps the pores open, and the body in health. Use it always during the fatiguing summer months.

WITH BAYLEYS CLOUDY AMMONIA.

Rheumatism is rife in each sex to-day, and it is often aided in its intense agonising pain by neglect to keep the pores open and the skin free from uric acid perspiration. The result is that the acid poison remains in and on the skin, blocking the pores, preventing free, natural exudation, and intensified rheumatism results.

Always use BAYLEYS CLOUDY AMMONIA in your bath; a few drops of it neutralise uric acid effects on the skin, and makes the bath a perfect treat. It is beyond value.

PRIZE FIGHTING.

Mr. Bruntnell, by his question on Thursday afternoon, has brought under the notice of Parliament a subject which has for some time been a source of anxiety to many of his fellow-citizens. It is now approximately three years since a small number of speculators began to realise how much money could be made in Sydney in its present state of prosperity by the exhibition after sufficient advertisement of the best-known pugilists collected from all parts of the world. The first fight was successfully surrounded with some of the glamour of an international contest. Australians having been persuaded that Squires had some sort of a chance were induced to believe that it was a mark of patriotism to take an interest in his fortunes. The fight itself was a convincing answer to the charge that Sydney is a city devoted to pleasure. It may, indeed, have given pleasure to the small band of experts who could appreciate the victory of skill over energy and good intentions. But to the ordinary observer it was a melancholy exhibition whether he considered the nature of the contest, the behaviour and the character of the disappointed partisans, or the purpose for which they had been brought together. Nevertheless, the result was sufficient to assure the promoters of the possibilities of similar exhibitions, provided always that the public were provided with the necessary stimulus. On the next occasion the interest excited was not that of one country against another, but of race against race. Very wisely, no doubt, an appeal was made, not to any love of skill or of sportsmanship, but to the race prejudices of the spectators. The success of the promoters we know, both from the figures that were made available and from their subsequent course of conduct. As a contest the match was an utter failure. It was one-sided from beginning to end, it was an overwhelming victory for the negro both in respect of skill and of good feeling, and it cast an ugly light on the instinct for fairness of an Australian crowd. But, again, when taken in conjunction with the excitement which followed it, this match was proof positive of the value of the cry of white against black, especially in countries which have reason to understand the importance of the colour problem.

The negotiations, the rumours, the denials, and the counter-charges which preceded the resuscitation of Jeffries, all added to the excitement of the next encounter. Sydney had for once cause to be grateful for its position, "cut off from the whole world," since it was spared the influx of thieves and gamblers from all parts of the American Continent, who were stirred to express their sympathy with Jeffries or Johnson. It may possibly be doubted whether the exultation among the negro population caused by this scene of brutality and folly was as great as has been imagined. The list of casualties was no longer than is customary after a celebration of the Fourth of July. But if the negroes were moved to assert themselves by the only methods familiar to them, there is no doubt who should be blamed for their actions. The blame should not be placed on either of the pugilists, but on the spectators, who for their own purposes gave to this trial of strength and to the issue then decided an entirely fictitious importance. There were many who, though they lamented the defeat of Jeffries under the circumstances, thought that his complete failure would have served a good purpose by putting an end to the appetite for such exhibitions, and consequently to the profit to be derived from them. Such hopes were soon to be destroyed. The negro population were given a more solid ground for contempt of the white race by the recurrent rumours that a "white hope" had been discovered, and by the enthusiasm with which such rumours were received. Happily as yet no one has appeared capable of reproducing the excitement of the fight at Reno. Johnson appears likely for some time to retain the honours which his skill, his thick skull, and his good temper have earned for him. The absurdity of matching him with Bombardier Wells has so far appealed to the freeholders of Earl's Court that they have been able to convince Sir Charles Lush that their license may be endangered by a breach of the peace, and the police authorities, in spite of Lord Lonsdale, appear likely to agree with the Judge. But, apparently, London's loss is to be Sydney's gain. The new world after its fashion is to redress the balance of the old. The British law, and a good deal of British sentiment, having declared itself, there is no longer anything to prevent Johnson from appearing among us within the limits of the passage of a mail steamer. Perhaps by the time of Johnson's arrival Ministers will have made up their minds on the answer to be given to Mr. Bruntnell's question.

Meanwhile the fights fixed for to-night and for Monday morning will have taken place. We shall again have provided the spectacle of a fight between a negro and a white man; it is to be hoped with an accompanying exhibition of traditional British fair play. Sydney will have gradually earned its distinct place in the world as the sanctuary of those entertainments just as Hobart is famous as the last refuge of a gambling monopoly in Australasia. What effect this gradual and slow progress to distinction will have on the spectators is evidently a matter on which opinions differ. Those who believe its influence is degrading and brutalising, and should be ended, are in danger of having the grounds of their belief misstated by others, who wish to confute them by answering arguments that have never been used. The opposition does not spring from any hostility to pugilists or from any absurd dislike of boxing as an exercise. One writer on the proposed fight in England used the utterly irrelevant defence that Bombardier Wells is as pleasant a fellow to meet as most university athletes. Lord Byron, it may be remembered, spoke of his teacher Jackson as having better manners than the Fellows of Trinity, which, on his lips, was a doubtful compliment, and certainly Mr. Shaw's champion was the only tolerable man in his book. Generally, it is admitted that the prize-fighter, being conscious of his strength, is the gentlest and most self-restrained of men. As to the value of boxing, both as an exercise and as a means of self-defence, there can hardly be two opinions among reasonable men. But Mr. Bruntnell has very wisely insisted on the difference between boxing and the entertainments of the class to which we have now become accustomed. It would be as reasonable to suppose that bookmakers are interested solely in improving the breed of horses as to suppose that the promoters of these exhibitions care twopence about the physique or the skill of their patrons. As a matter of history we know that boxing has always declined as soon as large stakes, with publicity as their necessary accompaniment, have become the rule as they are to-day. It was so in the days when pugilism was considered one of the grand old English sports, and, again, in the sixties, during the reign of Heenan and Sayers. To-day, of course, a new factor has come in with the invention of moving pictures, which have given an inducement not only to arrange the result, but also to prolong the struggle beyond the limits fixed by the relative abilities of the participants. People who care for boxing as a healthy and invigorating form of sport have, in fact, the greatest interest in seeing that pugilism is controlled within proper limits. But the people most interested are those who care for the reputation and the future of their city. Are we to believe that Sydney can gain in reputation by becoming famous as the home of prize-fighting, or that such exhibitions do not harden and brutalise the vicarious sportsmen who see them, not on isolated occasions only, but week after week?

THE SPRING MEETING.

The season of spring is such that few can wholly miss its influence, and though it has various appeals for various temperaments it is probably a fact that there are points of contact in them all. The poet and the sportsman, for example, may have radically differing outlook on this as on things in general; but if the former is mainly concerned with spring as pure beauty, the sportsman at least has pleasure in the fact that his cherished pursuit is well served by the surroundings for which spring stands. In our own case, therefore, the racing festival, which, for a proportion of us, is the one flaming signal of the turn of the year, has its spring justification. It is a great occasion for a numerous public, and being that, it is worthy of appropriate setting of the gaily picturesque. There is, of course, another proportion of us who can find no warrant for any horseracing at any season of the year, to whom, indeed, the cult of the racehorse, and the fine homage of attachment which is universally at its service, is an inexplicable corruption. But, after all, there must be as many opinions as there are men. And the point of view which condemns the whole idea of racing is concerned almost entirely with its accessory disfigurements. It is undoubtedly a fact, and would be conceded as such by the sportsman himself, that the racecourse has a lamentable side, in which fraud, avarice, sharp practice of many kinds, waste of energy, recklessness, and dishonourable selfishness generally, are rampant. The gambling element of the racecourse, too, which is probably as compelling as love of the sport itself in its influence upon the popularity of race meetings, is an ugly portent which no amount of glozing can disguise, though it is but an obvious justice to agree with the racecourse gambler's contention, that the spirit of the sporting chance, which is his essential impulse, is also the essential impulse of most of the business transactions of the world. Some that are apparently far removed from it, indeed, and many that go clad in sober broadcloth of business respectability, are pure gambling. But it is not necessary, even if it were possible, to deny the charge that much of the accompaniment of racecourse sport is of grave disadvantage both to those who are involved in it and to the sport itself. The point is rather that much of the charge is outside the question of racing in its finer significance. You cannot condemn the whole objective of racing because of its unessential accessories. The sordidness of the racecourse is regrettable, no doubt, but the superb desperation of effort of a field straining to its goal as the one desire of the speed, and strength, and stamina that have been trained for months to this specific issue of a race, is, perhaps, the finest of all expressions of contest. And the joy of contest is a noble human attribute, and one which has never lacked response of human enthusiasm

Further, though the racecourse does undoubtedly draw to itself a body of patronage which is as worthless as it is repellent, on the other hand, a great race meeting witnesses to the fine culture of the horse, and has at its disposal, therefore, all the value to the community that is in the science of breeding, and the work of the men devoted to it. Love of the horse is an inborn possession of most of us. The usefulness of the horse remains undisturbed for all the rivalry of motor traction. The breeder may be conceived as combining his love for the animal, and his perception of its usefulness, or its speed, toward results of advantage both to himself and the community. As far as racehorses are concerned, at any rate, this spring meeting of the Australian Jockey Club offers evidence enough that the Australian breeder was never so encouraged as now. For one thing, though the Australian Jockey Club does not specialise upon one great race, as is the case with the Victorian Racing Club and the Melbourne Cup, its support of racing by money prizes is unrivalled in Australia. The rewards it offers are large rewards for many races, and not one great reward and many small ones. It encourages breeders this year to the unprecedented extent of offering £22,800 in added money at its spring meeting, a total hitherto unapproached at any single Australian racing fixture. It performs valuable work, moreover, by its encouragement, not only of speed, but of stamina, as demanded in weight-for-age and long-distance races, and the result of its all-round call for the best is to be seen in the consistently high standards achieved by Australian breeders. For the rest, the great meeting is become such a social feature of the year as to make Sydney a rendezvous of Australian tourists from all parts of the Commonwealth. That in itself is no poor justification for a sporting fixture, and this year especially, with the country consistently prosperous, the spring meeting may be expected to attract record attendances of visitors, and, by natural sequence, to add much to the activity of both the business and the social life of the city. Nor is it any wonder that a combination of allurements such as Sydney in the springtime, the unsurpassed racecourse comforts at Randwick, the value of the prizes on offer, and the certainty of fine sport, should induce the crowded gaiety of a national holiday. In that spirit, no doubt, the spring meeting visitors will foregather at Randwick to-day for participation in a famous fixture well worth its fame.

To-day's "Herald."—Sir Henry Lucy (page 9) has a good deal to say about the recent railway strike, which seems to have considerably upset quite a number of people and ideas in England. The death of Lord James of Hereford is referred to as that of a notable Englishman. On the same page the writer of "A Woman's Letter" advises Australian women as to their summer materials and fashions, based on the latest ideas of the closing English summer. A contributor sends an appreciative sketch of M. Henri Bourassa, the Canadian Nationalist leader, who, owing to the defeat of the Laurier Ministry, assumes a new importance in Dominion politics (page 9). Mr. Allhusen (page 9) writes a pleasing account of the succesful adaptation of the new generation of Maoris to the status quo in New Zealand. The second article of our series on "Golden Wool" (page 8) sketches in a striking and comprehensive way the preparations in Sydney for dealing with the clip. Incidentally he brings out effectively the magnitude of the interests involved, the complex conditions which have resulted in the supremacy of Sydney, and the futility of the parrot cry of decentralisation. In view of the special offer of the Cambridge University Press of the eleventh edition of the "Encyclopaedia Britannica" a special article appears on page 8, dealing with the history of the work and the claims of this edition upon men who need to be abreast of the intellectual movement of our time.

Monday's Holiday.—Monday—Eight Hour Day—will be a general holiday. The principal events will be the procession and sports meeting, the Balmain Regatta, and the second (Metropolitan) day of the A.J.C. race meeting.

A Pensions Bungle.—For many years the stipendiary magistrate at Parramatta dealt with all pension claims arising at that place; but it recently came under the notice of the State Government that the Commonwealth authorities had made other arrangements. As the State Government had received no intimation of any proposed change, inquiry was made of the Prime Minister, and it was ascertained that, in consequence of certain representations made by the local registrar of pensions, the Commonwealth authorities had obtained as a temporary expedient the assistance of a special magistrate to deal with pension claims in the Parramatta district. The Attorney-General has now obtained a report on the subject from the stipendiary magistrates at Parramatta, and a further communication is being sent to the Prime Minister.

Learning a Trade in Prison.—A letter has been received by the Attorney-General and Minister of Justice (through the Comptroller-General of Prisons) which tends to show the advantage sometimes derived by prisoners from the system which is adopted by the Prisons Department of teaching long service prisoners a trade at which they will have a chance of earning a livelihood after discharge from gaol. The writer of the letter referred to, who was released from one of the country gaols upon license, having served a sentence of four years' penal servitude, bears testimony to this. He says, "I am sure the Comptroller-General of Prisons will be pleased to know that the trade of a tailor taught me in prison has been of advantage to me. Since my release I am, and have been since then, employed in my own home making trousers by piecework for two manufacturing firms. They can give me more work than I can do." The Attorney-General expresses himself as very gratified with the terms of the report.

The Golden Rule.—Dr. Karl Kumm interested a large audience in the Town Hall basement yesterday afternoon on his experiences as an explorer in Central Africa. One story related to his passage through a danger zone in the Lake Chad district, in which he was told he would have to fight his way. The doctor, however, believed in winning his way by kindness, and went boldly on with a few followers, unharassed by the blood-thirsty sultan who, it was said, would have him murdered for certain. "The golden rule," said the doctor with a smile, "works better in South Africa than in Sydney or the west end of London." (Laughter.)

Good-bye to the Ormus.—The Orient Company's R.M.S. Ormuz, which arrived yesterday morning from London, via ports, was a day behind time. This delay was said to be consequent upon labour troubles at the time of her departure from England. But she will not be given an opportunity of repeating the performance, this being her last visit to Australia. She has done great service since 1886. Popular though she is, she cannot, however, rank with such vessels as the Orvieto and Otway. What will be done with her on return to London has not been decided. It is said to be not unlikely that she will be sold.

Coining Case Re-opened.—The Attorney-General (Mr. Holman) has had before him for some days the case of the man Youell, who was convicted some months ago on a charge of coining. It was one which created considerable interest at the time, Youell and his son both being tried. This plant was discovered in a house at North Sydney. The son made a statement in the course of the trial, in which he declared that his father had known nothing whatever about the coining. Father and son received lengthy sentences. The matter was re-opened in accordance with the terms of the Crimes Act. Much was found to rest upon the internal arrangements of the house, and last night Mr. Holman, accompanied by Inspector Childs, went to North Sydney, and made an inspection of it. Mr. Holman now has the case under consideration for final decision.

Young Vandals.—At a meeting of the committee of the Women's Hospital in Melbourne yesterday it was stated that from time to time the medical students who, at the end of their fourth year, or at the beginning of their fifth year, spend three weeks in residence at the hospital, do a good deal of destruction to the furniture and fitting of their apartments. They score the floor with their names, written with red hot irons, and frequently maltreat the chairs in order to hold conversation with the occupants of the next door rooms. The coping stone of a balcony had been removed by the young vandals, and a popular amusement in winter is to upset the coalscuttle down the staircase. These crimes are not attributed to the students who are at present in residence, but to others who have passed on. The committee decided that in future an inventory be taken of the contents by the superintendent before the arrival of batches of students, and the cost of any damage that may be done during their term of occupancy should be deducted from the deposits made by each student as he enters the institution.

We are requested to state that the term "Rococo," which has been alluded to as a misleading term, is a recognised trade name for a superior class of photography.

PERSONAL.

VICE-REGAL.

The Governor-General received at Government House yesterday Messrs. Lance, Keele, and Norrie (acting president, commissioner, and secretary of the Sydney Harbour Trust).

His Excellency, attended by Captain Stewart-Richardson, visited the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital yesterday afternoon.

Twenty-one Federal Labour members left Melbourne for Sydney last night to attend the Eight-hours demonstration. The Prime Minister (Mr. Fisher), accompanied by his private secretary (Mr. Shepherd), the Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. O'Malley), the Vice-President of the Executive Council (Senator M'Gregor), and Mr. Frazer (Honorary Minister) were in the party. While in Sydney Mr. Fisher will call on the Federal Attorney-General (Mr. Hughes). Mr. O'Malley will confer with the Premier of New South Wales (Mr. M'Gowen) on several matters of Federal and State concern.

Should Sir John Gordon, of South Australia, receive the appointment of chairman of the Sugar Commission, the work will occupy his attention for several months (our Adelaide correspondent telegraphed), and it is believed that the Commonwealth Government has offered to pay to the State Government the salary of any Judge who might be selected to act during Sir John Gordon's absence from South Australia. Mr. G. J. R. Murray, K.C., is reported to have been offered a Judgeship. An appointment will certainly be necessary if the Industrial Arbitration Bill now before the South Australian Parliament becomes law and Sir John Gordon is appointed President of the Industrial Court, as is popularly believed will be the case. Mr. Murray has not yet replied to the State Government's offer.

Archbishop Carr yesterday celebrated the 25th anniversary of his appointment to the archiepiscopal See of Melbourne. Congratulations were showered upon him by telegrams, letters, and personal calls by Roman Catholics and Protestants alike. Many sent valuable gifts. A cable message was received from Pope Pius X, and an autograph letter from the Governor-General. In the Papal message the Archbishop receives the apostolic blessing, and by the mail this week the Pontiff forwarded a brief conferring on him the rare distinction of being one of the assistants at the pontifical throne.

The electors of Wentworth assembled in strong force at the Paddington Town Hall last night to welcome back to his constituency Mr. W. H. Kelly, M.P., recently returned from the Coronation. A strong committee had arranged a social evening. The Mayors and other representatives of Paddington, Waverley, Woollahra, Randwick, and Vaucluse, were present, or represented, and Mr. Kelly was presented by Mr. C. W. Oakes, on behalf of the committee, with an illuminated address. Mr. Kelly said that the welcome was the best thing that had happened him in his eight years of political life.

The Minister for Works, Mr. Griffith, left Sydney last night for Gundagai, Grahamstown, Adelong, Batlow, and Tumut. He then goes to Broken Hill, joining the Melbourne express on Monday.

Mr. F. J. B. Hayes, LL.B., an officer of the fisheries branch of the Customs Department, has been appointed secretary to the leader of the Federal Opposition at a salary of £400 a year. Mr. Hayes is 29 years of age, and has been in the department for about eight years.

Mr. George W. Davies, stationmaster at Strathfield for the past 23 years, who has been on leave of absence, retired from the Railway Department yesterday, after 46 years' service.

Mr. J. F. Magee, of the Australian Bank of Commerce, Ltd. (head office), was on Thursday last presented with a purse of sovereigns by his fellow-officers, on the occasion of his approaching marriage. The presentation was made in the board-room by Mr. A. P. Stewart, the general manager.

Mr. Angus Fraser, who, for the past 15 years has been produce manager for Messrs. Pitt, Son, and Badgery, and has now retired, was yesterday the recipient of a gold watch and pendant. The presentation was made by Mr. Rowley Anderson on behalf of the tanners and hide buyers of N.S.W., with whom Mr. Fraser has been associated for 31 years.

Mr. John Forrest, managing director of Mooreheads, Ltd., died in Brisbane yesterday. For some months he had been in indifferent health, and during the last 10 days he rapidly became worse. Deceased came to Queensland in 1868, when 20 years of age. He was one of the pioneers of sugar-growing in the Bundaberg district.

FOR WAR.

ULTIMATUM REJECTED.

TURKEY APPEALS TO THE POWERS.

FEELING AGAINST ITALY.

"BRUTAL ACT OF AGGRESSION."

EUROPEAN PEACE ENDANGERED.

MOSLEM REPRISALS FEARED.

ROME, Sept. 28.

The Minister for Foreign Affairs has telegraphed to Constantinople reminding the Porte that for many years Italy has urged that steps should be taken to end the disorders and neglect which Tripoli has endured, and that the exigencies of civilisation make a change vitally important.

After stating the Italian grievances, the message adds:—"The Italian Government has decided to proceed with the occupation of Tripoli, which is the only solution, and expects Turkey to instruct its Tripolitan representatives not to offer opposition.

"The Government will subsequently negotiate for an agreement to settle the definite situation arising out of the occupation."

A reply has been requested within 24 hours.

ROME, Sept. 29.

In the event of war Italy will inform the Porte that Ottoman subjects may remain in Italy and be assured of full protection, provided they conform to the law and the requirements of the situation.

The Government proposes to safeguard the foreign interests and citizens in Tripoli by Italian troops without preference to Italian subjects as far as the exigencies allow.

It has been officially announced that the ultimatum was presented to the Grand Vizier at half-past 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Replying to friendly unofficial inquiries from Germany and Austria, Italy has declared that if war is to be avoided she must be granted such a preponderance in Tripoli as to render her mistress of the province, making the Sultan's sovereignty merely nominal.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 29.

Italy's ultimatum produced consternation in official circles, who are commenting most strongly upon it.

It is stated semi-officially that the ultimatum demands the evacuation of Tripoli, Syrene (Grenna), Benghazi, and Mukhtar, the principal towns on the coast of Tripoli.

The declared neutrality of the Powers has keenly disappointed the Turks.

It is reported that the Porte has decided to reject the ultimatum's demands, and to address an explanatory communication to the Powers.

Seventy deputies met yesterday and resolved to invite the Porte to convene a meeting of the Chamber at the earliest moment, certainly not later than October 14. The tone of the meeting was very hostile to the Cabinet.

VIENNA, Sept. 29.

The "Neue Freie Presse" learns from an authoritative diplomatic source that Turkey will answer the ultimatum by a declaration of war.

Hostilities will be confined to Tripoli, the conflict in European Turkey to be conducted in the economic field.

All Italians in Turkey are to be expelled within 24 hours. Notice is to be served to terminate the commercial treaty with Italy, and Italian goods are to be boycotted.

Any attempt to land troops on Turkish soil will be met with armed force.

LONDON, Sept. 29.

Reuter's Constantinople correspondent states that the Council sat till past midnight considering the situation.

It is reported that the Government has decided to appeal to Italy's honesty and good feeling, but it has also decided to reject the idea of the military occupation of Tripoli, and to make a fresh appeal to the Powers with a view to their intervention.

"TOO LATE."

CONCESSIONS OFFERED.

ROME, Sept. 29.

On the eve of the presentation of the ultimatum, the Porte offered Italy concessions for building a harbour at Tripoli, and the establishment of agricultural and commercial enterprises, with special privileges, but the offer was regarded as coming too late.

ITALIAN EXPEDITION.

READY TO SAIL.

ROME, Sept. 28.

The first Italian military expedition, consisting of 23,000 men, will be ready to sail on October 3.

The Italian squadron is concentrated near Syracuse.

100,000 HOSTAGES.

ITALIANS IN TURKEY.

LONDON, Sept. 29.

The Salonika correspondent of the "Daily Mail" states that there are 100,000 Italians in Turkey whom the Young Turks, in the event of war, will treat as hostages.

NEWS FROM TRIPOLI.

WARSHIPS IN THE OFFING.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 28.

Telegrams received from Tripoli state that the panic among the Italian residents over the intervention is unjustified.

The attitude, it is said, of the Turkish and Arab population is exemplary.

The Vizier is exhorting calmness.

TRIPOLI, Sept. 28.

Ten Italian battleships or cruisers were sighted in the offing yesterday, and caused a general panic, but the authorities are rigorously maintaining order.

ROME, Sept. 29.

The majority of the Italians have quitted Tripoli, and only a few with officials remain in the consulate.

Two large steamers are at the disposal of the consulate to embark Europeans of any nationality.

TURKISH MUNITIONS LANDED.

LONDON, Sept. 29.

The Paris correspondent of the "Times" states that the report that the Turkish transport Derna, which recently arrived at Tripoli, took with her 20,000 mauser rifles and 2,000,000 cartridges, has been confirmed, and it is believed that there is now an ample supply of arms and ammunition for both the Turkish regulars and the native auxiliaries.

The ammunition that arrived by the Derna is now being sent by camel transport to the various coastal towns.

ATTITUDE OF POWERS.

ASSURANCES OF NEUTRALITY.

LONDON, Sept. 28.

The Rome correspondent of the "Daily Mail" states that Italy has received assurances of neutrality from all the Powers.

The Pope, it is said, has expressed sympathy with the Italian plans for the occupation of Tripoli, which his Holiness considers constitute a triumph for the progress of civilisation.

LONDON, Sept. 29.

The Vienna correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle" states that Austria and Germany are urging the Porte to allow the pacific occupation of Tripoli by Italian troops.

The plan of occupation, he says, was decided upon weeks ago, after an exchange of views between the Cabinets of the Triple Alliance.

BERLIN, Sept. 28.

It is officially stated that Germany is still endeavouring to prevent hostilities.

EFFECT IN THE BALKANS.

FEARS OF A RISING.

LONDON, Sept. 29.

Reports that large quantities of arms and ammunition have been landed in Albania from Italy have been confirmed, and there is much apprehension as to another Albanian rising.

ROME, Sept. 29.

Italy has informed the Balkan States that her policy in regard to the maintenance of the integrity of the Turkish Empire in Europe is unchanged, and she will join with the other Powers to prevent aggression. The dispute with Turkey, she points out, applies to Tripoli alone.

LONDON, Sept. 29.

It is understood that Bulgaria will remain quiet.

PRESS VIEWS.

CONDEMNATORY CHORUS.

LONDON, Sept. 29.

The "Times" writes: "Outside Italy the predominant feeling will be one of disappointment and regret at Italy's action. Britain's sympathy is assured for any measures taken in defence of legitimate Italian interests as long as they do not violate international equity or wantonly endanger the peace of Europe; but the step Italy is now taking seems to be out of all proportion to her grievances, and threatens to bring the peace of Europe into more imminent danger than has threatened it since the annexation of Bosnia and Hertzgovina by Austria-Hungary in 1908."

The "Daily Mail" states: "The ultimatum would seem, even to the warmest friends of Italy, to be cruel and violent."

The "Standard" says: "Italy is adopting the law of the mailed fist and pirate galley. It is easier to apply the torch than to set bounds to the conflagration." The paper adds: "Turkey, outraged, despoiled, and humiliated, may seek a revenge, equally aggressive, upon the Christian States failing to protect her from a flagrant wrong, and the reflex consequences will injure almost everybody."

The "Daily News" writes: "It is impossible to expect or desire that Turkey should submit tamely to as brutal an act of aggression as history records." It concludes by urging Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, to intervene, and also urging Germany to take steps with a view to inducing a moderation of the demands of Italy and ensuring peace.

The "Morning Leader" ridicules the statement in Italy's Note that, owing to Turkey's sending reinforcements, despite Italy's warnings regarding the excitements and perils that would result therefrom, the Italian Government had been forced to think of the guardianship of its dignity and interests, hence it had decided to proceed with the occupation of Tripoli.

The paper adds: "Italy is in a hurry lest, if time be allowed for the enormity of the proceeding to be appreciated, the revolt of opinion in Europe outside the Foreign Offices will be too pronounced to be ignored."

Mr. Lucien Wool Wolff, writing in the "Daily Graphic," says he foresees that it is possible for Turkey, by way of reprisals for the taking of Mussulman Tripoli, to seize Christian Thessaly, which will probably entail a European war.

THE FRENCH JOURNALS.

PARIS, Sept. 29.

A section of the newspapers regret Italy's precipitate action.

The "Journal" refers to the brutality of Italy's policy, and expresses astonishment at the passivity of the Powers.

THE ITALIAN PRESS.

ROME, Sept. 29.

The vast majority of the newspapers, including the "Corriere d'Italia," the Catholic organ, support the Government's policy.

In the course of a lecture on "Negro and Mohammedan Problems in Central Africa" yesterday afternoon, in the Town Hall, Dr. Karl Kumm said that if Italy occupied Tripoli she was bound to have trouble. Mohammedanism was very strong there, and within a few years of Italian occupation there was bound to be a fanatical outburst that would strain Italy's resources.

LABOUR TROUBLES.

IRISH RAILWAY STRIKE.

REINSTATEMENT QUESTION.

LONDON, Sept. 28.

The strikers on the Irish railways have withdrawn their refusal to handle "blackleg" traffic.

The directors have replied that they are unable to dispossess the men who have been taken on during the strike, though the strikers will be reinstated directly vacancies occur.

The executive of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants has decided that the strike shall continue.

WILLING TO WORK.

FATAL CONSEQUENCE.

BERLIN, Sept. 28.

Six transport strikers at Duisburg followed a man who was willing to work and shot him dead.

UNION FUNDS AND STRIKES.

LONDON, Sept. 29.

In giving evidence before the Railway Disputes Commission yesterday, Mr. A. K. Butterworth, general manager of the North-Eastern Railway Company, suggested that the trade-union funds should be liable for damages if a strike took place contrary to agreements or awards of the conciliation boards.

SUGGESTED MINERS' STRIKE.

LONDON, Sept. 29.

There are indications that individual miners' unions contemplate urging the Miners' Federation of Great Britain to secure a daily minimum wage of 8s by means of a general strike, if necessary, this winter.

CIVIL SERVANTS' POSITION.

WARNING BY POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

LONDON, Sept. 29.

The Postmaster-General, Mr. H. L. Samuel, yesterday received a deputation from the National Committee of the Postal and Telegraph Associations regarding a fresh inquiry into the conditions of the service.

He reserved his decision pending consultation with his colleagues, but he strongly warned the "small irresponsible minority" against making threats of a postal strike.

Public opinion, he said, would require any Postmaster-General, whatever his party, to take steps to render recurrences impossible, even if he might intensify the temporary dislocation in the event of a strike.

The Civil servant, he pointed out, was different from other workers, owing to the high degree of security of tenure that he enjoyed, hence there was upon him the reciprocal obligation not to withdraw his labour from the State.

MOROCCO.

TROUBLE NOT OVER.

FRESH GERMAN DEMANDS.

LONDON, Sept. 28.

Reuter's agency in Paris states that it is semi-officially announced that Germany's reply with respect to Morocco has been received.

It includes fresh demands and reservations, requiring serious consideration.

PARIS, Sept. 29.

The Premier, M. Caillaux, states that Germany's fresh proposals merely related to a modification of formulae whereon an agreement had not previously been reached, and that they did not relate to the economic situation, which had already been settled.

Several newspapers suggest that Germany is attempting to keep the Moroccan question open, pending a settlement of the terms regarding compensation in the Congo.

FIGHTING IN PERSIA.

EX-SHAH'S SUPPORTERS DEFEATED.

TEHERAN, Sept. 29.

A great battle has been fought at Naubaran, in which Salar-ed-Dowlieh, at the head of the supporters of the Shah, lost 400 killed and 200 prisoners. Seven guns were also lost, and he is now retreating on Hamadan, with the Government troops in pursuit.

It is reported that the ex-Shah is near Astarabad with 400 Persian and Russian Turcomans. It is stated that they seized and killed a Turcoman member of the Mejliss.

THE LIBERTE DISASTER.

LONDON, Sept. 28.

Madame Rejane, the famous actress, is organising a benefit performance at the Hippodrome in aid of the sufferers by the disaster on the Liberte.

Several people are paying 25 guineas for a box.

PARIS, Sept. 29.

A football team, representing the crew of the battleship Suffren, was proceeding ashore to take part in a match when the first explosion on the Liberte took place. They immediately went to the Liberte to assist, and in the final explosion all of them were killed.

IN LONDON SLUMS.

OVER FORTY YEARS.

THE WORK OF SIR JOHN KIRK.

A REMARKABLE CAREER.

Over forty years of hard work in the most poverty-stricken quarters of the London slums—such is the record of Sir John Kirk, director and secretary of the Ragged School Union and Shaftesbury Society, who arrives in Sydney to-morrow.

The Ragged Schools Union was founded about 70 years ago—in 1844. Its object was to reach the thousands of unfortunate children living in the atmosphere of disease, poverty, and viciousness that pervades the East End of London. Its founders had set before themselves the task of benefiting the waste lives of the submerged class, those who had sunk below the conditions of comfort that make it possible for a decent life to be lived or a reputable character to be maintained. Religious and charitable organisations already provided, and provide abundantly for children who are better circumstanced and who require no further material assistance than that which their own associations and environment give them; but there is, and always has been, a vast number of children who lack entirely comfort, cleanliness, or education, who are the victims of the actions or misfortunes of others, and who literally spend their lives in the street, or even the gutter, of the slum. It was for such as these that the Ragged Schools Union was instituted, and for nearly seven decades has carried on a magnificent work, with which the name of Sir John Kirk must be forever associated.

The union started with 20 schools, 200 honorary teachers, and 2000 scholars. That was in 1844. By 1910 it had attained a growth which seems little short of phenomenal. By that time the number of persons assisted by the union amounted to 100,000; the schools had increased to 140, where no less than 4558 men and women voluntarily gave up their days and nights to teaching among the waifs and strays of the dark places of London. Nor is the work of the union simply educational. In the same year over 8800 children were given a fortnight's holiday by the seaside or in the country. A day's outing in the summer was afforded to 107,200 others—a boon whose inestimable value is almost unrealisable to dwellers in Sydney, where slums, in the true sense of the term, are practically unknown, and where a penny tram or steamer transports one to sea or to the bush. And finally 6839 cripples were continually visited, cheered, and assisted by 1000 unpaid visitors.

THE KNIGHTHOOD.

Sir John Kirk joined the staff of this wonderful institution in 1867. In 1879 when the first secretary of the union, Mr. J. G. Gent, retired, Mr. Kirk, as he then was, was at once chosen to fill his place, and during the 32 years which have since elapsed his work has been carried on tirelessly, patiently, unostentatiously. When last year his services deservedly received the reward of knighthood the honour did not come unexpectedly to anyone but John Kirk. On him alone it fell as an entire surprise. That a testimonial from the union and the general public was on the tapis he knew, of course, for the matter was of widespread publicity. The English papers were full of it, and the spontaneity with which the appeal for funds was answered was remarkable. Letters and money literally poured in on the committee. It was the senders less than the amounts sent which testified eloquently to Mr. Kirk's efforts, for only three contributors exceeded £20, and the average was from 10s to 15s. "Ragged School Workers" sent stamps, with a wish that the sum could have been more; cripple children united their pennies; from South Africa, Australia, Canada—from France, Italy, Russia, Germany—English residents contributed their quota. But the crowning testimonial was yet to come. On the morning of May 23 Mr. Kirk was summoned to Buckingham Palace, and introduced by the Marquis of Northampton to King Edward, who told Mr. Kirk that he proposed to make him a knight. Mr. Kirk in the greatest surprise began to decline the honour, but accepted at the advice of the Marquis, especially when told by the King that it was the particular wish of the Prime Minister, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman. The King thereupon conferred the honour.

CONDITIONS IN THE SLUMS.

It is difficult to realise amid what scenes Sir John Kirk has passed his life, and from what unpromising material his work has built up its results. In 1844 there were in London alone over 100,000 children unable either to read or write, of whom 30,000 were absolutely homeless, and all resided in surroundings of a degrading, or even criminal, nature. It is recorded, as one instance only, that in a single den of three rooms, 24 men women, and children ate, slept, worked, and lived. Even now one can find places where conditions are scarcely better. In one room in an East End court live two old people, a young woman, and three children. They pay 3s 6d a week for rent and 1s 6d for firing. Their meals consist of a little fish, some dry bread, and weak tea, without milk or sugar. All they have to depend on is the occasional day's work of the young woman. The East End is a region where every farthing has its value, where trades flourish, and existence eked out in ways and under conditions to which Sydney has no parallel. And it is largely due to the unceasing efforts of Sir John Kirk that so much has been and is still being done to ameliorate the lives of some of the most abjectly unhappy and degraded human beings in the world.

A TREMENDOUS WORKER.

Some idea of the multifarious interests of Sir John Kirk may be obtained from the fact that he is either officially connected, or is closely and actively associated, with the following:—Ragged School Union and Shaftesbury Society (44 years' connection), justice of the peace for County of London, justice in Lunacy, King's Children's Coronation Fete Committee, old-age pensions, Co-opted member of London County Council, National Federation of Christian Workers amongst Poor Children, Sunday-school Union Auxiliary (ex-president), World Sunday-school Convention, Baden-Powell's Boy Scouts, Boys' Brigade, Boys' Life Brigade, Brotherhood Movement, National Federation, Cripple Children's Mission, Young Men's Christian Association, Camberwell Mission (president), Pearson's Fresh Air Fund (organiser), Chartered Institute of Secretaries, British Institute of Social Service, Open-air Mission, London City Mission, Social Welfare Association for London, National Temperance League, Band of Hope movement, Victoria League, National Social Purity Crusade, Alliance of Honour, Secretaries' Prayer Union, Hop-pickers' Mission, London Poor Children's Boot Fund, London Schools' Dinner Association Poor Children's Yule-Tide Association, Barefoot Mission (founded by Hartley Aspden of the "Sunday Companion"), Poor Children's Aid Society, Holiday Homes' Fund, Moody and Sankey Revival Missions, lay reader (Church of England), General Gordon's Memorial Fund, Shoeblack Brigades, Child Emigration Society, Newsboys' Club, Miss Macpherson's Home of Industry, Groom's Blind, Crippled and Flower-girls' Mission, Polytechnic Institution, Stockwell Orphanage, Dr. Barnardo's Homes, Church of England Waifs and Strays' Society, Hospital Sunday Fund, Our Dumb Friends' League, Borstal Prison (occasional preacher), Anti-Gambling Society, societies for assisting the blind, Sea-shell, Scrapbook, and Flower Mission, Sunshine Guild, Crutch and Kindness League, Guild of the Good Samaritan, Hearts and Hands League, and Sunbeam Mission.

On arrival by the Melbourne express Sir John Kirk will be welcomed to Sydney by Prof. Clouston, D.D. (chairman), and Rev. James Buchan, M.A. (secretary of the Sydney Ragged School, together with Mr. W. Gillanders, B.A. (general secretary of the Y.M.C.A.). On Sunday evening he will give an account of his work at the Pitt-street Congregational Church. On Tuesday, October 3, at the Y.M.C.A., he will be accorded a reception in connection with the Ragged School, which he will address at the Y.M.C.A. on Friday, October 6.

REMEMBER THE REFERENDUM.

BUSINESS MAN'S WARNING.

PERTH, Friday.

At the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Geo. Collins, president, scathingly denounced the preference to unionists proposal of the Federal Government. If it were allowed to pass, he said, it would deprive the people of their civil rights. He hoped the Government would see the error of its way, especially remembering the answer given by the people to the referendum proposals.

CABBAGE FAMINE.

SCHOOLBOY TO THE RESCUE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The organisers of a social function at Tallangatta found that not a single cabbage could be obtained in the town or immediate vicinity of Tallangatta.

An appeal was made to a schoolboy, who holds the position of organiser of the school agricultural plot. He went to school and cut two fine cabbages, and forwarded them with the pupils' compliments.

LABOUR STEALS A MARCH.

MAITLAND SEAT.

MR. HOLMAN'S SECRETARY AT WORK.

NAMES ADDED TO THE ROLLS.

WEST MAITLAND, Friday.

Election matters are already creating considerable interest.

Members in the House yesterday were asking what Mr. Edwards, private secretary to Mr. Holman, was doing in Maitland, but they did not appear to get a very satisfactory reply. He certainly seems to be on an electioneering mission. It transpires that he came here on Tuesday with authority from the Inspector-General of Police to see the newly-collected roll, and since then the names of all probable supporters of the Labour party have been ticked off, and electoral claims and transfers for the same lodged with the electoral registrars at the respective court-houses.

An application was also made on behalf of the Liberals to see the newly-compiled list, but in the absence of permission from the Inspector-General, it was refused. However, the Liberal organisation forwarded an urgent wire to the Inspector-General, asking for the same privilege that had been granted their opponents. This afternoon the Inspector-General wired to the effect that the Chief Secretary had granted the request, and at once a representative hurried off to the police station to undertake the work.

There will be ample time yet to enrol a large number of persons on the supplementary list. As there was insufficient time to permit of the recently collected list of electors being printed, the old roll will be used on election day, but any new names collected up to the issuing of the writ will be included in a supplementary list.

Both sides are working energetically towards securing the support of as many additional electors as possible, but the Labour party stole a march on the Liberals, as already they have made claims for 400 names to be added to the supplementary list.

The decision of the executive of the Political Labour League with regard to the selection of a candidate to contest the seat is awaited with interest. Messrs. Thrower and Osborne, Ms.L.A., who were in Maitland assisting the local supporters in the work of organisation, returned to Sydney yesterday afternoon, presumably to advise the executive with respect to the choice of a candidate. In the meantime officials and others interested in the Maitland branch of the Political Labour League, with the assistance of Mr. Holman's private secretary, are leaving no stone unturned in order to secure the best possible results on election day.

There are six Labour nominees—Messrs. J. P. Fletcher, J. A. Niland, A. E. Ayerst, T. A. Brave, L. P. Vial, and J. M. Dawson. It is understood that objections have been lodged against the three first-named gentlemen under the constitution of the Political Labour League. Should either of the three be selected it is stated there is likely to be trouble in the Labour camp.

A meeting of the Political Labour League executive was held last night for the purpose of selecting a candidate for the Maitland seat. It was decided that the president, Mr. Hector Lamond, should attend a special meeting of the Maitland league on Monday night, to inquire into the qualifications of the candidates offering.

Mr. Lamond will report to a special meeting of the P.L.L. executive on Tuesday night, when the selection will finally be made.

PASS-OUT CHECKS.

ILLEGAL SALE.

WELL-KNOWN CRICKETER CONVICTED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Considerable interest was evinced by the public in the case of Francis Kenny, a well-known South Melbourne cricketer, who was brought before the City Court on a charge of having been illegally in possession of certain pass-out checks, the property of the trustees of the Melbourne Cricket Ground, on February 20.

Mr. Dethridge, who prosecuted, said it had become the custom for certain persons to obtain pass-out checks for the Melbourne Cricket Ground, and to sell them to intending spectators who arrived at the ground after the adjournment for luncheon. The trustees in this way suffered a loss. The checks were not given away by the trustees, but were merely lent. On February 20 Kenny had been seen selling checks in a surreptitious manner to persons who came to the ground after the adjournment for luncheon. He stood outside the ground, and when he secured a buyer for a pass-out check he wrapped the check up in a score-sheet.

For the defence it was stated that Kenny had received the pass-out checks from certain persons, and had sold them, being unaware that there was anything wrong in doing so.

Kenny was sentenced to one month's imprisonment, the sentence to be suspended on his entering into a recognisance of £10 to be of good behaviour for twelve months.

TURNED TRAITOR.

CHINESE ASSASSIN.

THIRTY MEN DECAPITATED.

PORT DARWIN, Friday.

Hongkong exchanges to hand to September 15 state that Chan King Ngok, the would-be assassin of Admiral Li, is still in prison, but is being fed and treated sumptuously, and is reported to have turned traitor and divulged the names of several revolutionary accomplices. In any case, several suspected revolutionaries have been arrested at Canton. Thirty revolutionaries have been decapitated in one bunch. It is considered probable that Chan King Ngok will eventually be strangled, this being the punishment for attempted murder of a high official. Admiral Li's wounds are healing, and he will soon be completely recovered.

Several cases of piracy are reported along the coast, in some cases near Hongkong and Canton.

A peculiarly horrible murder has taken place at Macao (Portuguese territory), the victim being a Chinese woman, who was decoyed into a room at a hotel, and there hacked to death for the sake of her jewellery.

BREAST STROKE AND THE CRAWL.

FAMOUS SWIMMER'S ADVICE.

TOO MANY POT-HUNTERS.

Professor James Finney, who claims to be the all-round swimming champion of the world, arrived from England yesterday by the R.M.S. Ormuz.

He was the owner of more medals and trophies than he could wear at one time; but unfortunately these were stolen, and all that now remains as a memento of his greatness as a swimmer is a gold medal recently presented to him by the Water Rats at London. He has been awarded medals for championships in ornamental swimming, diving, long-distance endurance, under-water swimming, and remaining submerged for 4m 29½s.

Mr. Finney acquired his fishlike ability when a lad at his sea-coast home in Southport, England, and was soon known among his daring companions as a pacemaker. He at one time swam from Northpier, Blackpool, to St. Anne's, remaining in the ocean for 5h 17m. He claims that it would be impossible for him to drown without becoming unconscious, and if turned adrift on the ocean starvation would be the only menace.

In the course of conversation with a "Herald" reporter yesterday, Mr. Finney said that the development of swimming had advanced very much during the past five years, and the style had become much faster, though it was not as graceful as the old method. He was inclined to think that the present-day swimmer was too much a pot-hunter, and too little a life-saver. He hoped it was not so, but in his opinion it was tending that way; and if it was not for the life-saving societies they would be likely to forget the breast and back stroke. His advice to local swimmers was to learn all its branches, as well as learning how to crawl through the water in the fastest time.

LAMP-SMASHING HAIL.

Woy Woy on Thursday was visited by a phenomenal hailstorm. Without the slightest warning huge lumps of ice began to fall, and in a few minutes the ground for a mile round was absolutely covered with a white carpet inches deep. Boating parties scurried for shelter. The river presented a beautiful spectacle as the water splashed up, churned to foam by tremendous hail-stones, some of which were larger than eggs. Every lamp on the Woy Woy station was smashed, and the flower gardens were beaten down. The hail lay about for hours afterwards.

STEAMER FOUNDERS.

ALL HANDS SAVED.

A CAREER OF 42 YEARS.

A telegram posted yesterday at the Royal Exchange from Cunninghame, Gippsland Lakes, stated that the steamer Despatch went aground by the pier. The vessel was said to be full of water, but the crew had been all saved.

The Despatch was built in 1869. She is 237 tons gross and 114 tons net. Her length is 151ft, breadth 20ft, and depth 10ft. She has compound engines, the two cylinders being 18in and 36in in diameter respectively.

WRECKED AT THE ENTRANCE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

It was while navigating the bar that the steamer Despatch was wrecked. She arrived outside the Cunninghame entrance last night, and was compelled to stand out to sea until daylight, on account of the heavy swell and perverse tides. At 7 this morning, signals at the Flagstaff being favourable, she attempted to enter; but, owing to the heavy swell or some unaccountable reason, the stern struck the rocks at the end of the eastern pier. All attempts to beach the vessel proved futile. The heavy sea soon swept the steamer round at right-angles with the pier. The stern quickly settled down, and at 10 o'clock the bow, which is half-way across the entrance, and lies in about 60ft of water, had disappeared. The whole of the crew and one lady passenger were safely landed. A local fishing company rendered good services in salving the deck cargo. It is expected that more will be saved when the hatches are burst open or when the vessel breaks up.

VESSEL ENTIRELY DISAPPEARS.

MELBOURNE, Friday night.

A telegram received from Cunninghame this afternoon intimated that the wrecked steamer had entirely disappeared, the depth of water where she went down being about 60ft. The fairway has been blocked. The total quantity of cargo on board was about 54 tons.

The Despatch was known on account of her great age as the "grandmother" of the Huddart Parker fleet. Although she could not be replaced for anything like that sum, the value put upon the wrecked vessel was £5000. It is understood that the insurances on her amounted to £2000. At the time of her loss she was not the exclusive property of Messrs. Huddart Parker and Co., but was owned by a recently-formed company, in which the firm was interested.

AFRICA IN DANGER.

INVASION OF THE CRESCENT.

DR. KUMM'S ELOQUENT ADDRESS.

Dr. Karl Kumm, whose exploration in Central Africa has won him much fame, addressed a large meeting of citizens in the basement of the Town Hall yesterday afternoon. The Lord Mayor presided, and Vice-Admiral King-Hall and the Rev. John Ferguson occupied seats on the platform.

The subject of the address was "Negro and Mohammedan Problems in Central Africa." The lecturer got away from it at times in relating, with splendid eloquence, stirring episodes in his career of exploration. The address was intensely interesting, and the audience applauded frequently and vigorously.

Dr. Kumm said that the negroes of Central Africa were as children compared with the other coloured races England had to deal with. The Africans, so far from diminishing in numbers since white men had occupied their country, were rapidly increasing. They were more rapidly increasing than any people on earth. And as we did away with the diseases common to them, such as sleeping sickness, we would be helping on that increase. We had done away with slave raiding to a great extent, and, if these people had been able to hold their own in numbers in spite of the adverse circumstances in the past, what would happen in the next 20, 30, or 50 years? They would increase very rapidly. Under God, Great Britain had been entrusted with more of the child races of this earth, especially in Africa, than any other empire. We ruled to-day over some 200 or 300 tribes in Africa—child tribes. (Applause.) They were civilised to a certain extent, and the tribes which lived on the plateaus were, many of them, clean morally. That was the first conditions for future development. While there was no clean family life, there was no great future development. (Applause.)

These Central Africans were fine men, and brave fighters. For 500 years they had kept back the Mohammedan invasion. They had accomplished what Central Europe had only been able to do through a most supreme effort. But since Great Britain and France had occupied Central Africa, the Mohammedans were able, through the medium of pilgrims, traders, and missionaries, to do what they had been unable to do in 500 years by force of arms. Every Mohammedan trader was a Mohammedan missionary. Mohammedanism was a religion of law, and they had to propagate their faith. Through the new opportunity we had given them they were capturing tribe after tribe. It looked as if the whole of the negro race was going to become united under the crescent. And if they obeyed the teaching of the Koran they would became anti-Christian and anti-European.

If these Central Africans became Mohammedan then the black peril would become intensified, and our magnificent colonies in the interior would be in danger. Some people were of opinion that there would be a terrible upheaval if these people were not Christianised within the next 10 years. (Applause.) The march of the crescent constituted a serious political, commercial, and imperial danger.

Dr. Kumm then spoke of the eloquent appeal of a chief of one of the clean-living tribes for Christianising influences. He was in despair at the degrading influences of Mohammedanism around him, and wanted Christian teachers for his people. It was a touching story, and partly explained the presence of the doctor here. He is out in response to that appeal. "But," he said, "don't Europeanise these blacks; don't denationalise them. Christianise them, and give them the uplifting and moralising influences of Christianity. Then let them evolve their own indigenous civilisation. They will then, side by side with you, develop the untold riches of that great continent we have hardly touched." (Applause.)

The Admiral, in moving a vote of thanks, said: "I always firmly believed that this great race has been raised up to occupy all corners of the earth for the purpose of spreading the Gospel of the Prince of Peace." (Applause.)

BUTCHERS' STRIKE.

HOBART, Friday.

Pursuant to the decision arrived at on Thursday evening, when a secret ballot was taken on the question, the members of the Hobart branch of the Federated Butchers' Employees' Union struck yesterday morning as a protest against the action of the master butchers in declining to confer with the employees in regard to the requests for improved wages and working conditions. These include a minimum wage of £2 10s for meat-carters and general butchers, and of £2 5s for order carters and grooms, with somewhat higher rates for shopmen and clerks, and also 56 hours a week.

Only two members of the union, it is stated by the officials, turned up to work yesterday morning, while those who struck numbered about 70. Some of the leading butchers of the city were left without a single assistant, while others had the services of members of their families, and managed to carry on without very great difficulty. The slaughtermen and other workers at the abattoirs, who are not members of the Butchers' Employees' Union, continued at work as usual, and unless they decide to make common cause with the shop workers, the butchers will get their supplies of meat as usual. The only difficulty will be that of distribution.

The strikers were hard at work to-day distributing leaflets setting forth the reasons moving them to strike, and appealing to the public to refrain from the use of meat until the strike is over.

Whether in consequence of this, or of the difficulties of getting meat home, there was an unusually strong demand for fish to-day.

THE ORANGE TRAGEDY.

THREE BULLET WOUNDS.

A PREMEDITATED ACT.

MISS M'KENNA RECOVERING.

ORANGE, Friday.

An inquest was held to-day on the body of John Joseph Roache, who was found dead in a paddock yesterday morning, and beside whom was lying a young woman named M'Kenna badly wounded.

Dr. Howse said he had examined the body of Roache, and found three bullet wounds in the head, two bullets having been flattened against the bone, the third in the right temple being fatal. The injuries were compatible with attempted suicide by a right-handed man. The girl M'Kenna was shot twice in the head.

Olive Harvey, a domestic, employed at the Victoria Hotel, said deceased admitted to her he had a love trouble. On her suggestion that she might be able to assist him if he could confide in her, he replied he would tell her later, adding, "You will all know about it on Wednesday." On the day of the occurrence he appeared to be very happy.

Senior-constable Byrne stated he saw the body of Roache dead and the girl lying wounded alongside it. He asked her who had done the shooting, and she replied that it was Roache.

Sub-inspector Atkinson said he had asked the girl M'Kenna while in the hospital how it all happened, and she said she accompanied Roache, at his request, to where they were found. While they were sitting down he shot her, after which she remembered nothing until next morning.

Constable Byrne gave evidence as to finding a seven-chambered revolver lying alongside the deceased, with six chambers loaded and one unloaded. He found four empty shells and a bloodstained rag in deceased's room at the Victoria Hotel.

A verdict of suicide was returned.

Miss M'Kenna now shows good indications of a recovery.

THE BEST TYPE.

EXAMINATION OF IMMIGRANTS.

REPLY TO DR. WEIHEN.

During the sittings of the Medical Congress Dr. Weihen referred in strong terms to the laxity of medical inspection in regard to passengers arriving in Australia. The Acting Director of the Immigration Bureau (Mr. Rayment) states that the number of cases which have come under notice of assisted immigrants being found on, or after, arrival to be medically unfit is surprisingly small, and even in the few which have occurred in nearly every instance the circumstances were such that it would have been impossible by any system of medical examination, however searching, to have rejected them before embarkation. The question of the medical fitness of assisted immigrants has always received most careful attention, and the Agent-General is particularly strict in seeing that the high standard of fitness which has been set is rigidly complied with. Mr. Rayment says he believes that, as stated by Dr. Weihen, in most cases the certificate of a medical man in the locality in which the intending emigrant lives is accepted. This system, he thinks, is preferable to that of having all immigrants coming here inspected by an official doctor at the port of embarkation—an impracticable one, in fact, as the immigrants as a rule only reach the port a few hours before the ship sails.

In order to verify the experience as to the absence of medical defects amongst assisted immigrants, searching inquiries were made early in the present year by the bureau. It was ascertained that although amongst the consumptives admitted to consumptive homes during 1910 there were 28 who had been less than 18 months in the State, no case of an assisted immigrant under treatment for consumption in a public institution could be traced. The necessity for a more rigid medical inspection of unassisted immigrants, says Mr. Rayment, is a matter which is outside the province of the bureau, and would appear to be one for the Commonwealth to deal with under the provisions of the Immigration Restriction Act.

SYDNEY TO PORT DARWIN.

RAILWAY PROPOSAL.

OODNADATTA EXTENSION OPPOSED.

COSTLY WHITE ELEPHANT.

BRISBANE, Friday.

Mr. T. Waddell, M.L.A., who is on a visit to Queensland, expressed warm support of the Queensland Government's scheme to open up the western part of the State.

He said in reference to the transcontinental railway to the Northern Territory that he was confident if the Federal Government carried out the proposal to construct a line of railway from Oodnadatta to Pine Creek, with a view to making it a transcontinental line to the Northern Territory, they would be making a serious mistake. The fact that it would pass through a thousand miles or more of land, mostly of a desert character, would render it impossible for the project to be a payable one. Mr. Waddell said he had urged through the press in New South Wales, and had had large support to the idea, that the transcontinental line through the Northern Territory should be from Sydney up through Queensland. If Mr. Kidston's scheme of railways were carried out, and the New South Wales Government extended its line to the border, then it would be an easy thing to connect with the Queensland system. It would then be for the Federal Government to construct a line about 600 miles from Pine Creek to Camooweal, in order to complete the transcontinental railway. If this scheme, instead of the South Australian proposal, were adopted, it would prove a payable proposition almost from the start.

"When we come to consider the fearful mistake that will be made if the South Australian proposal is adopted," he said, "it becomes a matter of the greatest importance that the people of Queensland and New South Wales and their Governments make their voices heard, so that the Federal Government will be opposed in carrying out what would undoubtedly prove a great and costly white elephant."

By a connection with the far west, Queensland might lose a little trade. If the New South Wales system at Murwillumbah were extended to the Tweed New South Wales must expect to lose a little of her trade, which would compensate Queensland for any loss by the Western extension.

BEST IN THE WORLD.

AUSTRALIA AS A HOME.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Sir John Kirk, the visiting English philanthropist, who has for many years taken a keen interest in the emigration of boys and girls from the United Kingdom, had an interview with the Acting Premier, Mr. Watt, to-day, prior to his departure for Sydney. The chief question discussed was the possibility of some definite system being adopted for the introduction of young English boys and girls into Victoria.

Sir John Kirk said that he was inclined to think that Australia was the best country in the world for immigrants, and he expressed the hope that on his return to England he would be able to prepare a scheme for the consideration of the Victorian Government which would enable many English boys and girls to benefit themselves and the State by coming out to live in Victoria.

The Prime Minister subsequently stated that he had informed Mr. Verran that the Commonwealth had finally decided on the narrower gauge. The matter of making the State railway systems uniform was still open.

WOLFE'S SCHNAPPS,
Has a Peerless Reputation.—Advt.

GOVERNOR AND LABOUR LEADER.

A TASMANIAN INCIDENT.

WHY A DISSOLUTION WAS REFUSED.

OUTSIDE INFLUENCE ALLEGED.

HOBART, Friday.

The Premier moved the adjournment of the Assembly on Thursday night to call attention to words used a few evenings ago in the House by the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Earle) in regard to the refusal of a dissolution by the Governor, Sir Harry Barron, 18 months ago.

It will be remembered that Mr. Earle's Labour Ministry was in office a week, and was ousted immediately on meeting Parliament. Six Liberal members who had broken away from Sir Elliot Lewis rejoined their own party and helped to defeat the Labour Ministry, whom they had put into office. When defeated in the Assembly, Mr. Earle asked the Governor for a dissolution, and Sir Harry Barron asked for time to consider. His Excellency, in the absence of the Chief Justice, consulted Mr. Justice M'Intyre, who concurred in his decision not to grant a dissolution. Mr. Earle's allegation was that outside influence had been brought to bear on the Governor to cause him to refuse a dissolution. He (Mr. Earle) had gone to the Governor fully expecting a dissolution, and was surprised when it was refused.

The Premier (Sir Elliot Lewis) said he had not quite understood the drift of Mr. Earle's remarks when he made them, and therefore had taken no action in regard to them. On Saturday morning last, however, the Governor had placed in his hands the following memorandum:—

"The defeat of the Lewis Ministry occurred within three weeks of the Governor's arrival in the State, and was followed in a week by that of the Earle Ministry. The Governor had an informal interview with Mr. Earle on the Saturday afternoon. After this interview he carefully studied Todd and Berriedale Keith as to any precedents that would guide him, and formed the decision that was afterwards communicated to Mr. Earle. He, however, felt that owing to his only having recently arrived he might have overlooked some point bearing on the situation, and that it was desirable that he should consult Mr. Justice M'Intyre, who in the absence of the Chief Justice and Lieutenant Governor, would appear to him to be the proper person to refer to. He was considerably influenced in his decision by the knowledge that Mr. Justice M'Intyre had never taken any part in party politics. The latter concurred in every way in the decision the Governor had already arrived at."

The Premier said that document he had handed to Mr. Earle on Tuesday. The position amounted to this, that either the hon. member should state that he did not mean to imply by his utterance that the Governor and Mr. Justice M'Intyre were led by any persons or persons to form the opinion they did, or else to state distinctly and without equivocation who the persons were who aided them in giving their decision.

AT THE RACES.

Mr. Earle said that he was pleased that the Premier, practically at the request of the Governor, had taken notice of his remarks. He desired to say that he had made the statement very deliberately, and had remarked at the time he was making a serious statement, but a statement he believed to be true.

Mr. Earle then went on to recite the negotiations with the Governor, and proceeded: "Before accepting his Excellency's offer of the responsibility of forming a Government, I asked his Excellency this question, 'In the event of my Government being defeated, will you grant a dissolution of Parliament in order that I may appeal to the people on my policy?' His Excellency very properly said, 'I cannot make any definite promise on any subsequent event, but you will be my responsible Minister unless there is some strong constitutional reason for it.'" On the Saturday morning after the debate he asked his Excellency for an interview. This was granted, but his Excellency said he was busy in the morning, and in the afternoon had to go to the Tasmanian Racing Club's meeting at Elwick, and he would, therefore, see him at 6 in the evening.

"Of course, I had to accept that," continued Mr. Earle. "I also went to the races and saw his Excellency at Elwick, and although hon. members, of course, will say that I am jumping at conclusions, I know, I never saw an official so attentive to a distinguished visitor in my life as the president of the Tasmanian Racing Club, Dr. Butler, was on that occasion to his Excellency."

Mr. Bakhap: Why should he not have been?

Mr. Earle: The president of the racing club was Chief Secretary in the Lewis Administration. He met the Governor on his entering the course.

Mr. Sadler: As he always does.

Mr. Earle: He went to his box and he remained with him all day.

Mr. Sadler: As is always done.

Mr. Earle: And remained at his side all the afternoon. He found it absolutely necessary on this occasion to remain in close attendance on his Excellency the whole day.

Mr. Bakhap. Do you think he ought to have turned on his heel and left him?

Mr. Earle: Oh, dear no. Oh, dear no. I should not expect any discourteous behaviour to such a distinguished visitor.

Mr. Mulcahy: Are you not making an innuendo?

Mr. Earle: The hon. member may draw his own conclusions. They don't concern me in the least.

Mr. Mulcahy: They do.

Mr. Earle: Not in the least.

Mr. Mulcahy: But they should.

Mr. Earle: I will leave it to the country to judge.

The Premier: That is all we want.

A long discussion followed, and at the close the Premier withdrew the motion for adjournment.

DEATH OF MR. HARNETT.

POPULAR SERGEANT-AT-ARMS.

Mr. Laurence Joseph Harnett, for many years one of the most familiar figures at Parliament House, died yesterday at his residence, Cronulla.

His health had long been unsatisfactory, and it was because of this that a little over two years ago he resigned the office of Sergeant-at-Arms in the Legislative Assembly.

Mr. Harnett was born at Rosebrook, near Cooma, on October 31, 1842, and had thus reached the age of 69 years. Mrs. Harnett died many years ago, but there survive two sons and a daughter. One of the sons is a solicitor in the Justice Department, and the other is Clerk of Papers in the Legislative Assembly, and has from time to time discharged the official duties that his father was so long identified with.

The deceased gentleman joined the Parliamentary staff in 1860, and in May, 1873, was appointed Sergeant-at-Arms, an office in which he served for the long period of 36 years. When announcing the resignation to the House in July, 1909, Mr. M'Court, who was then Speaker, said: "I feel sure I shall be expressing the opinion of hon. members when I say that on all occasions Mr. Harnett performed the duties of his office, which frequently required firmness, tact, and judgment, with courtesy, and so as to command the respect and esteem of all concerned. I desire also to place on record my appreciation of his services and to express my deep regret at his retirement, especially in view of the causes which have rendered that step necessary. Mr. Harnett served under various Speakers from the time of Sir Terence Aubrey Murray, and I believe they all expressed high approval of the manner in which he performed his duties. I believe this approval is shared by the outside public, to whom in the performance of his duties at Parliament House he was ever considerate and obliging." The House, by resolution, placed Mr. Harnett's letter of resignation, and the Speaker's remarks, upon the permanent records.

PEKING, Sept. 29.

Prince Ching, the ex-Premier, has telegraphed to General Yuan-Shi-Kai, the head of the Manchu army, that he has recommended him to the throne as his successor, or to the Premiership.

CANDIDATE ASSAULTED.

RESCUED BY POLICE.

PERTH, Friday.

Mr. Harry Brown, who is seeking re-election for the Perth seat in the Legislative Assembly, was followed by a hostile mob after addressing a meeting in the city last night, and kicked several times in the legs from behind.

He was saved by a police constable and a number of civilians from further acts of violence.

NEWTOWN POISONING CASE.

LYSOL MISTAKEN FOR BEER.

At the City Coroner's Court yesterday, Mr. Stephen Murphy (City Coroner) held an inquest into the death of Wilhelmina Olsen, a widow, who died in the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital on September 21, from the effects of poisoning by Lysol. It was shown in evidence that deceased had taken the poison in mistake for beer, being at the time under the influence of liquor. A verdict of accidental death was recorded.

UNSETTLED WEATHER.

HAILSTORMS AROUND SYDNEY.

SOUTHERLY CHANGE EXPECTED.

A heavy thunderstorm started at Parramatta at 1.20 p.m. yesterday, and lasted until 2 p.m. In all 78 points were registered, which with two points previously registered makes a total of 80 points. The heaviest rain was between 1.25 p.m. and 1.50 p.m. In the city thundery conditions prevailed during the greater part of the day, and after some thunder rumbles at 10.15 a.m. a few drops of rain occurred, followed later by a light shower at noon. It was not, however, until 1.30 p.m. that the storm proper commenced, when heavy thunder and rain were experienced, 46 points being registered. The heaviest part of the storm was at 1.57 p.m., when 12 points fell in three minutes, or at the rate of 240 points per hour. Another heavy shower was at 1.45 p.m., when 16 points was registered in 5 minutes, or at the rate of 192 points per hour. During the storm the wind varied from ESE to SSW, and blew at the rate of 45 miles per hour for about 5 minutes at 2 p.m.

"These thundery conditions are," says the Weather Bureau, "due to the cyclonic disturbance which developed over Victoria between Wednesday and Thursday, and yesterday covered the greater part of New South Wales and Victoria. This unsettled weather should continue for another 24 hours, and by Sunday or Monday a southerly change should set in."

A fierce hailstorm of short duration occurred along the North Shore line from about Turramurra to Wahroonga. The hailstones, which accumulated on the lawns to a depth of two inches, were in diameter about half an inch. Considerable damage was done in many of the beautiful flower gardens and orchards of that district. A resident described the storm as the most violent in his recollection for the last 14 years.

Boggabri headed the rainfall totals with 142 points, Walcha had 127, Tamworth 114, Inverell 97, Moree 85, Pt. Macquarie 72, Kiama 92, Crookhaven 61, Bingara 55, Junee 58, and Blackville and Windsor each 42 points.

QUEENSLAND RAINFALLS.

BRISBANE, Friday.

The following rainfalls are in addition to those reported by the weather bureau:—

North.—Boulia 8 points.

Central.—Barcaldine 20 points, Isisford 7, Longreach 10, Muttaburra 17, Springsure 7, Tambo 6.

South.—Augathella 2 points, Bollon 24, Cambooya 3, Charleville 9, Hebel 2, Mitchell 1, Roma 2, Stanthorpe 15, Toowoomba 1, Warwick 4.

TAMBAR SPRINGS.—Severe hailstorm occurred here on Thursday, doing much damage to fruit trees; 68 points of rain fell.

BATHURST.—An additional half an inch of rain has fallen. The rain was accompanied by hail.

COOMA.—The weather is unsettled. More rain is expected. A quarter of an inch fell this week, making 17 inches since the beginning of the year.

COROWA.—During the past few days the weather has been showery, 20 points of rain having been registered up to 9 on Friday morning. Reports from the country show that a thunderstorm on Thursday afternoon was responsible for some heavy rain over a fairly large tract of wheat country. It is evident that the whole of the district is benefiting by the present rain, and in consequence thereof prospects, both from an agricultural and pastoral point of view, have been materially improved. Early sown crops have held their own under dry conditions, but late-sown are very backward. These should now make good growth.

GULGONG.—A heavy thunderstorm passed over the district on Thursday, the lightning being very vivid. Eighty points fell, which will replenish the dams and watercourses on the stock routes, which were dry. Another heavy storm has since fallen.

JAMBEROO.—Over one inch of rain fell on Thursday and Friday.

LEADVILLE.—Good soaking rain has fallen here during the past three days, two inches being recorded. Good wheat crops are now practically assured, also plenty of grass and water for the early summer months.

UNANDERRA.—Heavy rain, with some hail, occurred on Thursday afternoon and night. Thirty-seven points were recorded. The pastures are white with clover, and the prospects of an excellent spring are assured.

WOLLONGONG.—Rain fell in torrents for about 20 minutes on Thursday evening. The gauge registered 120 points. There was much thunder and lightning. The countryside now looks beautiful and green.

WYONG.—A terrible hailstorm passed over the town and district on Thursday about 4.30 p.m. Much damage was done to growing crops and fruit trees. At Wyong Creek and parts of Jilliby the hailstones were of an exceptional size, some of them measuring 4 inches across, and in several cases falling right through the iron roofs of houses.

DIOCESAN SYNOD.

THE DEANERY SITE.

Further progress was made yesterday with the business set down for the consideration of the Diocesan Synod. Archbishop Wright presided over by a large attendance of members.

SYNOD HALL AND CHURCH OFFICES.

Mr. W. R. Beaver moved the second reading of an ordinance to authorise the erection of a synod hall and other buildings within the Cathedral grounds. He said that the deanery was becoming more and more unsuitable as a residence. It stood upon the only piece of land that lent itself naturally to the erection of church offices and a synod hall. Many people would doubtless object, for sentimental reasons, to interference with the deanery, but their objection could be largely met by retaining a considerable portion of the present structure. It would, however, be necessary to obtain Parliamentary sanction for erection of the proposed building on the deanery site. Originally the land formed part of the old burial-ground, and the right to build on it was restricted under the Act to the erection of a residence for the chief officiating minister at the Cathedral. To build for any other purpose, unless Parliament first gave permission, would render them liable to a fine of £1000.

The second reading was agreed to, and the ordinance passed through the committee stage.

DISTRICT OF LANE COVE.

A special report recommending the formation of the mission district of Lane Cove into a parish was discussed.

Mr. E. W. Molesworth, who moved the adoption of the report, said that the formation of the new parish was amply warranted by the progress made during the last three or four years. There were two churches in the district—one at Wollstonecraft, and the other at Longueville. The buildings and lands made a valuable asset, and the total indebtedness did not exceed £400. The church land at Wollstonecraft was right on the boundary of the parish of St. Thomas, and it was desired that a slice be taken off St. Thomas' and added to the parish it was proposed to form.

Mr. Donaldson raised the point that the Synod could not deal with the report, seeing that certain necessary formalities had not been complied with.

The motion was withdrawn.

CHURCH ENTERPRISE AT WAHROONGA.

Mr. H. Minton Taylor moved the second reading of an ordinance to authorise the mortgaging of certain church land at Wahroonga. He explained that of £2000 raised for church purposes in the parish all had been paid off except £200. It was proposed to mortgage the land in order to raise money for the erection of a rectory, and a school hall. The estimated cost of the rectory was £1200, and of the school hall £800. It was anticipated that £500 would be raised by voluntary subscription, leaving £1500 to be raised by mortgage.

The second reading was agreed to. The committee limit of £1500 was placed on the amount to be raised by mortgage.

LEASING WASTE LAND.

Rev. W. A. Charlton moved the second reading of an ordinance to authorise the leasing of certain land situate in St. Barnabas'-lane, Bay-street, Sydney, and at present lying waste.

The second reading was agreed to, and the ordinance passed through the committee stage.

Synod adjourned till Tuesday.

OIL FOR DESTROYERS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

To-day the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) was interviewed by a representative of the British Australasian Oil Company, Murrurundi, N.S.W. The company is in a position to supply oil to the department for use as fuel for the destroyers, and the Minister has promised to consider the question of purchasing a trial lot of the oil. It is probable that fresh tenders for the supply of oil will be called at the end of the year, and the company will then be a tenderer.

VICE-REGAL BALL.

A BRILLIANT FUNCTION.

Despite the unpropitious weather, the first ball given in Australia by their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Denman, which took place at Government House last night, was most enjoyable and a pronounced success, and over 500 guests enjoyed the hospitality of the King's representative. Damp lawns restricted the guests to the ballroom and the paths, a feature of the evening being the magnificent floral decorations, both within the ballroom and without. Two different colour schemes were used in the beautifying of teh two portions of the ballroom. The main dancing room, in which was the vice-regal orchestra, under the baton of Mr. Louis de Groen, was in golden splendour. The lights were softened with a buttercup tint, and the flowers were arranged to blend with the prevailing tone. Rose-pink effects were used in the smaller room chamber, the electric light escaping through an enveloping gauze of pink, while a profusion of roses red, roses pink, and roses white completed the decorations. The verandahs were fragrant with a rich profusion of lovely roses, set in a frame of lattice-work, which extended the whole length of the corridor.

The gardens, despite the lowering clouds, were delightfully picturesque. The walks and lawns were picked out in coloured lanterns, on which were representations of their Majesties the King and Queen, flanked by the Union Jack and the Australian Flag. The centre avenue, leading from the front porch to the fountain, was circled with a blaze of red lights, which illumined the vicinity with a rich red glow. The harbour effects were rather disappointing, owing to the sky being overcast, and only the ferries flitting to and fro made points of light in the gloom. Refreshments were served during the evening on the verandahs and in the large dining-room.

By 10 o'clock all the guests had assembled, and then the National Anthem announced the arrival of the Vice-Regal party. The procession was led by Captain Verney and Captain Dumaresq, followed by Lieut.-Colonel Bartlett, Lieut.-Colonel Holmes, D.S.O., Captain Brueff, R.N., Flag-Lieut. Seaton, R.N., and the members of their Excellencies' staff, Major Quilter, Captain Sir Walter Barttelot, Captain Stuart Richardson, Captain Nutting, and Mr. Vernon. The Governor-General and Lady Denman were accompanied by his Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor and Lady Cullen, his Excellency the Admiral and Lady King Hall, Lady Barttelot, and Miss Quirk.

The decorations in the supper-room were on a par with those elsewhere. Giant sprays of pink stock set in large gold baskets were placed in the centre of the tables. On the carved sideboards were massive pieces of gold plate; while bowls of roses dispensed delicious perfume from all sides. Dancing was kept up with great spirit during the evening, their Excellencies both taking part in the dances.

Amongst those present were:—The Premier, Mrs. M'Gowen, and Miss M'Gowen, the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, General Gordon, Mr. C. G. Wade, Colonel Foster, R.E., Captain and Mrs. Verney, Colonel Carrington, A.I.H., Captain and Mrs. Rolleston, Commander Brownlow, Mrs. and Miss Brownlow, Sir James and Lady Fairfax, Major M'Kenzie, Captain G. Winchcombe, Mrs. Toohey, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Moore, Miss Moore, Dr. and Mrs. Carty Salmon, Miss Harris, Dr. and Mrs. Radford, Mr. and Mrs. T. Watson, Mrs. H. E. Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Kelso King, Mr. and Mrs. Barff, Mr. and Mrs. T. Forbes Knox, Miss Knox, Mr. and Mrs. Forbes Angus, Mrs. and Miss Huxtable, Miss Macintyre, Mrs. Geddes (Eng.), Mr. and Mrs. S. Hordern, Mr. and Mrs. C. Rundle, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Dangar, Mr. Milner Stephen, Miss F. E. Stephen, Lady Miklouho Maclay, Mr. and Mrs. Little, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Marks, Mr. and Mrs. E. Bloomfield (N.Z.), Dr. and Mrs. Vivers, Mr. and Mrs. Turnbull, Miss Olive King, Misses M'Arthur, Miss Fitzgerald, Miss Greene, Dr. Flashman, Mr. Cecil Weigall, Mrs. H. Chisholm, Miss Griffith, Mrs. Hotham, Dr. and Mrs. Asher, Dr. and Mrs. Collins, Miss Collins, Miss Kirke, Mr. and Mrs. Neville Dangar.

The ball was formally opened by a State set of Lancers, in which his Excellency the Governor-General danced with Lady Cullen, the Lieutenant-Governor with Lady Denman, the Admiral with Lady Griffith, the Premier with Lady King-Hall, General Gordon with Mrs. M'Gowen, Captain Rolleston with the Lady Mayoress (Lady Allen Taylor), Major Quilter with Mrs. Rolleston, and Colonel the Hon. Rupert Carrington with Lady Barttelot, the members of their Excellencies' staff surrounding the set during the dance.

Her Excellency Lady Denman wore deep sapphire blue satin charmeuse, with a tunic of pale grey ninon, and a swathed drapery and bodice of palest grey lace, embroidered with silver and gold, had silver trimmings, and showed a waistband and sash end of dark blue satin; a diamond all round coronet, diamond and sapphire dog collar, and necklet, and other diamond ornaments completed the striking toilette. Lady Cullen's white charmeuse satin had the bodice draped with white ninon, with touches of pale pink embroidery, and finished at the waist with a silver girdle and tassels. Lady King-Hall wore a beautiful dress of palest grey satin veiled with silver bugle embroidered net, and a gold band in her hair, with a sheaf of gold wheatears, and diamond and pearl ornaments. Lady Barttelot was in white satin, with a silver bugle embroidered overdress, and black velvet bands and diamonds in her hair. Lady Griffith was in amethyst coloured satin, veiled with black lace and diamond ornaments. Mrs. M'Gowen's dress of petunia coloured satin was trimmed with gold passementerie. Miss Quirk wore white. Mrs. Rolleston wore apricot-coloured French brocade, beautifully embroidered, and trimmed with green fringe. The Lady Mayoress (Lady Allen Taylor) wore pale blue satin with handsome crystal embroideries, and an opal and diamond necklet. There were several debutantes, amongst whom were Miss Barley Holdship and Miss Maher, who were dressed in white, and carried white bouquets.

Amongst others present were:—Mrs. MacCallum, in pale grey satin, with silver embroidery; Mrs. Anderson Stuart, in white satin veiled with tulle and crystal and aluminium trimming.

THE MOTOR SHOW.

TO BE OPENED TO-DAY.

BIPLANE FLIGHT ARRANGED.

His Excellency the Governor-General will, at 10 minutes past noon to-day, officially open the first motor show organised in Australia, at the Showgrounds at Moore Park. His Excellency will drive to the ground on his way to the races at Randwick, and will be received by Sir Francis Suttor, president of the Royal Agricultural Society, Mr. S. Hordern, president of the Automobile Club, and some of the vice-presidents of the society. The Premier and the Minister for Mines will represent the Government, and a number of leading citizens will be present. Sir Francis Suttor will present an illuminated address to the Governor-General, and after his reply, the show will be inspected by the party.

The numerous holders of stands were very busily engaged yesterday in putting the finishing touches on their displays, and some very handsome shows have been set.

This afternoon there will be a programme of motor car and motor cycle events in the large ring. The Bristol biplane, weather permitting, will arrive about 3 o'clock, and after a few flights over the ground, will land in the ring. The show will open to-night, when the buildings will be illuminated, and another programme will be undertaken in the ring.

THE LITHGOW STRIKE.

MR. CARMICHAEL TAKES A HAND.

AN ABORTIVE CONFERENCE.

For some time past efforts have been made to effect a satisfactory arrangement in connection with the Lithgow difficulty. One and all met with scant success, but a conference which was arranged for yesterday, and in which the Minister for Labour and Industry was invited to take part, was confidently looked forward to, as it was thought on all sides that the advice of a member of the Labour Government would be readily accepted. But this conference also proved abortive. No common grounds could be found in the discussions which took place on which a settlement could be arranged.

The conference was held yesterday morning, and took the form of two interviews, the first between Mr. Carmichael, Mr. G. Hoskins, and Mr. C. Hoskins, in which the Minister was fully apprised of all the efforts which had been put forward by the management in the direction of a settlement, and the second between Mr. Carmichael, Messrs. Scully, Truscott, and Cairns, representing the employees at the ironworks, Mr. Dooley, M.L.A., and Mr. Kavanagh, secretary for the Trades and Labour Council of New South Wales. At both interviews Mr. Carmichael endeavoured to ascertain the conditions under which the parties to the dispute would agree to a settlement, but notwithstanding the exhaustive nature of the deliberations, the result was unsatisfactory.

Interviewed after the conferences, the Minister said: "I had informal interviews with Messrs. G. and C. Hoskins and with the men, but so far I have not been able to find any common ground on which an arrangement could be based. Both parties are equally determined to abide by the decisions already expressed by them. I am rather disappointed in not being able to find any mutual ground for settlement, but I have not given up hope of being able to do so."

THE WHEELERS' STRIKE.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

The men at Wallsend Colliery who were recently out of work, owing to the strike of wheelers, received victimised pay to-day. The total sum paid out exceeded £1100.

MOUNT LYELL STRIKE.

PARTIES CONFERRED.

CONTROL OVER EMPLOYEES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

An interview took place this afternoon between the chairman of directors of the Mt. Lyell Company (Mr. Bowes Kelly) and the general manager of the mine (Mr. R. Sticht) on the one hand, and the general president of Amalgamated Mine Employees' Association (Mr. J. Hawker) and the general secretary (Mr. J. Little), in regard to the strike at the Mt. Lyell mine.

Mr. Hawker, who was the spokesman for the Miners' Association, said that it was decided that the directors of the company should reinstate White, who had gone into the mine without authority to ascertain if certain contractors were working after hours. The punishment of dismissal was excessive, even if it were admitted that White had done wrong.

Mr. Kelly said that White had gone into the mine and bullied these men. Accordingly he was dismissed.

Mr. Hawker stated that the affair would not have borne a serious aspect had not White been a steward of the association. This was an exceptional case.

Mr. Sticht: There was no exception. I did not know that he was a steward.

Mr. Kelly: If the directors were to put White back they would not have any control of the men in the future.

Mr. Hawker mentioned that White had been delegated to find out if the eight-hours principle was being violated by the two contractors.

Mr. Kelly said the company had never tried to interfere with the eight-hours system.

CARGO NOT TO BE HANDLED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Wharf Labourers' Union and the Port Phillip Stevedores' Association have decided not to touch cargo on any vessel arriving from Mount Lyell works during the currency of the strike.

QUEENSTOWN (Tas.), Friday.

On Thursday morning nearly 100 people were aboard of the outgoing morning train. Mr. W. Craig, the president of the A.M.E.A., met the hotelkeepers, and arranged for the acceptance of coupons in payment for the board of members of the A.M.E.A. This coupon system is being encouraged. It is asserted that the coupons worked splendidly at Broken Hill at the time of the strike there, but the local officers claim that their system is even an improvement on that. Prospecting by the now workless men is going on, and several additional parties have been formed who intend working the creeks for gold. Prospectors' dishes have all been bought up, and a local tinsmith has turned the occasion to profit by supplying the demand. No good finds have yet been heard of.

The Railway Department has notified that up till Saturday, October 7, the present daily train will run. This has relieved the minds of a great many who were afraid the town would be reduced to three or two trains per week.

SOLICITOR'S COSTS.

PROPERLY INCURRED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Judgment was delivered by the High Court to-day in the appeal lodged by Joseph Woolf, solicitor, against the decision of the Full Court of Victoria in a matter arising out of a bill of costs.

The Chief Justice said that before the issue of the commission to take evidence the client had no probability of recovering more than £750, and perhaps would not have recovered so much. After the return of the commission he recovered £250 more, and the costs of the commission subject to taxation were £160. Was it reasonably necessary under the circumstances, to issue the commission? That question seemed open to one answer only: Was it reasonably necessary, under the circumstances? The conclusion that the costs were not unnecessarily incurred, and that the proper order to be made was that suggested by Justice Cussen to refer the matter back to the taxing master. The order of the Full Court would be set aside, and no order would be made as to costs.

Mr. Justice Barton and Mr. Justice O'Connor concurred with the Chief Justice.

THE MELBA OPERA SEASON.

A general feeling of relief will be expressed at the good news that Mme Melba is now rapidly recovering from her attack of bronchitis, and will leave Rose Bay this morning for a day or two on the mountains. The diva will not sing on Monday, but expects to appear a little later in the week. An important event in the season takes place to-night, in the production of "Lohengrin." Mr. Marshall Hall has come over from Melbourne to conduct this opera, under a long-standing arrangement with Mme. Melba, but the work is perfectly familiar to Signor Angelini, who "knows it backwards," and has even conducted it in Mexico. There will be a strong cast, as follows:—Elsa, Mme. Korolewicz-Wayda; Ortrud, Mme. Eleanora de Cisneros; Lohengrin, Signor Francesco Zeni; Telramund, Signor Scandiani; the King, Mr. Edmund Burke; the Herald, Signor Cristiani. Last night "La Boheme" was successfully performed, with Mlle. Azarine, Mr. John M'Cormack, and Signor Zanelli in the cast, and will be repeated with these artists on Monday. "Lohengrin" is announced for Tuesday.

ALDERMANIC PICNIC.

The delegates to the conference of the Local Government Association visited the Hawkesbury College yesterday, at the invitation of the Government. On arrival at the college shortly after 12 o'clock, lunch was served, and subsequently a visit paid to each department of the establishment.

CASUALTIES.

FATAL FALL DOWNSTAIRS.

Mary Ann Townsend, 77, a widow, living with her married daughter at 11 Thornton-street, Balmain, was found by her daughter yesterday morning on her hands and knees at the bottom of the stairs. Dr. Moran was called in, but the patient never regained consciousness, and died during the afternoon from a fractured skull. It is thought that she fell downstairs.

TRAM ACCIDENT IN PITT-STREET.

Shortly before half-past 10 last night a man, whose name is thought to be James Edward Swan, of Croydon-road, Croydon, attempted to board a tram car bound for the railway after it had left the Market-street stopping place. He missed his footing and fell between the two cars, the wheels of the rear car passing over his two legs so severely crushing them that amputation will have to be performed.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE DAVIES-D'ARGO CONCERTS.

This evening, at the Town Hall, where the Ben Davies-Esta d'Argo concerts are attracting large audiences, the brilliant soprano will sing "Knowest Thou That Dear Land" (Mignon), the valse air "Il Baccio," "Where the Bee Sucks," "Robin Adair," and two newly published songs. Mr. Ben Davies will be heard in the tragic operatic aria "On With the Motley," Sullivan's "The Sailor's Grave," "My Pretty Jane," and Clay's "Songs of Araby." Mr. Edward Goll will present choice pianoforte numbers. Mr. Harold Whittle will be the accompanist. There will be a holiday concert on Monday night. The plans are at Nicholson's.

CRITERION THEATRE.

Crowded houses have followed the introduction of "Lady Frederick" at the Criterion Theatre, where the next matinee will take place on Wednesday. Somerset Maugham's witty picture of smart society is brilliantly acted with Miss Ethel Irving in the name-part he scene in which she cajoles the bewildered milliner (Miss Nelson), and wins a hundred louis from her elderly admirer (Mr. Stephen Ewart), never failing to bring down the house.

PALACE THEATRE.

At the Palace Theatre, where Mr. Allan Hamilton announces a special holiday matinee for Monday next of "Nobody's Daughter," that touching comedy-drama is holding the interest of large audiences owing to the buoyant emotional rendering of the Plimmer-Denniston Company. These two artists are associated in effective parts, with Mrs. Brough, Miss Beatrice Day, Misses Lizette Parkes and Tempe Pigott, and other well-known artists. There will not be any holiday matinee on Thursday next.

THEATRE ROYAL.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's new detective melodrama, "The Speckled Band," will be produced under the J. C. Williamson direction at the Theatre Royal to-night. The new Sherlock Holmes will be Mr. Wm. Desmond, and the new heroine (Enid Stonor) will be the young English actress, Miss Dorothy Dix. Mr. Gaston Mervale has joined the combination for the character of the arch-criminal, Dr. Rylott. Mr. Cyril Mackay will appear as Dr. Watson, and there will be parts for Miss Susie Vaughan, Miss Florence Gleeson, and other favourite artists.

"THE GIRL IN THE TRAIN."

The Royal Comic Opera Company, which closed its successful season at the Theatre Royal last night with a fine performance of "A Waltz Dream" before a crowded house, will not be long away at Brisbane—where they open on Monday—as on November 4 they will initiate a fresh season at the Criterion Theatre under the J. C. Williamson management. "A Girl in the Train" will then be produced by Mr. E. T. Steyne, with Mr. Tailleur Andrews, a new tenor from England, a new solo dancer Miss Sibyl Arundale, Mr. Jack Cannot, and Miss Florence Young (in the name-part) in the new cast.

"BEAUTY AND THE BARGE."

Early in November Mr. Allan Hamilton will elaborately produce that successful farcical comedy, "Beauty and the Barge," at the Palace Theatre, with an entirely new combination, which will include Charles Brown (as Captain Barley), Kenneth Brampton (a young English actor), Beatrice Holloway (reappearance), John F. Forde, Robert Greig, Wilton Welch, Stuart Clyde, Agnes Keogh, Florence Lloyd, Stella Payter, Katie Towers, and others.

ADELPHI THEATRE.

There will be matinee performances this afternoon and on Monday (Eight-hour Day) of that favourite melodrama, "The Fatal Wedding," which has been drawing large audiences at the Adelphi Theatre. Mr. George Marlow's dramatic company has proved itself quite at home in this domestic story of love and divorce, and the elaborated scene in which the Tin Can Band figures so merrily with its two score juvenile performers is always applauded.

TIVOLI THEATRE.

At the Tivoli Theatre, where Mr. Harry Rickards notifies matinees for to-day, Monday, and Wednesday next, the race-week programme will introduce Barney Armstrong and Kelly, star English comedians; Zelini, described as "the last word in comedy-juggling;" including also the Four Kasracs, comedy acrobats; Clarke and Hamilton, in new musical comedy numbers; Harry M'Alister, in new impersonations; Allen and Carson (last nights), Mr. Fred. Bluett, and other favourite artists.

Professor Finney and his daughter Elsie, "the modern Venus," will open at the Tivoli Theatre next Saturday in a natatorial exhibition in a crystal tank, giving spectacular illustrations of the feats that have won him world's championships in every line of water skill.

NATIONAL AMPHITHEATRE.

At the National Amphitheatre this afternoon and evening, Jordan and Harvey, the successful Hebrew comedians (last six nights), Johnson and Wells (complete change), Miss Maud Mortimer, "the Comedienne with a Voice," and Queen and Le Brun, in their funny animal-impersonation sketch, "Baby's Hunting Day," will all appear. Owing to the greatly increased demand of late for front seats, the management has just had the body of the hall remodelled, and accommodation provided in this part of the building for 250 more patrons than was formerly the case.

PRINCESS THEATRE.

This afternoon, at the above theatre, there will be a complete change of programme, and a first-class bill will be presented. There will be a special matinee on Monday (Eight-hour Day).

WEST'S PICTURES.

This afternoon and to-night will be the last opportunities patrons of West's Pictures will have of seeing the striking temperance drama, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," the management having decided to withdraw it in favour of a new programme on Monday. "All for Gold," the prize photo-play by Mr. W. S. Percy, will be exhibited for the first time on Monday week, said to be the finest local production yet shown by West's, Ltd.

THE LYCEUM.

The Windsor choristers are becoming deservedly popular. Master James Iles on Monday will render "She Wore a Wreath of Roses," and the boys "Excelsior." Amongst the pictures shown by Spencer's Pictures, Ltd., are "The Charity of the Poor," "Little Rebel," "Told in the Sierras," "A Clever Fraud and a Powerful Voice." There will be a matinee to-day and on Monday. On Monday an extra attraction will be "A Foe to Richelieu."

The management have arranged with Mr. Geo. Musgrove for moving pictures of Miss Stewart and her original company and accessories. The first will be "Sweet Nell of Old Drury."

LYRIC AND COLONIAL THEATRES.

At the Lyric on Monday the new programme will contain "Barriers Burned Away," "In the Aquarium," "The Lost Horse," "The Aviator and the Journalist's Wife," "Scroggins and the Fly Pest," and Pathe's "European Gazette." PORT PHILLIP LEADING LIGHTS.

A marked improvement, which will be greatly appreciated by mariners, has been effected by the Melbourne Harbour Trust authorities in regard to the leading lights. On the end of the Port Melbourne railway pier a modern green gas light, equal to 200 candle-power, has been installed, whilst on shore near the old drill-room, a similar light, coloured red, has been erected. An inspection of the lights was made last night recently by some of the port authorities, accompanied by representatives of the sea pilot service, and the opinion was unanimously expressed that the lights left little, if anything, to be desired.

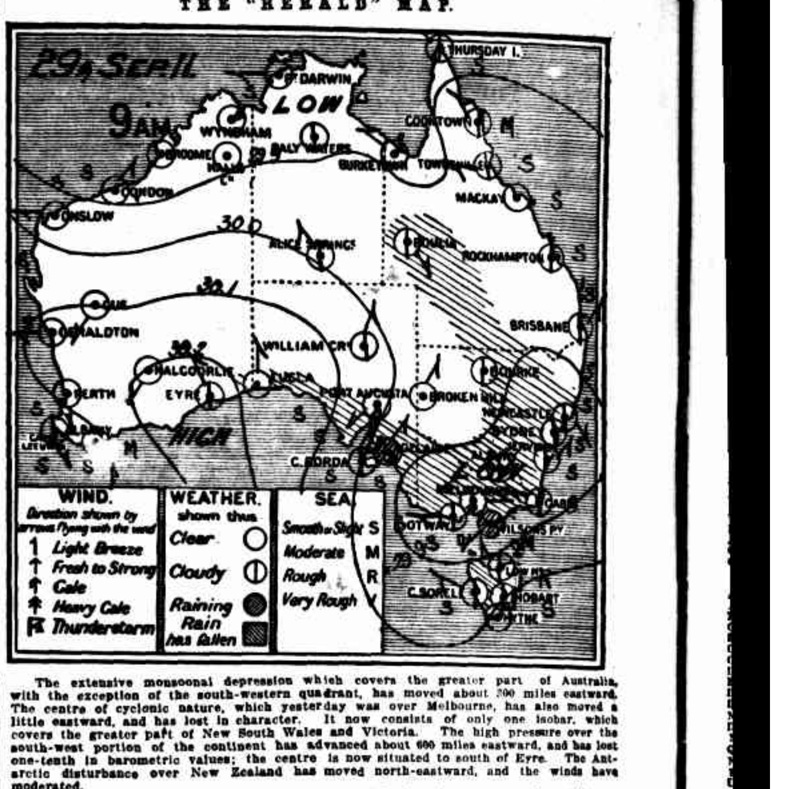
AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



The extensive monsoonal depression which covers the greater part of Australia, with the exception of the south-western quadrant, has moved about 200 miles eastward. The centre of cyclonic nature, which yesterday was over Melbourne, has also moved a little eastward, and has lost in character. It now consists of only one isobar, which covers the greater part of New South Wales and Victoria. The high pressure over the south-west portion of the continent has advanced about 600 miles eastward, and has lost one-tenth in barometric values; the centre is now situated to south of Eyre. The Antarctic disturbance over New Zealand has moved north-eastward, and the winds have moderated.

CIRCUIT COURT.

DUBBO, Friday.

At the Dubbo Circuit Court, John Aldridge was charged with stealing a sheep, the property of Michael Bolger. The jury failed to agree, and accused was bound over to appear at the same court for trial on Monday next.

Lee Chew was charged with the wilful murder of Charles Thomas Cowin, at Cobar, on September 2. The Crown case was that the deceased went to the hut of the accused, and was afterwards found dead at the accused's gate. Accused at first denied all knowledge of the man being killed. Subsequently he stated he was frightened, and told the police lies. To-day he said he fired a revolver in the air to frighten deceased. Deceased then tried to assault him, and knocked the revolver out of his hand. Accused picked up a hoe to defend himself. He kept swinging the hoe, and followed deceased to the gate to drive him off the premises. Then deceased endeavoured to strike him again, and swinging the hoe to protect himself accused struck the man on the head, and killed him. He was frightened, and confused, and threw the hoe in a dam. He told the police he was sorry and afraid, and did not mean to kill the man.

The jury returned a verdict of manslaughter, and accused was remanded for sentence.

FINANCIAL.

THE INVESTMENT MARKET.

IMAGINATION AS A FACTOR.

There has been a moderate turnover in investment securities during the current week at prices that, on the whole, exhibit a slightly drooping tendency. The feature of the period has undoubtedly been the slump and subsequent partial recovery in J. D. Williams Amusement shares. These shares have from the first attracted a good deal of the gambling element, and have been subject to wider fluctuation than is usual, except on the mining side of the Exchange. It cannot be said that the recent collapse redounds to the credit of those responsible, and it is to be hoped that in the interest of sound investment there will be no repetition of this kind of thing, either in connection with this or any other security. Imagination is a valuable faculty for an investor, but it must be imagination allied to a practical knowledge. The former restrained by the latter enables the fortunate investor possessing these characteristics to know what to avoid, as well as to know when to venture if need be to the limit of his resources. But the combination is rare indeed. When it is present we have a Napoleon of finance. Most of us have one of these faculties developed to so much greater a degree than the other that the one almost excludes the other. On the one hand, we have the essentially practical man, he who views the pors and cons of every proposition placed before him with the cold eye of an Equity Judge. Such a man is apt to become unduly pessimistic. He sees others light-heartedly go in for investments that he on his own judgment would shun like poison. He watches the result, not that he has any doubts as to what it will be, but for mere curiosity, to see whether his grim forebodings actually come to pass. And almost invariably they do. In nine case out of ten the hard, practical £ s and d judgment is the accurate one. On the other hand, there are the men with imaginations so strong that they can persuade themselves that anything they happen to fancy must turn up trumps. In their mind's eye they picture the payment of future dividends before they make the investment. They can count their chickens before they are hatched with wonderful mathematical accuracy, and this whether the chickens actually take the form of ounces of gold out of a quartz reef or of head of frozen mutton shipped abroad. Too much imagination is absolutely fatal to the successful investor, no matter how valuable that faculty may be to, say, an inventor. But when a man has a keen imagination seasoned by a ripe experience, then there is no knowing where these qualities will lead him. The successful company promoter must exhibit certain qualities of imagination, or he must inevitably fail in his appeal. He must be able to place himself in the position of the investing public. He must know just what to say to them, just what to leave to their imaginations, and just how much he can safely leave unsaid without attracting adverse comment through his omissions. Much skill is required in the drafting of a prospectus and the rigid legal type of mind is not usually the best to be employed on such a task, though supervision by such a mind is in most cases essential. During the week only one new prospectus has been issued publicly, and that simultaneously in London and the chief Australian capitals. Frankly, the proposition did not appeal to us, as it appeared to be overloaded at the start. At least one other prospectus is expected in the coming week, and there are several marked "private and confidential" being handed about with mysterious hints of high percentages for the priviliged ones.

There has been a little business effected during the week in Government Stock, prices for which were unchanged. Bank shares sold quietly, Commercial of Sydney easing 1/3, others being unaltered.

Insurance shares met with a better demand, Queensland being /6 higher, I.O.A. /1 higher, and Re-insurance /3 lower. Breweries changed but slightly, Toohey's easing /3, and Tooth's rising /3. Steam shares were irregular, Adelaide advancing 1/, Sydney Ferries 2/, North Coast (old) /1½; while Union eased /6. Coal closed without alteration, nor was there any movement in gas shares. Apart from the keen inquiry for J. D. Williams already referred to, there was less activity in miscellaneous shares this week. Colonial Sugar recovered 5/, Henry Jones Co-operative eased /3, Sanders, Sutton, and Whitehead /9, Beard, Watson /6, Goldsbrough, Mort /3, Winchcombe, Carson /6, Hydraulic Engineering and Hercules /3, Aerated Bread Company rose /3, Sargents 1/, Broken Hill Water /3, Farmers (ord.) 5/, Brennan's /3; while Fresh Food were /9 lower, and Amalgamated Pictures /3.

The annual report o fthe above company shows a net profit for the period of £1549. An interim dividend absorbing £268 has already been declared, and a further dividend of 1/ per share is now recommended, absorbing £556; while a transfer of £730 to depreciation of plant, etc., is also proposed. The shareholders met yesterday, when the report and balance-sheet were adopted, and Mr. J. C. Alexander was re-elected a director and Mr. L. F. Cohen an auditor.

THE J. D. WILLIAMS "SLUMP."

"Another Shareholder" writes:—

Sir,—I read the letter in your publication of this morning with reference to the slump in J. D. Williams shares, and purporting to be written by a shareholder of the company. I do not think it is necessary to do more than say that if any of the shareholders of the company desire to obtain any information in regard to the company they have only to inquire in the proper quarter and it will be furnished, provided it is information to which shareholders are entitled. This is my own personal experience of this company, and from the inquiries I have made I am quite satisfied of the investment. It may have been a mistake to send out the statement of gross takings when this was done, and it is surely not too late to mend a mistake in policy. No doubt the directors have found that such statements are made use of by manipulators on the Stock Exchange and others, who make use of such information for their own purposes, and in my opinion have wisely decided not to issue the statement this quarter. The Stock Exchange manipulators are responsible for all the panic that has taken place, and shareholders would do well not to pay too much attention to the result of these men's operations.

"Investor" writes:—

Sir,—I should like to ask through the columns of your paper if the directors of the J. D. Williams enterprises think they have treated the Sydney public fairly in the matter of the alleged £50,000 loan to the City Council. It was on the strength of this that I invested largely in this concern, and now, to my surprise, at this late hour we find that the money loaned to the council was £30,000 short of the much-advertised amount. Personally, I think that when this company found they only loaned £20,000 it would have been more fair to let the public into the secret. On the other hand, if it was purely an American advertising dodge, the directors are to be congratulated.

The secretary of the Greater J. D. Williams Amusement Company, Ltd., informs us that at a meeting of the board of directors Messrs. John F. Rofe and James H. Charlesworth were appointed directors of the company to act until the annual general meeting.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

WHITELEADS DEARER.

Heavy distributing business was reported in all lines yesterday, and the month will start with excellent prospects. In oils all descriptions were firm. Fish oils showed a tendency to advance. Seed oils, rapeseed, and cottonseed were regarded as better property. Linseed oil was strongly held, and it was not expected that the present high rates would show any signs of relaxing for at least three weeks. Prices of whitelead were advanced. Champions to £4/10/ per ton for cwt packages, and £35 for quarters. Second brands were selling at £32/10/ and £33. Some houses were charging 1/6 per cwt extra for distributing lots. The market for this commodity in England has advanced to £24, all principal makers having come to an arrangement to charge this price. In heavy metals prices of German black wire were reduced another 2/6 a ton, two of the houses competing very strongly against each other. Otherwise prices were without change. Wire nettings were going out in fair quantities, and barbed wire would sell more freely if it could be obtained, but holders were chary about selling any considerable quantity to one buyer.

The tea auctions were disappointing. Only about half the catalogue was sold, both of Ceylons and Javas. Sellers were not prepared to accept prices offered, and so a large quantity was withdrawn. Four hundred Ceylons sold from /7 3-8 to /9 3-8, and 300 Javas from /8 3-8 to /9 1-8. Privately 100 Ceylons were sold for export up to /10½. In grocery lines salmon continued dull, but there was noticed rather more inquiry for sardines and herrings. Tinned fruit had a fair inquiry. The endeavour to draw away opponents' trade by cutting biscuits continued, but representations which have been made to the manufacturers will, it is hoped, put an end to the practice.

Jute fabrics remained strong. Of cornsacks there were no sellers under 5/8, though buyers wanted to get in at 5/7 or 5/7½. No market business was noted. Rains in the country stimulated inquiry, and business was done with storekeepers. Woolpacks continued strong at 2/4½, some obtaining a half-penny more. Branbags were unchanged at 4/3.

COMPETITION IN BLACK WIRE.

Towards the end of last week some houses, large importers of heavy metals, became anxious owing to the near approach of German black wire, bought some months ago on the breaking of the convention, and dropped prices in order to clear stocks of the dearer-bought material. Negotiations were entered into, and it was believed that competitors had convinced the anxious ones that there was no ground for their anxiety, and that if prices were restored to the old level matters would progress in a satisfactory manner. Quotations were on the point of being raised when it was learned that another house had taken a hand in the play, and was selling freely to the country at even lower rates than those which prevailed when the drop was made. Negotiations were at once broken off, and the competition was resumed, with the result that German black wire is quoted at parcel rates for distributing lots £8/5/ for No. 8 gauge and £8/10/ for No. 10 gauge. Two months ago distributing rates were £8/12/6 and £9/2/6.

SPIRIT ESSENCES.

The Customs authorities notify that the use of cognac essence, brandy essence, and essence of rum is not to be permitted in distilleries or licensed warehouses.

TEA.

At the auction sales yesterday 800 packages of Ceylons and 600 packages of Javas were offered on behalf of Messrs. Gibbs, Bright, and Co., and Parbury, Henty, and Co. The market was quiet, with little demand. Four hundred Ceylons sold from /7¾ to /9¾, and 300 Javas from /8¾ to /9¼.

Mr. Claud J. Gant will offer at auction on Tuesday, on behalf of Messrs. Claude Healy and Co., 440 packages of Ceylon teas. Fraser, Uther, and Co., Ltd., will offer at auction on Thursday, on behalf of Fraser, Ramsay Proprietary, Ltd., 670 packages of Ceylon teas.

The amount of wool manifested to arrive at Darling Harbour yesterday totalled 5361 bales.

BREADSTUFFS.

The market for wheat yesterday was dull and uninteresting. Neither shippers nor buyers of parcels were able to obtain any quantity at the prices offering, 3/2 for old wheat at country stations in the case of the former, equal to 3/6½ ex trucks Sydney, and 3/7 in the case of the latter. Sellers quoted 3/7½ for parcels f.a.q., but it was doubtful whether much could have been obtained at this figure. A sale of miller's prime wheat amounting to 5000 bags was reported at 3/8, and another parcel of the same amount of prime Riverina wheat was offered at a shade dearer price. This, however, could not be taken as the true market value for f.a.q. grain, and was far above what shippers would be able to pay on London prices. Shippers were offering 3/1 at country stations for new wheat, December-January delivery. The London market, it was cabled, was a little easier. The reports from Argentina concerning the increased amount under wheat published yesterday had had a "bearish" effect on the market, whose future course it was stated depended much on the Argentine and Australian prospects.

A steady business was done in flour at the association price of £8/15/ per ton.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 229 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

BUTTER.

Butter is very firm, and is hardening owing to short supplies from all sources, especially from Continental sources. Danish butter is selling at about 141/ per cwt (6/ up on the week). For choicest Australian there is a strong demand at 130/ to 132/ per ton (4/ up on the week). Secondaries are in less request at 118/ to 126/ per ton.

[Dalgety and Co., Limited, received a cable from its London office yesterday, advising:—"The butter market is very firm indeed. Quotations are: Choicest Danish, 144/ per cwt; finest Australian, unsalted, 134/ per cwt; ditto, salted, 132/. The imports of butter into the United Kingdom last week totalled 64,000cwt, as compared with 72,000cwt for the corresponding period of last year, a decrease of 8000cwt.]

CHEESE.

Cheese is firm. Canadian is selling at 70/ to 72/ per cwt; New Zealand has none offering on spot.

BRADFORD TOPS.

The Bradford tops market has a limited demand, with slightly more inquiry. Prices are:—64's, /26¾, future delivery /26; super 60's, /25½, future delivery /25¼; common 60's, /25¼, future delivery /25; 56's, /21½; 50's, /18; 46's (immediate delivery), /14; 40's, /13½.

SUGAR.

German beet sugar, 88 per cent. net titre, is 18/ (/6 up); first marks granulated, 21/ (unchanged) per cwt.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Wheat was quiet at 3/7 to 3/7¼, with business at 3/7, which buyers generally were unwilling to exceed. Flour brought £8/10/. Bran and pollard made £5. Barley was quoted nominally, malting 4/6 to 6/, Cape 2/10 to 3/3, feed 2/3 to 2/9. Oats were firm and quiet; holders strong. Algerian milling made 2/4½ to 2/5½, feed 2/ to 2/4. Maize was drooping, with little offering, and but little inquiry at 3/7 to 3/8; small sales at the latter price. Peas, Dun's, made 3/3 to 4/3. Chaff was steady. Oaten brought to 77/6, wheaten to 80/, hay 45/ to 105/; local straw 27/6 to 35/, Tasmanian 47/6 to 55/. Potatoes had limited inquiry. The market was dull. Carmens made £3 to £5. Snowflakes £3 to £4, mediums from £2/5/, pinkeyes £1/5/ to £2, excelsiors £3/15/ to £4, redskins £3 to £4/5/. Onions were dull. Prime lard was becoming scarce at 50/ to 60/. At the tea auction 604 packages of Indian and 377 packages of Ceylon were offered. The bidding was slow, and the business done publicly was moderate, but including the lots placed afterwards greater proportion was disposed of. Private sales included over 100 packages Ceylon, and small sales of Panyong. Tinned fruits are selling freely. Tinned salmon on spot is in good demand, and firm. Cornsacks were firmer, importers asking 5/8 forward delivery, and 5/7 to 5/7½ on the spot. Woolpacks brought 2/6½ to 2/7. Branbags realised 4/3. White lead quotations advanced £1 for most brands, Champion's being quoted irregularly up to £36/10/ for distributing lots.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

TRADE IN SUSSEX-STREET.

MAIZE STILL WEAKENING.

There was very little business done in any line at the produce end of Sussex-street on Friday, and several lines showed an easier feeling. The maize market was easier, sellers holding out for 4/, but not getting it. Buyers were very wary, indeed, and it is doubtful, even if the price had come down, whether they would have operated with the market in such an uncertain state. It is hard to see the reason for this panic, as there is apparently nothing to prevent prices going back to their former level at the beginning of next month. Supplies this week have certainly been slightly heavier than for some weeks, when the arrivals have very seldom amounted to more than a few hundred bags; but the shortage that was caused should have been able to absorb a few thousand bags without having the effect it has had. It seems very much as though a few merchants taking advantage of the usual end-of-month slackness have been pulling the prices about, and while ostensibly selling a few bags, they will snap up as much of the grain as possible, in anticipation of the prices advancing again.

Oats were slightly easier, in sympathy with maize, and although prime white Giants occasionally realised 3/3, the general price ruling was 3/2. At this price the market was very firm, as the grain is very scarce.

Derrick straw was very much over-supplied, and the market was extremely weak. Very little business at all was transacted.

Other forage lines were very lightly supplied, prime chaff especially being hard to obtain. Choice Adelaide wheaten, when obtainable, commanded £5/5/.

Onions were again easier, stocks being difficult to dispose of. Highest price was £4, which was for choice stuff only. Potatoes, too, were a shade easier, although choicest quality tubers sold well.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

BRISK DEMAND FOR BUTTER.

Trade was rather quiet at the dairy end of the "street" on Friday, and, with the exception of butter, very little attention was paid to any commodity. The supplies of butter have not been so heavy as was anticipated, and this fact, coupled with the brisk demand, has tended to keep the market very firm, present prices giving every indication of holding for some time to come. Speculators for the London and Conteninital markets have been operating a good deal, and their demand was stimulated by a cable from London on Friday saying the price there had advanced 2/. A number of inquiries have been received by merchants from operators for the German market, but, unfortunately, the German authorities prohibit the importation of butter containing boric acid. The butter here is very seldom made without the boric acid, so that it will be difficult to fill these orders. Several factories have endeavoured to make butter without the acid, and although a few have succeeded, success can never be depended upon, as the farmer usually puts the acid with the cream to act as a preservative.

Business in cheese was again very brisk, matured cheese being very scarce. Bacon and hams also moved off very freely, as also did eggs, at unchanged rates.

Current quo'tations were:—

Butter.—Selected grocers' brands 116/, other prime brands 104/ to 112/, secondary 96/ to 104/, pastry from 82/ per cwt.

AUCTION SALES.

SYDNEY GOODS MARKET.

ANOTHER FALL IN MAIZE.

POTATO MARKET UNCHANGED.

The qualities of chaff, hay, and grain offered at the Sydney goods market on Friday were good. At the opening of the market several consignments of choice oaten and wheaten chaff were sold at high rates. The few buyers who were present for these sales competed strongly. Approaching the centre of the sale, however, the attendance increased, and good bidding was maintained.

Prime wheaten chaff was sold at 5/4, good from 4/2 to 4/8, and medium from 3/1 to 3/8. Buyers showed eagerness in purchasing oaten chaff, and a rise of 1/8 took place on the previous day's rates. For prime qualities 5/1 was received, for good from 4/8 to 4/10, and medium 2/1. Two lots of prime lucerne chaff were sold at 4/3 and 4/9 respectively. Prime lucerne dust realised 3/3, and good 2/9.

On Wednesday lucerne hay met a keen demand; on Thursday it was quite the reverse, and at Friday's sales, although there was no alteration in values, the demand was so good that only one truck was passed out of nine offered. One consignment of good small bales was sold at 4/, but it was the general opinion that the price was too high for the quality. Good large bales realised 3/6 to 4/. It does not often happen that large bales are sold at the high price of 4/, although the same quality pressed in small bales will often realise that amount. One truck containing two qualities in large bales was disposed of at 1/8 and 2/3 per cwt.

Out of eight consignments of maize that were offered, only four were sold. The passed in lots received offers varying from 3/9 to 3/11. The consignments that were sold showed a fall of from /1 at the first sale to /3 at the end of the auction, the prices obtained being 3/11, 3/10, and 3/9. One truck of prime yellow seed maize realised 4/. A few weeks ago the consignments of maize arriving were from Wallangarra, but now only New South Wales maize is consigned to the market. The number of these consignments has been gradually increasing, whilst the values are decreasing. If the number continues to increase, maize will revert to its old rates. Two lots of wheat were offered. Good chick was sold at 3/3½, while prime milling was passed at 3/6½ per bushel.

Sellers sold their potatoes on an unaltered market. At times the agent had to wait fully two minutes before an offer could be obtained from the buyers. Several of the sales last fully five minutes. Many of the growers who are consigning their potatoes to Sydney at the present time will find that their net profits will be very small. Tubers are now being sold at between £2 and £3 less than the figure they brought two months ago. Added to this, there is an increased demurrage fee. Another strange thing about potatoes is that the householder is purchasing them at almost the same price now as she did two months ago. The sold lots were of good quality, and the prices obtained ranged from 2/1 to 4/1 per cwt.

Out of 58 consignments offered 30 were passed in, namely:—Wheaten chaff, 19 offered, 8 passed; oaten chaff, 8-1; lucerne chaff, 3-1; lucerne hay, 9-1; maize, 8-4; wheat, 1-0; and potatoes, 10-5.

VEGETABLE MARKET.

Good demands were made at the Municipal market on Friday for large supplies of vegetables. While pumpkins were firmer, green peas and cauliflowers were easier.

The following prices were realised:—

Cabbages, large 4/ to 5/, medium 3/6, small 1/6 to 2/6; cauliflowers, large 5/, medium 4/, small 3/; pumpkins, large 9/, medium 5/ to 7/, small 3/ to 4/; cucumbers, 3/ to 4/ per dozen; carrots, 1/6; lettuce, 1/3 to 1/6; parsnips, 3/; spinach, 1/6 to 1/9; beetroot, 1/6 to 2/; leeks, 1/3 to 1/6; parsley, 2/ to 2/6; mint, 1/3 to 1/9; herbs, 1/; watercress, 2/ to 2/6; rhubarb, 1/6 to 2/; celery, 2/ to 2/6; eschalots, 2/ to 2/3; radishes, 1/; horseradish, 6/ to 7/6 per dozen bunches; potatoes, local 6/ to 8/6, Tasmanian, 9/ to 10/, Early Rose 10/ to 14/, kidney 14/ to 18/, sweet 7/ to 11/; onions, 4/6 to 5/; Swede turnips, 5/ per cwt; French beans, 6/ to 7/; green peas, 2/ to 3/6 per bushel; tomatoes, 4/6 per quarter-case, 8/ per half-case.

FRUIT MARKETS.

FIRST SHIPMENT OF AMERICAN APPLES.

BANANAS AGAIN DEARER.

Good-quality fruit was selling well at the Bathurst-street markets on Friday, but medium or inferior stuff, in citrus fruits especially, was practically unsaleable. Since the candied-peel factories have discontinued operating, lemons have been accumulating at the markets, and merchants find that they cannot dispose of them, not even by giving them away. The result is that they have to be destroyed, which is a loss to the agent and to the grower.

There will be no fresh arrivals of bananas until next Wednesday. This fruit on Friday was very scarce, and prices were again raised, choice G.M. realising up to 16/6 per case.

The Marama, which is due in Sydney from Vancouver this morning, is bringing the first shipment of this season's American apples. These will not be placed on the market until Tuesday, when it is expected that they will experience a ready sale.

JUMP IN BRITISH BROKEN HILL.

COPPER HELD FIRM. TIN SLACK. GOLD DULL.

The brokers' combine cable message received yesterday morning, giving the state of the London Stock Exchange on Thursday, contained a "surprise packet" in the shape of an announcement that the buyers of British Broken Hill (old) shares had suddenly jumped from 58/ to 65/. There was only one possible explanation. The bore going westward at the 200ft level must have cut the carbonates at last, and the manager, Mr. Woodward, must have succeeded in cabling the information to the London board of directors before the fact leaked out at Broken Hill. Hurried telegrams were rushed to the "Hill," asking for information about the bore at the 200ft level. "Yes," was the reply. "Bore struck carbonate ore."

Both the Adelaide and Melbourne Stock Exchanges appear also to have been entirely ignorant on Thursday of the British development, the closing sales being 59/6 and 58/6 respectively. Local operators, like those in Melbourne and Adelaide were, however, fully aware of the possibility of the bore striking carbonate ore, hence a number of shares were picked up locally on Thursday from 57/3 to 58/9. The buyers "stood on velvet" when the market opened in the morning, with sales at 65/. Profit taking was the order of the day, so the feeding of the market by sellers brought the price gradually back to 63/ at noon.

Though a slightly better feeling was shown for B. H. Junction North, which recovered (on sales) from 25/3 to 25/9, whilst B. H. Souths (contg.) sold ex div. 4/, at £6/2/, making the price equal to £6/6/, nevertheless it was a "one stock market," due wholly and solely to the British development. This is shown by the fact that the movement in the latter did not cause a sympathetic hardening of values in Barrier stocks generally.

The other divisions of the market were exceedingly quiet. Copper stocks did not show the least signs of being favourably affected by the advance in the "middle spot" price of the "red metal" to £55/1/3, a rise of 12/6. Doubtless, the absence of any improvement in the market was due to the fact that the London Stock Exchange on Thursday disclosed a continued lack of vitality in copper stocks.

Both gold and tin shares occupied a very subordinate position. In the case of the latter, Tongkah Harbour Tin sold a shade firmer.

The afternoon again saw British Broken Hill shares dominating the business of the market. A considerable number of transactions were recorded at jigging prices—now up, now down—with the last sale at 63/9, as compared with the top price at 65/. The range of fluctuations was small, as both the "bull" and the "bear" were afraid to plunge, consequent on the disturbed state of affairs on the European continent. The privileged scrip of the British Broken Hill Company also came into the market, and was dealt in. Business on fairly sound lines was booked in B.H. Souths, contg, and Amalgamated Zinc. In the copper division, Mount Elliotts and Wallaroo and Moonta sold at weak rates, but Great Fitzroys improved, whilst firm offers for Mount Morgans met with no response. Gold shares were neglected, with Tongkah Harbour Tin selling a fraction easier.

MINING NOTES.

Gold dredging yields:—Araluen Central, No. 1 dredge, 127 hours, 17oz 1dwt; No. 2 dredge, 84 hours, 28oz 2dwt. The Araluen Redbank dredge, owing to the ladder shaft breaking, did not wash up this week.

The Broken Hill Proprietary Company has received a cable message, dated London September 28, giving the following quotations:—Silver, 2/0¾ (official quotation); lead, £14/17/6 (buyers' price); company's shares, £2/6/9 (buyers' price); and spelter, £27/15/ (buyers' price).

At the Budgery mine, during the past fortnight, the extreme north end of the main stope at the 266ft level was worked out. The north end, east side, is now being worked on very fair ore, and the west side is being mullocked, preparatory to taking a fresh stope. In the centre of stope on the west side, very good ore is being won. The south end (east side) of the main stope has been worked to the limit of payable ore. The eastern stope is producing fair ore. Some 160 tons of ore were despatched to Cobar during the fortnight, averaging about 7 per cent. copper.

At the Vegetable Creek tin mine, the new eastern crosscut from the rock shaft has been completed, and in the course of a few days the new track will be in use. A cutting up crosscut started in the eastern end shows 12in of 80lb wash. In the 300ft crosscut the wash averages 15in, and worth 110lb. A blocking strip from the 272ft to the 230ft crosscut averages 6in of 70lb wash. At the western end the leading drive has been advanced 20ft to 272ft, showing 12in of wash. The present face is not carrying any wash, probably due to the necessity of keeping the level well on the rim, in order to maintain drainage level. At 264ft a crosscut has been driven 5ft in 12in, worth 110lb. During the week 47cwt tin oxides were obtained. At Chandler's shaft the crosscut has been advanced 7ft to 57ft, without any change.

The official report of the operations of the B.H. Junction North Company, for the past fortnight, is as follows:—"No. 12 level: The north main drive advanced to 297ft, total 458ft. The 12/22 rise advanced to 42ft. A crosscut started west in 12/15, and advanced 18½ft; total width of ore body 44ft, no hanging wall exposed. Assays of ore from crosscut were 15.3 per cent. lead, 11oz silver, 10.1 per cent. zinc. Production from the various levels was:—From No. 9 level, 31 tons, average assay 15.9 per cent. lead, 11.8oz silver, 8.7 per cent. zinc; from No. 10 level, 581 tons, average assay 16.2 per cent. lead, 12.5oz silver, 9.3 per cent. zinc; from No. 11 level, 2076 tons, average assay 16.5 per cent. lead, 11.5oz silver, 8.9 per cent. zinc; from No. 12 level, 743 tons, average assay 13 per cent. lead, 9.1oz silver, 7.7 per cent. zinc. Despatches for the fortnight, 1046 tons. The main flotation boxes have been fitted with impellers, driving gear, and connecting pipes. The auxiliary boxes are making fair progress. The driving gear for elevators, conveyors, and draining belts is being placed in position. The acid storage tanks are being lead lined. The zinc and lead draining belts are well in hand, and the respective conveyors from each have been started. The vortex mixer and distributing cone have been placed in position. One elevator has been completed."

MINING IN THE STATE.

WINGHAM, Friday.

It is understood that the recent crushing of 100 tons of ore at the Mount Copeland mine yielded at the rate of only 5dwts to the ton.

TEMORA, Friday.

Mr. G. A. James, mining warden, visited Ardlethan last week, and included the Murrell Creek mine, as well as the Mallee Hen mine, belonging to M'Lean and party. The latter mine is the one whence a parcel of stone yielded 16oz to the ton. The warden expressed the opinion that he had seen nothing better in any part of New South Wales. Inspector Sims, of the Mining Department, accompanied the warden on the tour of inspection. They dollied samples of stone from different levels of the Mallee Hen down to 100ft, and obtained fine specimens. M'Lean struck another rich vein of gold in this mine thi sweek, and 25 tons of stone are being sent to Wyalong for crushing.

Four miners named Clark, Spicer, and Irvine brothers, report having struck good gold near Bygoo station, a few miles from Ardlethan, on the same line of reef as the Murrell Creek mine.

GRAFTON COPPER MINE.

GRAFTON, Friday.

The ore smelted for the week was 123 tons, producing 25 tons 3cwt matte, containing 10.3 tons copper. No. 4 furnace treated 69.3 tons of matte, producing 40 tons of metal, containing 24.32 tons copper. No. 3 furnace has been repaired. Stoping was last week carried on in D west, E intermediate, and D east. Some 201 tons of ore were trucked to hoppers, and 273 tons, assaying 9.4 per cent., were carted to clamps. The balance of ore in the clamps ih 2045 tons. The clamp ore smelted assayed 10.3 per cent. copper.

BRITISH BROKEN HILL MINE.

CARBONATE ORE CUT AT 100FT.

LODE AT NO. 9 NOW 101FT WIDE.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

The British Broken Hill mine has had another development of great value. Years ago a south drive at the 100ft level was put in from the Thompson shaft. During the past few days an easterly crosscut was put in about 200ft south, and after passing through 4ft of very hard country rock, a full face of carbonates was exposed. An assay made to-day went 30oz silver and 15 per cent. lead. The management reports: "Nothing can yet be said as to the value or extent of the discovery." The diamond drilling at the 200ft level is still proceeding, but nothing of value has yet been met with. The crosscut at the 900ft level is now in 116ft, and the last 101ft carries sulphides. A few days ago this lode was mixed with sandstone, but good grade ore again fills the face. The second wall is not in evidence, so an ore body with an unfinished width of 101ft is showing—one of the best bodies on the northern end of the field.

A DESCENDANT OF COOK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your issue of the 27th inst. there is published a telegram from Fremantle, in which it is stated that a "direct descendant of that intrepid explorer Captain Cook" is to be one of the members of the Australian expedition to the Antarctic.

This statement will require some explanation.

It is on record that Cook had six children—five sons and one daughter. The latter and two sons died in their infancy, one son at 16 years of age, and another at 17 years; the only one who reached manhood being James, the eldest, who was drowned whilst on the way to his ship, H. M. Sloop Spitfire, to which he had been appointed commander. There is nothing to show that he was married, or left any family from whom Mr. Frank Wild could be descended.

Cook had two brothers. John died in 1750, aged 23 years; three sisters died infants; William also died in infancy; and a sister, Margaret, married a James Fleck, and lived to a great age. Cook's widow lived to the age of 93. Her cousin, Admiral Isaac Smith, lived with her. We are told by Mr. Arthur Kitson in his "Captain James Cook" that she befriended the nephews and grandnephews and nieces and grandnieces of her husband whom she had never seen. Whether these were on his father's or his mother's side we are not informed, but in either case they could hardly be called descendants of Captain Cook.

I am, etc.,

JAMES H. WATSON.

CITY HOMES FOR SQUATTERS.

The wonderful revival of prosperity for all engaged in primary production will decide many a pastoralist to build a home for his family in Sydney, in order that there should be the happiest of all escapes to the seaside from the sweltering conditions on the homesteads in the scorching summer months.

Hotel and Boarding-house accommodation is never what home is; and, moreover, it may be most expensive. The leased house is held on sufferance; and, in these days, houses to let are not too numerous. The logical thing is to have a house of one's own, in accordance with one's means, in order that it may be available at any time. Now for the site. There is none more desirable than those on the South Head-road, and the choicest of all are on the Dally Mansion Estate, for Sale on October 14. The outlook embraces the whole of the Harbour, glimpses of the Heads and Ocean, vistas of Sydney's most beautiful suburbia, and a sweep of the Blue Mountains for 50 miles. Plans and Booklet from Hardie and Gorman, in conjunction with Richardson and Co. The tram passes the estate, right through to the city's centre; and the transit is the most picturesque in Australia. Prompt attention is advised.—Advt.

A.J.C. SPRING MEETING.

FIRST (DERBY) DAY.

ANTICIPATIONS.

After a series of skirmishing tactics on the metropolitan and suburban tracks during the past month or so, and in the course of which students of public form were afforded some opportunities of assessing the possibilities of the future, the commencement of serious hostilities, in which the best equine talent in Australasia will measure strides, takes place this afternoon on the historic battleground at Randwick. Thanks to the favourable season, the metropolitan heath looks its best; the reserves are covered with verdure, and the tracks, though a trifle heavy after yesterday's rainfall, should be in good condition for racing purposes. The facilities for witnessing the sport with the greatest comfort and convenience have been greatly improved since the autumn reunion, especially in the St. Leger reserve, where a new stand has been erected, and provides excellent accommodation for the numerous patrons of that enclosure. Large numbers of provincial, New Zealand, and interstate visitors have arrived, and everything points to a record attendance. An efficient transit service has been provided.

The sport commences at 1 p.m. sharp with the First Hurdle Race, for which a large field may be expected at the post, and an interesting contest seems assured. Those with good prospects are Pakau, Fiddlestring, Landlord, and Kairoma, and the judge may declare for Fiddlestring, Landlord, and Pakau.

The most likely to fight out the battle for the Trial Stakes appear to be Salvator Rosa, Crown Grant, Ecuador, Piastre, and Aphasa, and the numbers may be hoisted for Crown Grant, Piastre, and Ecuador.

A record field is promised for the Derby, and a brilliant contest may be anticipated. Poseidon's brother, Jacamar, is a pronounced favourite for the classic event, and the handsome manner in which he won the Easter Stakes last autumn and his track work in the meantime augur well for his chances on this occasion. Though Maltster's progeny have yet to figure on the list for the A.J.C. Derby, he is well represented by Woolerina, who gave racegoers a taste of his quality in the Rosehill Guineas, and he may be trusted to run a great race. Cisco, who won the Breeders' Plate last year, put up a great fight with Woolerina at Rosehill, and wherever Mr. Clancy's colt is at the finish of the classic race Cisco must be in the vicinity. Posadas, who carried his owner's colours to victory in the A.J.C. Champagne Stakes last autumn, must also have a look in for the prize, while Pontano, Ladies' Man, Alured, Ocean Blue, Posio, and Wilari are in good fettle. The finish should be fought out among Cisco, Jacamar, Posadas, Woolerina, St. Medoc, and Alured, and the numbers may be hoisted for Jacamar, Woolerina, and Cisco.

Great interest is centred in the race for the Epsom Handicap, for which there are 29 acceptors. The New Zealander, Los Angeles, heads the list with 9st 8lb, and even with that he must be very hard to beat, for with that burden in the saddle he accounted for Flavinius and Bright Laddie in the Chelmsford Stakes at Randwick a few weeks ago. For some time past Flavinius has been under a cloud, but the well-performed son of Flavus appears to have come to light again, and if in form must have a great look in. His stable mate Didus is also engaged with the handy weight of 7st 6lb, and his chances should not be overlooked. Bright Laddie should run well under 8st 12lb, and Lady Medallist, with a pound less to carry, must be very hard to beat, for her latest public performance at Rosehill was very meritorious, and her track work, in the meantime, has been of the record-making character. That she will cut out the mile at a great bat seems assured, that is, providing she gets a clear run. Had Blairgour been handled with better judgment at Rosehill he might have had something to say at the finish of the Spring Stakes; but if better tactics be used on this occasion he should be troublesome at the end of the mile under 8st 12lb. Lager should run well under 8st, and with 7lb less Mundoie should give a good account of himself. Grist is nicely in with 7st 6lb, as is Didus with a pound less. Hartfell should be well suited with 7st 4lb, while with 2lb less Full Sail must be handy at the finish, and the same may be said of Kurnell, with an even 7st up. With such talent engaged the battle should be well fought out. Prominent parts must be played by Los Angeles, Bright Laddie, Lady Medallist, Blairgour, Lager, Mundoie, Didus, Hartfell, Full Sail, and Kurnell, and the situations may be filled by Lady Medallist, Los Angeles, and Didus, unless separated by Blairgour.

The meeting of such great performers as Trafalgar, Prince Foote, Comedy King, Malt King, Eyeglass, and Aurofodina at w.f.a., in the Spring Stakes, should be well worth going a long distance to see, and the contest is invested with the greatest interest. All at the post, Comedy King should win, and he may be escorted home by Prince Foote and Trafalgar.

The afternoon's racing winds up with the Kensington Handicap, in which a long list of candidates is engaged, the most reliable of whom seem to be Mavus, Wild West, Blast, Petrena, Culprit, and Blackpool; and Blast, Petrena, and Mavis may pass the post in that order.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

The Spring Meeting of the Australian Jockey Club opens this afternoon at Randwick; the Melbourne Hunt Club provides an outing at Moonee Valley for Victorian sporting folk; and the Albion Park Jockey Club caters for Brisbane sportsmen.

An important sale of blood stock will be held by Messrs. Wm. Inglis and Son at T. Payten's Newmarket Stables, Randwick, on Friday next, the 6th prox., when a number of racehorses in training and untried horses will be brought under the hammer. Among the racehorses in training are the New Zealanders, Sunburst, Culprit, and Chin Chin; and the local performers, Hippon, Fortius, Rewari, Cris O., Brackenburg, Moon Moth, and Royal Merv. Intending vendors should send in particulars as early as possible, so as to facilitate the issue of the catalogues.

There was very little speculation yesterday on the principal events of the A.J.C. Spring Meeting. Save that Woolerina eased a point, the prices on the Derby were unchanged. Lady Medallist also eased a shade for the Epsom Handicap, but still holds her place at the head of the quotations, a trifle over five points ahead of Blairgour, who is four points in advance of Los Angeles; then two points further back come Full Sail, Kurnell, Flavinius, and four in advance of Mundoie, Didus, and Hartfell. Sunlike met with some support at an outside price. Pending the results of the Derby and Epsom Handicaps, business on the Metropolitan was almost at a standstill.

LATEST SCRATCHINGS.

The withdrawals notified yesterday in connection with the A.J.C. Spring meeting are subjoined:—

First Hurdle Race.—Ennismar, Dinyah, Home Rule, Exsul.

Kensington Handicap.—Sylvander, Aparima.

VICTORIAN SPORTING NOTES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Only three members of the V.R.C. committee will attend the A.J.C. meeting, viz., Messrs. L. K. S. Mackinnon, A. Yuille, and R. Crawford. Messrs. R. G. Casey and Agar Wynne have found out at the last moment that they cannot take the trip.

A cloud burst over Flemington racecourse yesterday afternoon. The rooms at the bottom of the stand were flooded, and a good deal of damage was done to the carpets and fittings, the Governor's rooms being among those affected.

FOOTBALL.

BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

An interesting match between Australian-born and British-born players will be played at Epping racecourse to-day. Two strong teams have been selected, and a fine game should consequently be witnessed. A junior match between the most successful teams in the metropolitan and Granville districts and a schools' final will also take place on the same ground.

Following are the fixtures:—

BYERS CUP (SCHOOLS) FINAL.

Darling-road (Rozelle) v Birchgrove (Balmain), Epping Racecourse, 1.15. Mr. O. Reed, referee.

INTER-DISTRICT JUNIOR MATCH.

Balmain Earlsbrae v Granville Holroyd, Epping racecourse, 2.15. Mr. W. Lincoln, referee; Messrs. D. Boyd and J. Gibson, linesmen.

INTERNATIONAL MATCH.

Australian-born team v British-born team, Epping racecourse, 3.30. Mr. J. M'Donald, referee; Messrs. Lasonby and Rose, linesmen.

GOLF.

This afternoon Manly and Killara will fight out their tie in the B grade suburban interclub competition on the Concord links, and a close and interesting match may be anticipated. Members of both teams have been practising hard, and lack of keenness, at any rate, will not lose the match for either side.

The winning team will meet Bonnie Doon the following Saturday to decide the B grade premiership.

As to to-day's match, there is very little to choose between the two teams, but the general impression is that Killara should be successful, though with little to spare.

The championship meeting being over the Australian Club is playing one of its most popular competitions, the Rutledge Cup, while all the suburban clubs have competitions.

Monday will be a big golf day. Royal Sydney has the Rawson Cup, a 36-holes bogey competition, down for decision, while the Australian Club will play for the Campbell Cup. The Fry Cup is the piece de resistance at Killara, and the Concord Cup will engage the attention of scratch players at Concord, while most other clubs are playing 36-hole competitions.

The fixtures are:—

A GOLF ANOMALY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I was always under the impression that the Suburban and Country Golf Association was formed for the purpose of fostering golf, and furthering the interests of players generally, but the treatment lately meted out to me by that body has quite disillusioned me.

In January last I went to live at Leura, and in May or June, when arrangements were being made for holding the western country districts championship, the question arose as to my eligibility to represent Leura, and it was referred to the association, which decided that, because I carried on my business in Sydney I was not a country player, and I was thereby debarred, not only from playing for Leura, but from taking any part in the country week competitions as a country player.

I certainly felt this decision a rather unjust one, particularly as, up to that time, I had played all my golf at Leura, and by August, the time of country week, I would have resided at Leura seven months. What the carrying on of business in Sydney has to do with a golfer's status, I failed, and still fail, to see.

At the commencement of this season I was several times asked to play in the inter-suburban competitions for my old club, Manly, which I had previously continuously represented since the inauguration of these competitions, and of which club I am a country member.

I declined, on the ground that I did not consider I should do so while living at Leura, and acquiring, as I then thought, a country player's status; besides, I had in mind the controversy which had arisen last year with regard to Manly's so-called "cosmopolitan" team, and I felt it my duty to respect the feelings of players of other clubs, who had taken exception to Manly's action in playing non-residents of Manly, although there was nothing in the regulations then governing these competitions which debarred any club from playing a bona-fide member thereof, country player or otherwise.

On the association's ruling that I was not a country player I felt justified in notifying Manly that I would be available if required, and they picked me to fill a vacancy in its B team against Killara B, at Concord to-morrow, in the play-off for the tie in that grade competition.

I have now received a notification from the Manly Club that the association will not consent to my playing in the competition mentioned, because I am a resident of Leura.

Thus, according to the rulings of the association, I am neither a country nor a metropolitan player. I must have some status, and I most assuredly decline to be an anomaly in the golfing world; all, however, I can say is that the sooner the association rescind silly regulations which deprive a player of all status, the better for golf generally.

I am, etc.,

Sept. 29. ARTHUR V. HILLIARD.

STRATHFIELD CLUB'S OPEN TOURNAMENT.

METROPOLITAN CHAMPIONSHIPS BEGIN TO-DAY.

The Strathfield Club's annual open tournament is to begin to-day on the courts of the Union Recreation Club, at Strathfield. The programme shows that an interesting list of events has been arranged, the draw having provided more matches of note than is usual for an opening day. In the metropolitan singles championship Sharp will meet E. O. Anderson. Both are hard and scientific hitters, so that an attractive display may be expected. The meeting of E. Rice and Sayers will attract many onlookers, and, if both are in form, this will be well worth seeing. Several ties of the doubles championship appear, but the winners are not hard to select, except in the case of the Parker-E. Anderson against E. Rice-E. Hicks match. One of the best items on the card will be the match between the Misses Lee and Mrs. Ford and Miss Williams in the ladies' doubles championship. The programme is as follows:—

THE GUN.

MR. EYRE PICKERING WINS CHAMPIONSHIP.

REMARKABLE RECORD.

Mr. Eyre Pickering, who has proved himself to be one of the best shots in the State, yesterday won the Gun Club championship at Botany, defeating 27 competitors. Mr. Gordon was second, and Mr. Mitchell (Victoria) third. Mr. Pickering, during the last month, has put up the remarkable record of 110 kills for 114 shots. He was unfortunate, however, in not having an even score, as the four "misses" fell dead out of bounds.

BALMAIN REGATTA.

Arrangements for the Balmain Regatta, to be held on Monday, wet or fine, are practically complete, and present indications point to the fixture being more successful than its immediate predecessors. The fine Japanese mail steamer, Yawata Maru, Commander T. Sekine, should make an admirable flagship, and as good entries have been received for the various sailing, rowing, and motor boats events, a great day's sport is assured, provided the weather conditions prove at all favourable. To augment the funds of the regatta a picture entertainment and a display of fireworks will be given at Birchgrove Park on Monday evening.

Full particulars with regard to the steamers plying to the flagship, etc., may be had on reference to our advertising columns.

OPENING OF THE SEASON.

A COMBINED PROGRAMME.

No fewer than 43 boats are listed to take part in this afternoon's combined opening of the Sydney Flying Squadron, Sydney Sailing Club, Balmain Amateur Club, and Sydney Dingy Club. That fact in itself should prove a sufficient "draw" to fill the club's steamer, but it may be added that, not only will the best of last season's 18-footers be engaged in the most important race, but the mixed classes of the Balmain amateurs will be worthily represented, while fresh interest will be lent to the dingy races by the inclusion of Mr. J. B. Moffatt's new dingy Cornstalk in the 10-footers' event, and by two or three new six-footers in the race for that class. The entries for the two lastnamed events are not as large as was anticipated, still any shortcomings in this respect will be amply compensated for by the fine entry of 19 boats—all 18-footers, except Desdemona—in the Flying Squadron and Sydney Club's general handicap, which, after all, is the principal race. The four races will start and finish at Clark Island, and with so many boats in evidence a fine spectacle should be presented in the vicinity of this picturesque spot. The starts and course for the S.F.S. and S.S.C. handicap, under "best and best" conditions, appeared in Wednesday's "Herald," while the particulars of the other races are as follow:—

After manoeuvres Commodore will anchor at starting point, when all boats will assemble, cheer, and disperse.

A number of prominent vaudeville artists have promised to appear, and Mr. Snowy Baker will box Sam M'Vea. Billy M'Lean and Irving Sayles will also contest the championship of the vaudeville stage.

THE SPEAKER AND MR. WOOD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As another onlooker, I should be glad of an opportunity of protesting, through your columns, against the unjust treatment meted out to the Opposition, especially to Mr. Wood. I pass over with contempt the highly-cultured speeches of Mr. Willis and Labour Ministers re Mr. Wade. The more they slander him, the more we honour him, and the more firmly we stand to him.

On two occasions have I been present when Mr. Wood was removed, for what reason only the Speaker himself knows. It was on each occasion an outrage of justice and fair play. To my mind, the real cause lies in the inordinate vanity of Mr. Willis. It was through this failing he became a deserter. Mr. Wood was neither disorderly nor disobedient to the Chair; all he did was to speak to Mr. Wade as he sat down. In his conceit the Speaker thought it might have been of him. It reminds one of the little child who comes to the teacher with, "Please teacher, Elsie's talking about me."

The reason for the removal on Tuesday has been practically admitted by the Speaker:—"Mr. Wood failed to smile upon the Speaker, when he was ordered to be seated," instead, according to the Speaker, he "took the huff." Mr. Willis has evidently yet to learn that any man worthy of respect gets it. No fair-minded, honest man has need to command people to respect him. They do it voluntarily. Mr. Willis is another example of Mr. Newrich. He has been suddenly taken from the rank and file and hustled into a position of authority. Abuse of that power is the inevitable result. There can be no law or order with such a head. As is the Speaker, so is the House. The Labour Government have little to be proud of. Never before has there been such wrangling, but never before has Labour reigned.

It would be well for the State if the Governor could pay a visit to the House incog., and see for himself how things are being conducted. I am sure he would not hesitate to dissolve such an Assembly. Things must grow worse each day. No true Britons can sit quietly by and see justice and fairplay thrown to the winds; if they are men at all, they must protest. Such protests, no doubt, cause delay, and perhaps disorder (which is bad), but better that than that the unwritten law of justice should be set at defiance and ignored both by Speaker and Government.

I am, etc.,

BRILLIANT GOLF.

IN LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP.

MISS PARBURY SECURES THE TITLE.

Yesterday witnessed the conclusion at Rose Bay of one of the most successful golf meetings ever held in the southern hemisphere.

The carnival commenced on Friday 22nd inst, with the Open Championship, and continued without interruption until yesterday, when the Ladies' Championship was decided, Miss Parbury being the winner.

The final match was set down for decision at 2 o'clock, but a violent thunderstorm caused a delay of an hour. It was fine just at the start, but rain soon set in again, and continued throughout the match. The finalists were Miss Parbury, the holder of the title, and Miss Duret, of Manly, and a large crowd of enthusiasts tramped round in the wet, closely following every stroke played. Mr. Wray, ex-champion, officiated as referee.

Of the match it may be said that it furnished as fine an exhibition of ladies' golf as has yet been seen in Australia, and it is doubtful if any lady player in the world could have excelled Miss Parbury's driving yesterday. With the exception of one long shot, which she pulled into the ditch, at the tenth hole, her tee-shots were of marvellous length, and as straight as arrows in their flight. Her iron-club play was also superb, likewise her putting. One pulled tee-shot, one topped brassie, and a putt or two that went astray, were her only errors. Undoubtedly, the better player won, and she was warmly congratulated on all sides for her brilliant display, the first to offer such congratulations being her plucky opponent.

It was a match, however, in which the loser reaped almost as much honour and glory as the winner, as nothing could have been more worthy of praise than the plucky way in which Miss Duret stuck to her brilliant opponent. To be consistently and persistently outdriven from every tee by about 30 to 40 yards, is heart-breaking, especially for a girl, but Miss Duret never faltered, she plugged along, and never once wavered or strayed a hair-breadth from the centre of the fairway. She frequently had to use her brassie where her opponent took an iron, but she did it well, and when she got near the greens she used her mashie with deadly accuracy. The game she played was a lesson in tactics. She used her head, and thought out every stroke, and never attempted a shot that she could not accomplish. One topped brassie and a couple of weak putts were about the sum total of her mistakes; and, yet, she was beaten by 5 up and 3. It was the inordinate length of her opponent's drives that beat her. If Miss Duret could add, say, 30 yards to her drive, she would be practically unbeatable.

MISS PARBURY (N.S.W.) v MISS DURET (N.S.W.).

At the first hole Miss Parbury took the honour, and got a magnificent drive straight down the fairway. Miss Duret was also very straight with her tee shot, but was at least 40yds short of her opponent. She then played a fine brassie to within about 6yds of the hole. Miss Parbury was also well on the green with her second—about 10yds to the right of the flag. Her first putt was too strong, and lacked direction. Miss Duret then missed her putt, and the hole was halved in fours. Miss Parbury getting down a fairly long putt for a half at the second hole, good drives were the order of the day. Miss Duret, however, topped her second shot, and the ball only went about 90yds, which left her with a long carry to clear the cross-bunker; but she took her brassie, and got well over. Miss Parbury sliced her second shot, and then played a perfect iron shot on to the green, which Miss Duret reached with her fourth, and the hole was eventually won by Miss Parbury in 5 to 6, as Miss Duret's putt for a half lay on the lip of the hole. At the third Miss Parbury took an iron, and sliced her tee shot into the right-hand bunker guarding the green, whilst Miss Duret took her brassie and just reached the green. Miss Parbury was well out with her second, but was short with her third. The hole, however, was halved in four, as Miss Duret missed her opportunity by taking three putts. At the fourth Miss Parbury got a magnificent drive, but Miss Duret just failed to clear the rough from the tee, and her ball lay in the long grass. She played a short second, and reached the top of the hill with her third, whilst Miss Parbury was well up the hill with her second, and then played a magnificent iron shot on to the green. Miss Duret was just short of the green in the green long grass with her fourth, and Miss Parbury became two up by winning the hole 5 to 7, both players being weak on the green. At the fifth Miss Parbury again drove splendidly, getting a very long low ball. Miss Duret, although straight down the fairway, was at least 40yds behind her more brilliant opponent. Both played good second shots, and were nicely on the green with their thirds, and the hole was well halved in fives. At the short sixth Miss Parbury was just across the green with her tee shot, whilst Miss Duret was nicely on the green, but about 15yds from the flag. She then putted a bit too strongly, and overran the hole by about 3ft. Miss Parbury made a perfect approach to within a foot of the hole, which was well halved in threes. At the long seventh Miss Parbury again drove splendidly, and she was within about 100yds of the bunker guarding the green, with her second, Miss Duret was straight and consistent as usual, and was just short of the bunker with her third. Miss Parbury took her brassie instead of an iron for her third, and topped her shot into the bunker. She was well out, however, and both balls were nearly the same distance from the flag, and the hole was halved in 6, each player running down a nice putt.

Their tee shots at the eighth were but a repetition of what had gone before, as both players were straight down the centre of the fairway. Miss Parbury, however got the longer ball by about 30 yards. Miss Duret was just short of the green with her second, whilst Miss Parbury reached the cut portion. Miss Duret then took her mashie and made a beautiful approach to within a couple of feet of the flag, and the hole was splendidly halved in four. At the ninth both ladies again got magnificent tee shots. Miss Duret played for safety short of the cross bunker with her second, and made a beautiful mashie shot to within a couple of feet of the hole. Miss Parbury, on the other hand, found the bunker with her second, and just failed to reach the green with her third. She played her fourth about 20 feet beyond the hole, and then ran down a fine putt for a five; but Miss Duret was not to be denied, as she holed out and won the hole in 4 to 5. Miss Parbury thus turned for home one up. At the tenth Miss Duret got a fine drive, but Miss Parbury made her first mistake of the day, from the tee, as she pulled her ball into the ditch, running parallel with the fairway. She then picked out of the ditch with the loss of one stroke, and played a fine iron shot to within about 15 feet of the flag. Miss Duret was just on the cut portion of the green with her second, and then over-ran the hole slightly with her third. Miss Parbury just failed with her putt, but Miss Duret made no mistake, and squared the match by winning the hole in a fine four to her opponent's five. At the 11th, Miss Parbury got an extra brilliant tee shot straight down the fairway, whilst Miss Duret also drove well, and was well across the bunker with her second. Miss Parbury then played a perfect iron shot on to the green. Miss Duret approached a little beyond the flag, and then Miss Parbury holed a fine putt and won the hole with a truly brilliant 3 to 4. At the twelfth the lady champion got a long tee shot nicely on to the green, whilst Miss Duret played for safety short of the bunker. The latter then made a nice approach to within 15 feet of the hole. Miss Parbury laid her second dead. Miss Duret then made a gallant attempt to hole out; but her ball hit the back of the tin and lay on the brink of the hole, and Miss Parbury became 2 up once more by winning in 3 to 4. At the thirteenth Miss Parbury, with two magnificent shots was 50 yards over the coffee bunker; whilst Miss Duret played her second for safety short of this bunker, she was, however, well on towards the bunker guarding the green with her third, whilst Miss Parbury made a magnificent iron shot on to the green, and to within five feet of the flag, Miss Duret nearly over-ran the green with her fourth, and the hole was eventually won by Miss Parbury in 5 to 6. At the fourteenth Miss Parbury took her iron and played a magnificent shot on to the green to within 15 feet of the hole. Miss Duret played for safety short of the bunker, and then made a splendid approach to within 6 feet of the hole. Miss Parbury over-ran the hole with her putt by about four feet, Miss Duret putted and missed the hole, but stymied her opponent. Miss Parbury, however, made a splendid putt, screwing round her opponent's ball and became dormie 4 by winning the hole in 3 to 4. At the fifteenth Miss Parbury was about 50 yards short of the green with two magnificent wooden shots. Miss Duret played her second for safety short of the cross bunker, and was on the green with her fourth; whilst Miss Parbury was well on with her third, and as each took two putts the hole was won by Miss Parbury in 5 to 6, and with it the match by 5 up and 3.

Their scores were:—

Miss Parbury.—Out: 4, 5, 4, 6, 5, 3, 6, 4, 5—42.

Miss Duret.—Out: 4, 6, 4, 7, 5, 3, 6, 4, 4—43.

Miss Parbury.—In: 5, 3, 3, 5, 3, 5=24 for 6 holes.

Miss Duret.—In: 4, 5, 4, 6, 4, 6=29 for 6 holes.

Total, Miss Parbury, 66 for 15 holes.

Miss Durett, 72 for 15 holes.

Miss Parbury won by 5 up and 3.

Although the match was over they finished the round, Miss Parbury's total being 81 and Miss Duret's 86.

COOK'S FIRST VOYAGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Mr. Arthur Kitson, in his letter of August 9, appearing in your issue of this day, states: "Whilst Banks, writing a description of the country of New South Wales, after possession had been taken on August 22, still uses the name of Sting Ray's Bay."

In Banks's journal on the voyage of the Endeavour referred to, the original of which is in the Mitchell Library, Sydney, the words "Sting Rays Bay"—no apostrophe—are struck through, and the words "Botany Bay" substituted in Sir Joseph Banks's own handwriting.

GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE.

PROTEST FROM THE ROCKS.

At the meeting of the Public Works Committee yesterday Mr. J. Brock (president of the Darling Harbour League) gave evidence protesting against the erection of the new Government Printing Office on the site in the Rocks resumption area. It was absolutely essential that coal-lumpers and wharf-labourers should reside close to their work, and provision should be made for the erection of workmen's dwellings in the neighbourhood. Living in the suburbs would be of no use to the class of labour he had referred to, as it would practically mean that the men would require to have two homes.

Mr. J. A. Burke, printers' supplier, said the present Government Printing Office building was out of date, but he considered the site an excellent one.

METROPOLITAN CHAMPIONSHIP.

DEWSBURY DEFEATS DIGHT.

The metropolitan championship, which is conducted by the N.S.W. Amateur Billiard Association, was continued last night at Messrs. Heiron and Smith's parlours, Castlereagh-street, when D. Dewsbury beat H. A. Dight by 212. The winner made breaks of 57, 39, 34, 33, 32, 29, 20; while Dight's best was 26. The next heat will be played on Tuesday evening, when R. G. Pigrott will meet G. Bell.

MOUNTAIN TOURIST FARES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Your very just and timely criticism on several occasions of the action of the Commissioner for Railways in altering the fares to the tourist districts during the winter months has been greatly appreciated by many mountain residents. There can be no question that the winter tourist traffic, which was making rapid development, has received a setback from which it will take long to recover. However sure the Commissioner may be that "the issue of tickets from the Sydney station and the central booking office in Martin-place has been far greater this year than last year, notwithstanding that the tourist fares have not been in operation," the residents of Katoomba, at least, are as positive that fewer tourists arrived in Katoomba during this last winter than during any former winter for some time. The business people have unmistakable ways of comparing one year with another; the church attendances, also, are a very fair index to the number of visitors in the town; but it will take more than the Commissioner's offhand remark to convince either church or business people that the number of visitors has been larger during the present year than last. One would like a comparative financial statement which might speak of takings other than those at central and Sydney. The alteration with the last timetable from return to single fares introduces complications in preparing such a statement; e.g., people have had to purchase tickets at Sydney who previously purchased their return tickets at Katoomba, and in that way the issue of tickets would be far greater, as the Commissioner says, but it is another question whether the total takings would be far greater. And in any case the Commissioner must be hard put to it for an excuse when he asks the public to swallow the apology that a retail winter business requires retail prices. The veriest amateur in business knows that a wholesale price brings a wholesale trade. And is it not evident from the figures the Commissioner possesses concerning the traffic to the mountains during recent years that every year has shown some progress? Is it regarded as wise management to try to keep the people in Sydney until summer for cheaper fares, and so intensify the overcrowding of the trains and the inconvenience which is already being suffered? Are there not people who can get away to the mountains only in winter, and who are surely entitled to the same cheap fare as the more fortunate folk who can enjoy the summer?

If it were true that the bookings this year were heavier in spite of increased fares, how considerably greater still would they have been if the old fares had been in operation? The trains that have been run might have carried more passengers, at no additional cost, and have paid better. And it is wholly unreasonable to expect the public to believe that because the fares are raised about 3s per passenger more people will be encouraged to travel!

It is to be hoped that the Chief Commissioner will not be sufficiently foolish to revert next winter to a policy so undiscerning and one-sided.

I am., etc., CRITO.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACTS, 1906-7-8."

NOTICE OF PROPOSAL TO ALTER THE BOUNDARIES OF THE KU-RING-GAI AND HORNSBY SHIRES BY UNITING PARTS OF EACH TO THE OTHER.

In pursuance of the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1906," and the Acts amending the same: Notice is hereby given that it is proposed to alter the boundaries of the Ku-ring-gai and Hornsby Shires by uniting to Ku-ring-gai Shire the parts of the Hornsby Shire described in the Schedule "A" to a notification of such proposal published in the Government Gazette of 27th September, 1911, and by uniting to the Hornsby Shire the part of Ku-ring-gai Shire described in Schedule "B" to the said Gazette notification.

The effect of the proposal, if carried out, will be to take from Hornsby Shire and add to Ku-ring-gai Shire three acres of about 3¼ acres in all, and to take from Ku-ring-gai Shire and add to Hornsby Shire two acres of about 5-16th of an acre in all, in order that the common boundary through Pearce's Corner Subdivision and Bundarra Estate may conform to the streets and allotment boundaries, instead of following the centre of Spring Gully Creek.

Within the period of thirty days after the date of this notice the Council of the Ku-ring-gai Shire, or the Council of the Hornsby Shire, or any ratepayer or creditor of either of such areas, may make written representations to the Minister on the subject of the above proposal; and within the said period of thirty days one-third or more of the ratepayers of the Ku-ring-gai Shire, or one-third or more of the ratepayers of the Hornsby Shire, may, in the manner prescribed in clause 6 of Ordinance 17, as proclaimed in Government Gazette of 14th May, 1908, and amended by proclamation in Government Gazette of 30th December, 1908, demand that a Poll be taken of the ratepayers of the said Ku-ring-gai Shire, and of the said Hornsby Shire, on the question whether the power to alter the boundaries of the Ku-ring-gai Shire and the Hornsby Shire, by uniting to the Ku-ring-gai Shire the part of the Hornsby Shire described in Schedule "A" to the notification in the Government Gazette above referred to, and by uniting to the Hornsby Shire part of the Ku-ring-gai Shire described in Schedule "B" to the aforesaid Gazette notification, shall be exercised by the Governor.

THE INEVITABLE HAS HAPPENED.

This business has outgrown its surroundings in Granville, and reached the limit of its present scope. Next week its headquarters will be in the heart of the city.

It could hardly happen any other. "Eternal vigilance," push, and integrity have forced it to be so.

The foundation has been laid in Granville, the superstructure will be raised here. "Where merchants most do congregate," right in the hub of the fairest city of the Southern Seas.

Each stone in the business building will be laid true and plumb, with a due regard to the one which is to follow. Each client will represent a stone, and honesty of purpose will be the cement to keep it in position.

A few of my building implements are mentioned here below. They are excellent ones to work with.

HIGH-GRADE FARM,
450 Acres, all cleared but 75 acres for shelter, heavily grassed and well fenced, divided into 12 paddocks, each separately watered, 3 road frontages, and the other to the city water canal. Superior Homestead of 6 rooms, kitchen, bath, conservatory, flower gardens, and lawns, beautifully situated on an elevation commanding fine views. Complete range of outbuildings to meet every want. The soil is exceptionally good, and 12 acres under lucerne will show what it will grow. Lambs from here were sold privately last week at 19/. Only 3¼ miles from rail, 30 miles city. Title Torrens. £10 10s per acre, half cash. It would be hard to find a better one than this—a practical man would admire it.

HOME OF BEAUTY.
A pretty Brick Cottage stands on a hill in sight of the station, although a mile from it. It has a verandah right round, and contains 4 rooms and wide hall, fireplace in every room, and marble mantels, kitchen, maid's room, bath, dairy, barn, stables, 5 cemented bails, etc.
Land 22 acres, all splendid soil, divided into paddocks, good grass and timber; also cultivation, few fruit trees and flower garden. It is said, "A contented mind is a continual feast," and contentment is expressed in every aspect of this place. 38 miles from city. £775, half cash. Freehold.

TOWNSVILLE, NORTH QUEENSLAND.

ALL that Exceptionally Valuable CORNER BLOCK, situate at the intersection of FLINDERS and STOKES STREETS, the dimensions of which are 132 feet to FLINDERS-STREET, by depth along STOKES-STREET 165 feet.

THE BLOCK WILL BE OFFERED IN TWO LOTS.
(1) CORNER FLINDERS and STOKES STREETS, 66 feet frontage, by depth 165 feet, and
(2) FLINDERS-STREET, 66 feet by 165 feet.

It is generally admitted that all the Best Business Sites are between DENHAM and STANLEY STREETS, and that STOKES-STREET, being the centre position between them, commands an UNRIVALLED POSITION, enjoying, apart from its centrality, immediately opposite the TOWN HALL BUILDINGS, the large and important Shops, the advantage of its being the ONLY DIRECT COMMUNICATION for VEHICULAR TRAFFIC over ROSS CREEK to the Shipping Wharves, etc., and THE WHOLE OF ROSS ISLAND.

Independent of the rapid strides TOWNSVILLE of late years has made in the improvement of its buildings, viz., from W.B. to handsome Brick Structures, its Shipping and Harbour facilities have more than kept pace, the income from the harbour dues having risen from £20,000 to £50,000 per annum (last year's returns), and showing a very appreciable advance this year. Beyond all doubt TOWNSVILLE is bound to be the CAPITAL of NORTHERN QUEENSLAND, having a magnificent back country, rich in grazing and sugar lands, and teeming in all kinds of minerals.

VALUABLE FREEHOLD PROPERTY AND STOCK.

FOR AUCTION SALE,
AARONS' EXCHANGE HOTEL, SYDNEY, on THURSDAY, 19th OCTOBER, 1911,
at 3 p.m.

EDWARD TRENCHARD and CO., in conjunction with NEW ZEALAND LOAN AND MERCANTILE AGENCY COMPANY, LIMITED, have received instructions from M. H. Clifford, Esq., and the Equity Trustees, Executors, and Agency Company, Limited, the executors of the late William Peterson and F. G. Sargood, Esq., and the Trustees, Executors, and Agency Company, Limited, the executors of the late Sir Frederick T. Sargood, to SELL by PUBLIC AUCTION, at Aarons' Exchange Hotel, Sydney, on THURSDAY, 19th October next, at 3 p.m.,

THE ELLERSLIE ESTATE,

containing about 26,928 acres freehold and C.P. land, 700 acres Crown land; total, 27,628 acres, situate in the South-eastern Division of New South Wales, in the parishes of Wallace and Ellerslie, County Wynyard, and distant about 9 miles from Adelong, 14 from Mount Horeb railway stations, and 22 miles from Tumut.

The country consists of open undulating forest land, chiefly stringybark, box, apple, and other trees, the whole of which has been ringbarked for many years, reserving picked trees and ample timber for fencing and other purposes. It is now improved into clear, open country, much of which presents a plain-like appearance, and there are also well-grassed flats on the frontages, and the hills are good grazing land.

The soil is principally reddish loam, with dark loam in the gullies, interspersed with some alluvial flats, suitable for root crops, cereals, etc.

It is all good grazing and wool-growing country, and much of it is fattening and agricultural land.

It is amply and permanently watered in all parts and in all seasons by Yaven, Nasks, Baston's, Mount Pleasant, Turner's, Ferguson's, and numerous other running creeks and streams throughout, and the average annual rainfall is about 30in. Water races could be cut to convey water by gravitation from the watercourses of the hilly country to irrigate portion of the low-lying country at a small expense.

The fencing is all good, and the boundaries are netted with 32 miles of 3 wires, 1 barb wire, and netting, 30 miles of dividing fences of the same description, 27 miles of dividing fences 6 and 7 wires, and 5 miles fire-break fences.

The improvements are comfortable, commodious W.B. Family Residence, with semi-detached brick building, and all necessary storerooms, outhouses, and offices, stables, loose boxes, sheds, men's quarters, etc., woolshed of iron, 16 stands, Wolseley machines, manager's cottage, shearers' quarters, and two other cottages, 5 sets of sheep drafting and 3 sets of marking yards, conveniently placed throughout the run. Together with STOCK.

About 16,500 grown sheep, Merino-Romney Marsh cross, carrying good fleeces.
7000 Lambs.
180 Cattle, milking herd, and progeny, and team of working bullocks.
80 Station Working Horses.
Also,
Complete Plant for working the property.
Household Furniture and Stores.

This property has been successfully worked for a number of years, and has now to be realised upon to wind up the estates. Being situated in a district not subject to drought, it is particularly adapted to work in connection with a large Riverina freehold, and as a subdivision proposition it would readily cut up into dairy farms, grazing areas, orchards, and farms.

Further particulars can be had, on application, from the agents,
EDWARD TRENCHARD and CO., 468 Collins-street, Melbourne; or
NEW ZEALAND LOAN AND MERCANTILE AGENCY CO., Ltd., Collins-street, Melbourne, and Bridge-street, Sydney.

HIGHLY REMUNERATIVE TOWN PROPERTY INVESTMENTS.

THE ODDFELLOWS' HALL AT WAGGA WAGGA, AND ADJOINING SHOPS.

MEURANT and BLAKE have been instructed by the Trustees of the M.U.I.O.O.F. to sell by Public Auction, at the HALL, WAGGA WAGGA, on SATURDAY, 28th OCTOBER, 1911, at 3 p.m.,

THE CENTRALLY-SITUATED and HIGH-RENT PRODUCING PROPERTIES known as the ODDFELLOWS' HALL and BUSINESS PREMISES occupied by Mr. A. Lewis, Tailor, and the Canada Cycle and Motor Company.

The immediate and prospect VALUES of these properties cannot be too highly emphasised.

The Hall is a really first-class and UP-TO-DATE THEATRE, and is now in practically constant occupation.

The adjoining buildings permit of very extensive additions and improvements.

Irrespective of the values from a public hall entertainment point of view, the situation makes the property specially adapted for business premises.

It is practically impossible to obtain a site in this congested portion of the town.

It is owing to recent internal legislation consolidating all the funds in a central executive that necessitates a total clearance of the outside investments of the Society.

The trade possibilities of Wagga are hard to estimate, and in consequence, this property should commend itself to Investors, Merchants, and Traders of all descriptions.

The Auctioneers will be only too pleased to supply any information on application.

We cannot too highly recommend this investment to syndicates, theatrical entertainers, speculators, and business people.

HEALTH AND PLEASURE AT MANLY.

Each season sees Manly growing more and more popular with those in search of home sites handy to the city, and in a locality that at the same time affords all the pleasures of a seaside resort. Manly fills the bill in both respects. The fast and cheap service of ferry boats makes the half-hour trip, morning and evening trip, something to look forward to. The journey acts as a tonic in the morning, preparing the city man for the business of the day, and the cool breezes of the evening soon dispel the "cobwebby" feel that is often the outcome of a hard day's work. It is far more pleasant travelling than that afforded by train or tram journey, and is one of the reasons why Manly residents say they "would not care to live anywhere else."

NEUTRAL BAY.
A CHOICE SITE FOR SALE, 156 feet frontage to Elamang-avenue, 286ft to Peel-street, and 156ft to Careening Cove, 10 minutes from city, next to Sydney Royal Yacht Club Grounds. This is, without doubt, the best site available, an ideal position for the erection of a private home, or a remunerative investment if used as a site for residential flats, or similar building. It has deep-water frontage, a most substantial retaining wall, and is cleared ready for building purposes. About one half the land is level enough for a tennis court, lawn, or flower gardens, the remainder sufficiently elevated to give a building an imposing appearance. The owner, having taken up his residence in England, has requested us to sell.
There is no doubt that this land is daily becoming more valuable; in fact, it is impossible to procure similar sites at any price.

MAKE MOTHER EARTH YOUR BANKER.

The possession of land has from the very earliest times been considered the best of all means of securing safety in values. Other property, such as stocks and bonds, and even the hard cash itself, can easily take wings and fly away, but your portion of the planet, in town or country, is stable and real. It needs no lock and key, and can be found exactly where you left it after the longest absence.
"Safe as the bank" is an accepted simile. It should be "Safe as the land."

HOMEDALE ESTATE, HURSTVILLE,

is one of the safest investments it is possible to get. In the best part of a rapidly-growing suburb, within a short distance of the station, and commanding glorious views of Botany Bay and George's River, HOMEDALE is, in addition, a most desirable Home Site. The position is elevated, and the air fresh, healthy, and invigorating. It is just like being in the country, although only nine miles from town. Here you can have your poultry run, your flower garden, your vegetable patch, in many ways you can make life more interesting, and at the same time more profitable.
Deep Lots, 50ft frontages, from 10/6 per foot. That's cheap enough to suit anyone, and our easy terms of £1 down and 10/ per month is a further inducement.
Don't waste time, but send in at once for Plans and Illustrated Descriptive Booklet to Dept. H.

HABERFIELD. [illegible]
SUPERIOR STYLE OF COTTAGE
AT A VERY REASONABLE PRICE,
"The Place of Beautiful Homes."
Home-hunters can easily select a Cottage to coincide exactly with their own ideas from the many new Cottages now ready for sale at Haberfield. Each place is of different style, representing exceptional value, and their thorough construction and splendid designing justify Haberfield being called "The Place of Beautiful Homes."
The new £800 to £900 Cottages, for instance, have very handsome interior decorations, and each is of distinctive design. They have three bedrooms, large, lofty, well ventilated and lighted, along with handsome dining and drawing rooms, mostly connected with sliding-doors. Stencilled friezes are a special feature of these rooms, and the fittings are all in harmony with the general decorations, kitchen, pantry, bathroom, wood and coal shed, gas, water, and sewerage, every modern convenience, cottages that make ideal homes.
And as a suburb Haberfield offers inducements that no other suburb can give. It is SYDNEY'S ONLY GARDEN SUBURB.—Every Cottage, of which there are close on 600, has a fine garden, and the streets are tree-lined, and the whole suburb is laid out to bring about a pleasing garden effect.
YOUR INSPECTION IS INVITED. All particulars supplied on request. Ask for our illustrated Booklet.

MY REASON FOR OFFERING A FREE TRIAL TREATMENT

FOR THE REMOVAL OF

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR, MOLES, AND HAIRY MOLES.

Because it at once convinces anyone of the impossibility of having a new growth where Hairs have once been removed by me. No other Specialist in Sydney has ever offered to do this, and my reason for this Free Treatment is to convince you once and for all of my success. This Trial Treatment costs nothing, nor does it bind you to subsequently come for further treatment.

MOLES AND HAIRY MOLES.

These unsightly marks can be removed in a single treatment, almost painlessly, and without the slightest danger. No after-effects are felt or seen.

The Fees are very moderate. Individual Waiting Rooms and Personal Attention.

A NEW TIN WITH A MISSION

First of all—why the new tin?
It provides a more convenient way for handling the powder in the kitchen.

It keeps the powder pure and good, and retains the valuable properties of the Baking Powder.

It has a patent lever lid—a great improvement on the paper packet—which makes the tin air and dust tight.

AND ITS MISSION

is to make more widely known the merit of the Baking Powder of Baking Powders—DR. WAUGH'S. Try one batch of Scones or Cakes with it in, and you will have proof—conclusive proof—that

DR. WAUGH'S BAKING POWDER

IS UNEQUALLED as a RAISING AGENT, superseding self-raising flour, and establishing once and for all a strong claim to a permanent place as an ingredient in all YOUR flour-made food.

6d and 1/ AT YOUR GROCER'S.

A single tin only costs you 6d, but for that 6d you have found the Easiest way—the time and trouble-saving way—of making Cakes, Scones, and Puddings.

Ask in your next order for DR. WAUGH'S—the New Patent Lever Lid Style.

WASH WITH "NO-RUBBIN."

BOIL THE CLOTHES ONLY.

"NO-RUBBIN" is a marvellous new preparation which enables you to wash the clothes by BOILING THEM ONLY. See what labour, trouble, and time this saves you. No rubbing whatever is now needed—the clothes are washed perfectly, and because "No-Rubbin" contains no "burn-the-dirt-out" chemicals, it hurts neither the hands nor the most delicate fabrics. 3d PACKET EVERYWHERE.

See that you get "NO-RUBBIN," the genuine and original clothes washer. BEWARE OF IMITATIONS that contain Caustic Soda or Silicate of Soda.

If your Grocer or Storekeeper cannot supply you, give us his and your name and address and we will post you a full-sized packet FREE.

ARNOTT'S
SHREDDED WHEATMEAL
BISCUITS.

Chemistry proves that the whole of the wheat grain contains more nutriment than the part usually made into fine white flour.

Experiments by the Food Reform League show that from the whole wheat meal the body can assimilate about 24 times more of the mineral substances which form bone and teeth, and nourish the brain, nerves, and tissues, than from a similar weight of fine white flour.

Arnott's Shredded Wheatmeal Biscuits are rendered specially wholesome by steam cooking, shredding, and baking.
